

esteem of his fellow-workmen, as, indeed, every one else with whom he was brought in contact.

We omitted to mention in our last that the St. John Herald had ceased to exist, and that the printing plant of the same had been purchased by Mr. P. Tole, of the Freeman, which paper is now printed and published from the old Herald premises, Germain street. It will be recollected that the Daily Freeman suspended shortly after the last Dominion election in New Brunswick, and sold its plant to the Sun Publishing Company. The Weekly Freeman was printed at the latter office until the change indicated above took place.

UNITED STATES.

The New Hampshire Legislature elected John B. Clark, of Manchester, State printer.

Wm. Tarbox, one of the pioneer printers of Lynn, Mass., died on the 24th May, from paralysis, aged 69.

Peter Gfroerer, of Terre Haute, Ind., has patented a wooden type having a face composed of a veneering of rubber.

P. B. S. Thayer, night foreman of the Boston Herald, was married at Somerville, 26th June, to Miss Nellie Baker, of Winchester, Mass.

Mr. George C. Gorham, late Secretary of the United States Senate, has assumed the management of San Francisco's new daily newspaper, the Morning Herald.

Coney Island, New York's famous watering place, has a daily paper this season, printed and published at Brighton Beach. The new journal is called the Coney Island Daily News.

"Hub," a typo on the New Haven, Conn., Register, is reported as having recently set 7,034 ems brevier in four hours and thirty minutes. The copy contained much italic, with some figures and fractions.

Frank Beamish, a printer, of Memphis, Tenn., was recently shot, but not seriously wounded, by C. B. Hamner. Beamish had reported his kissing an aunt of Hamner's, which he refused to contradict, and which caused Hamner to shoot him.

The Cincinnati Enquirer has a $100,000 libel suit on its hands. A school teacher, who was expelled on account of charges made against him in the columns of the Enquirer, wants this modest amount from the paper in lieu of his lost position.

The Portsmouth, N. H., Chronicle thus announces an accident to its forms: "The entire outside of the Chronicle Tuesday morning was transported from the pressroom to the composing room in a half-bushel basket, two water buckets, and a wash basin."

A sad and melancholy accident happened to Charles Prene, a lithographer, aged 23 years, at Long Branch on Sunday, Aug. 3d. He was on a visit to his betrothed, having only arrived there the evening before, and she, with several others, was looking at his excellent swimming, when she beheld him throw up his arms, shout for help, and sink from sight forever.

Mr. John J. Palmer, of Jefferson county, West Va., recently died, from injuries received by being thrown from a horse. He was at one time editor and proprietor of the Winchester Virginian, and afterwards superintendent of public printing of the State of Virginia. He was a practical printer, devoted to the newspaper profession, and had reached his seventy-third year.

At San Francisco, on the 23d August, Rev. Isaac Kallloch, the workingmen's candidate for mayor, was shot and dangerously wounded by Charles DeYoung, editor of the Chronicle. Kallloch, at a recent mass meeting, in retaliation for an assault by the DeYongs upon his moral character, and also resenting strictures upon his dead father, denounced the DeYoung brothers as bastards. Charles DeYoung sent word that he would shoot Kallloch on sight. DeYoung rode in a carriage to Kallloch's office, and sent a boy to tell him a gentleman wished to see him. On Kallloch's appearance, DeYoung fired twice, shooting him in the left lung and in the back. A mob immediately gathered, tore DeYoung from his carriage, and but for the large force of police would undoubtedly have killed him. A full force of police and military was required to guard the jail where DeYoung, with his brother, was incarcerated. The Chronicle office had also to be guarded.

The convicts in the Northampton (Mass.) prison publish a weekly paper in manuscript, called Innocents at Home.

Eighteen daily papers are published in London, and 143 in all Great Britain. The whole number has fallen off eight since last year.

Mr. Wm. Walker, of the Merritton Mills, has authority to make collections for this paper.
