FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPO-PHOS-PHITES

It contains the elements essential to the animal organization, the oxidizing agents and tonics. In combination with the stimulant phosphorus, possessing the merit of being slightly alkaline, and is dispensed in the convenient and palatable form of a syrup. Its effects are usually visible within a few hours, and are marked by a stimulation of the appetite, the digestion and assimilation entering directly into the circulation; it tones the nerves and muscles; exerts a healthy action on the secretions; neither disturbs the stomach nor injures the system under prolonged use, and may be discontinued at any time without inconvenience. In a word, it possesses the stimulants to arouse the strength, the tonics to retain it, and merit of a high degree.

FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES

It will rapidly improve the weakened functions and organs of the body, which depend for health upon voluntary, semi-voluntary, and involuntary nervous action. SEND FOR A PAMPHLET.

Scientific and Useful.

MEAT PUDDING.—Chop finely any scraps of cold meat or bacon and put them into a suet or dripping pudding in the place of cuttings; season with salt and pepper, and boil in a cloth two hours. Serve with broth or brown gravy.

FISH CAKES.—Pull to pieces with two forks the remains of any cold fish, carefully removing the bones. Mix some mashed potatoes and a small piece of butter with the fish, and season with salt and pepper to taste, adding a little cayenne or Nepaul pepper. Form into cakes, fry in butter till a golden colour, and garnish with fried parsley.

To REMOVE GREASE SPOTS.—These may easily be eradicated from linen by washing with pearl-ash and water. For satin and silks the following is an admirable recipe: Pour on the spot two drops of rectified spirits of wine, cover with a linen cloth, and press with a hot iron; the linen must be removed at once, and a little sulphuric ether rubbed gently over the stain.

It has been aptly remarked that there is one thing better than presence of mind, in case of accidents, and that is absence of body; but as accidents may happen to all, Haggard's Yellow Oil is perhaps the best remedy—it is better than an accident policy. Yellow Oil cures all manner of Flesh Wounds, Pain, Lameness, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites, and is for external and internal use in all inflammatory and painful diseases. All medicine dealers sell it.

EGG SOUP. Put on the fire half a pint of milk and a quarter of a pint of water, with salt to taste. When the milk boils, beat slightly the white of an egg, pour it in the boiling milk drop by drop, stirring briskly all the time; when the egg has turned into hard little pellets, stir in the well-beaten yolk of the egg and take it off the fire immediately, as the soup should boil no longer after the yolk is added. Serve with fried bread crumbs and finely minced parsley.

To WASH FLANNELS.—I use my wringer to wash woollen blankets and stockings. Make a strong soap-suds with boiling water, and wring them through five or six times. Then rinse through two clear hot waters, the last one well blue. I have washed flannels, both coloured and white, in this way for the last twenty-five years without "felling." To prevent the edges of cotton or woollen sheets from curling, pass the selvage edge of the sheet into the wringer instead of the end.

It is said that heat travels faster than cold, because you can easily catch cold. If you do catch cold easily you can as easily cure it in its worst form if you use Haggard's Pectoral Balsam, the popular throat and lung remedy. It speedily cures the most troublesome cough, allays all irritation, dislodges tough phlegm, cures Asthma, Hoarseness and Bronchitis, and all diseases leading to Pulmonary Consumption.

BUCKWHEAT CAKES.—Perhaps some of our best housekeepers may not know that to mix one-third wheat flour with buckwheat makes the cakes better than if made entirely of buckwheat, and it is economical also. To the buckwheat and flour add warm water sufficient to make a stiff batter, half a tea-spoon of good yeast and a little salt; set in a warm place over night to rise. By saving a bowlful of batter at each baking, for starting another batch, yeast need not be used more than once a week.—Farm Journal.

FRENCH TREATMENT IN NEURALGIA.—In a recent communication to the Academie de Medecine, M. Fereol asserts the peculiar value of ammoniac sulphate of copper in the treatment of neuralgia. He states that in cases where every other resource has failed, even the administration of gelsemium and aconite, a cure or remarkable relief may be obtained to the most severe symptoms by means of this drug. Among the examples he gives of its use is one of trifacial neuralgia of two months' duration, with great insomnia, which was unrelieved by the extraction of teeth, quinine, bromide, aconite, or tincture of gelsemium, hydrometric injections of morphia or arsenic. From the first day of the administration of the sulphate of ammonia, however, there was a notable remission in the symptoms, and cessation of insomnia. In another severe case the dose was pushed to as many as eight grains without any other accident than nausea.

The world should be aroused to the deplorable condition of the females of our land! The enfeebled frame, the pale bloodless cheeks, hollow eyes, nervous debility, and the various distressing forms of female weakness, are matters that every matron in our country should consider. All forms of Debility and Irregularities peculiar to the sex may be promptly remedied by Burdock Blood Bitters.
