Years before 1906 he had used lateral and other passes in profusion. The Tech coach has always been a great believer in the open game as against mass play. He has developed a greater variety of open field work than any footbal instructor in the realm, north, east, south or west. Many of these formation have failed to hold up against a charging defence. But many of them have proved bewildering and baffling.

Winning football elevens are nothing new in Heisman's life. He had gre-machines at Auburn back around 1898 and 1899; the same as Clemson, around 1901 and 1902, before Georgia Tech secured his services over twelve years ago.

Jack Johnson and Jess Willard were rated as slow starters, since each was around twenty-nine as he came over the top.

The marvel was Fitzsimmons. Fitz was thirty-five when he dropped Corbett at Carson City. He was thirty-eight when he fell before Jeffries. Fitz had to spot Jeffries fourteen years and fifty pounds. Robert the Red was just starting his championship career at the age where others were through. Corbett had passed along at thirty-one, Sullivan at thirty-four, and Jeffries at thirty-five. At thirty-five Fitz was just reaching for the olive sprig.

BY GIANT PLAYERS Bill Haddon Has Interesting

Souvenir Bearing Signatures of Big Leaguers.

W. Haddon of this city has an ex-tremely interesting baseball souvenir in the shape of a ball signed by every nember of the New York Giants, from John McGraw down to the trainer. The baseball was presented to Mr. Haddon by George "Mooney" Gibson. Mr. Haddon has met practically every member of the Giants, and "Mooney" had them sign their names on the ball as a souvenir for his friend. McGraw Burns, Evers, Gibson, Robertson, Holke, Perritt, Rariden, Schupp and Tesreau are a few of the stars whose autographs are on the ball.

Mr. Haddon also has two rugby halls which have been used in big games. "Let them know that a rain of death

Spray your bombs on the mobs below,
But where each bomb must burst
Don't forget, as you pick your prey,

THE OPEN GAME PROPHET.

After an interval of seventeen years he leads a lusty young arrival against his old university, and finishes out in front, 41 to 0.

When Eddle Mckay, now with the R.F.C. in France, left for overseas he gave Mr. Haddon the ball that was used when Western University won the intercollegiate championship from the Guelph Aggies in 1914. The agreement made when the ball changed hands was that if Lieut. McKay returned he would get the ball, but if he was killed it would become the property of Mr. Haddon. The rugby ball was used in an O.R.F.U. championship game some years ago.

FITZSIMMONS' BLACKSMITH SHOP STILL DOING BUSINESS

Way down in Timaru, New Zealand, on the main street of the town. there is a little blacksmith shop bearing the sign "Bob Fitzsimmons, Blacksmith." The proprietor, an old Irishman, has for years conducted the place and will not remove the sign which Fitz put, up when he started in business in that very same spot. Timaru is the place where Fitz broke into the boxing game. Jem Mace, the departed, who was formerly champion of England, put Fitzsimmons on while the Mace fistic combination was showing in the town. He whipped all his opponents, and from that night on he proved himself a fighter with a knockout punch. He was amateur middleweight champion of Australia back in the early eighties.

There has always been some doubt about Fitz's age. "Parson" Charles E. Davies went to England to look up Fitz's birth record at Helston, Cornwall, England, and found that he was a son of a village policeman and wife who were highly respected in the town. The birth record showed that Fitz first saw the light of day on May 26, 1863. The record books give Fitz's birthday as June 4, 1862.

SENSATION OF KNOCKOUT Boxers Who Get "Kayo" Usually Hear

Beautiful Bells Ringing.

Do boxers feel any ill-effects from a real knockout? The question has been put to many fighters, but as a rule they can offer little explanation, except to say that they knew absolutely nothing of what transpired, or that they heard beautiful bells ringing. The latter has been the usual explanation. Nowadays been the usual explanation. Nowadays knockouts are not so frequent as in the past, as the modern referee is careful to stop a contest if he sees that one boxer is outclassed or on the verge of a knockout. There are different ways of accomplishing the knockout, and a London authority explains it thusly:

"A knockout results from a blow in one of three places: In the neck, in the pit of the stomach, on the lower jaw. The latter is the most usual. This sends its recipient down like an inert mass; the legs cannot sustain the weight of the body; the arms drop; the whole body is in a state of syncope that often lasts several seconds.

body is in a state of syncope that often lasts several seconds.

"If the blow on the chin be not too hard it often causes only a fleeting obfuscation of the senses, a vague dizziness, accompanied by a buzzing or ringing in the ears. Complete loss of consciousness is rare, but the stunning sensation and biurring of the sight is aimost constant. The fighter is often conscious while the referes is counting him out, but is so paralyzed that he cannot move.

"The blow upon the pit of the stomach may seriously injure its victim; it may even kill him. A light tap at that point is sufficient to double up a person unaccustomed to boxing. How

Owen Sounders have a vague suspicion that they may soon be honored by another famous air man. Lieut. Recently he, a lone scout, met and chased affteen enemy planes, bringing down two of them. He also had a thrilling encounter with another German plane, and brought it down.

Word was received by Waterworks Commissioner Charles Pratt that his son, Capt. Arthur Pratt, had been wounded. The message also stated that he was remaining on duty. Capt. Pratt was the manager of the Bell Telephone Company, Bowmanville, before he enlisted last year. He was recently given command of a company and before long was to have his majority.

Gunner Robert Thompson, son of the late Robert Thompson, grain dealer, has been reported wounded and gassed. He was wounded last year in France, and again in an air raid on England. His present wounds are not serious, and he is remaining on duty.
