Clara Louise Kellogg tells a story in which her mother, herself and the dowager duchess of Somerset figure. The singer and her mother were dining with that lady when the duchess calmly poured her tea into her saucer, sipped it with great enjoyment, and remarked, "Now, ladies, do not think this is rude, for I have just come from the queen and saw her do it. Let us emulate the queen." Whereupon all drank their tea from their saucers.

There is now playing in Paris a Russian horn band, each horn being capable of producing a single note only. So perfect is the training that the band produces the effect of one equipped with ordinary instruments, and even running scales with the rapidity and precision of a violin.
