

covering the lessons of the half-year); Lumby in the Cambridge Bible ($1.00); Page and Walpole (75c.); and the Century Bible (70c.). Lindsay, besides being full and accurate in its exposition of the text, is rich in suggestion of lessons to be drawn from it. Lumby is complete and scholarly. Page and Walpole give many references to illustrative incidents in classical history, while their explanation of difficult points and unusual words is clear and satisfactory. The Century Bible is a beautiful and handy volume, published in 1901, and contains the results of the latest investigations in a very compact and readable form. In addition to these books on the text of the lessons, Robertson's Studies in the Acts, one of the Guild Text books (paper 25c., cloth 40c.) gives a comprehensive view of the whole narrative, while Stiffler's, The Acts of the Apostles (75c.), is a useful summary of its teachings.

The teacher who reads Greek will find much valuable help in Knowling's Commentary in the Expositor's Greek Testament, Vol. II., ($7.00 per vol. separately, 2 vols. $10.00).

Lessons have been taken also from five of

THE PAULINE EPISTLES,

Romans, 1 Corinthians, Ephesians, Philippians, and 1 Thessalonians. The Cambridge Bible (on Romans, 75c., on the other epistles 50c. each) contains an introduction to each epistle, embracing an account of the circumstances in which it was written, the persons addressed, and the contents, and full notes on the text by competent scholars. The Expositor's Greek Testament, Vol. II., contains Romans by Denney and 1 Corinthians by Findlay.

The lessons from the epistles will be found in four volumes of the Century Bible (70c. each). These volumes contain respectively Romans; 1 and 2 Corinthians; Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians and Philemon; Galatians and 1 and 2 Thessalonians. These, like the volume on the Acts mentioned above, present in a very convenient and attractive form the results of the most recent research. The numbers of the well-known Expositor's Bible ($1.16 per vol.) containing our five epistles are among the best in the series and may be recommended to those who desire a consecutive discussion of the topics found in the lessons. Dr. Moule, Bishop of Durham, in his Ephesian Studies and Philippian Studies ($1.30 each), gives a running commentary on the English text and a discussion of the principles taught. The volumes are full of suggestion and stimulus.

A good book on

will be of great service. Stalker's Life of St. Paul in Bible Handbooks (50c.), by its arrangement of chapters and paragraphs is admirably suited for a class book. It contains in brief compass a most satisfactory account of the apostle's career. In spite of its brevity the style of this book is clear and interesting. The most complete work is still Conybeare and Howson's Life and Epistles of St. Paul ($1.50). Farrar's Life and Work of St. Paul ($1.25) has the charm of style which mark all his writings and is full of interesting information. Professor W. M. Ramsay in his two books, The Church in the Roman Empire ($3.25) and St. Paul the Traveller and Roman Citizen ($3.00) brings to bear on the story of Paul's life, the light of his great classical learning, and of investigations made during personal visits to the regions traversed by the apostle. Matheson's Spiritual Development of St. Paul ($1.50) will be helpful to those who wish to study the apostle's inner life. Meyer's Paul a Servant of Christ (75c.), aims at describing the apostle's life as reflected in the epistles rather than as narrated in the Acts.

Paul was a great traveller, and some knowledge of

will be very useful in the study of his life. Besides Professor Ramsay's two books already referred to and Professor George Adam Smith's great book, The Historical Geography of the Holy Land ($3.25), Townsend MacCoun's The Holy Land in Geography and in History (Vol. I., $1.00; Vol. II., $1.25) may be heartily recommended as giving a brief but very complete treatment of the subject, and containing some very excellent maps. Good maps will be found also in the Oxford Helps (40c.), and the Oxford Teachers' Bible ($1.25).
