

Check that Cold with

BAUME BENGUE

Highly efficient in colds and catarrhal affections of the nose and throat.
Beware of Substitutes
Large tube $1.00
THE LEEHING HILLS CO. LIMITED, Agents, MONTREAL.

LET "DANDERINE" BEAUTIFY HAIR

Girls! Have a mass of long, thick, gleamy hair

Let "Danderine" save your hair and double its beauty. You can have lots of long, thick, strong, lustrous hair.
Don't let it stay lifeless, thin, scraggly or fading. Bring back its color, vigor and vitality.
Get a 35-cent bottle of delightful "Danderine" at any drug or toilet country to freshen your scalp; check dandruff and falling hair. Your hair needs this stimulating tonic, then its life, color, brightness and abundance will return—Hurry!

WHOOPIING COUGH

SPASMODIC CROUP ASTHMA COLDS INFLUENZA BRONCHITIS CATARRH

Vapo-Cresolene

Est. 1875

A simple, safe and effective treatment avoiding drugs. Vapo-Cresolene stops the spasms of Whooping Cough and relieves Spasmodic Croup at once. It is also a powerful decongestant. The air carrying the antiseptic vapor is inhaled with every breath.
It makes breathing easy, closes the sore throat
and stops the cough,
ensuring restful nights.
It is invaluable to mothers with young children.
Send us postal for descriptive booklet,
sold by everywhere.
VAPOR-CRESOLENE CO.
Lewiston, N.Y., U.S.A.

Convenient to handle—
Easy to pour.

REGAL

FREE RUNNING
Table Salt

Regal Salt never cakes. The handy aluminum spout directs the salt in a free running, even stream—wherever and wherever you wish it.

Made in Canada.
The Canadian Salt
Co., Limited

Ask for the package
with the Handy Little Spout.

FOR A TOPPY, TASTY BREAKFAST

that puts you on your toes, mentally and physically:
Heat two Shredded Wheat Biscuits in the oven (to restore their crispness); pour hot milk over them; salt or sweeten to suit the taste. If you don't like milk pour hot water over the Biscuits, drain off the water, place a small bit of butter on each. The tasty goodness of the baked whole wheat is a joy to the palate and supplies all the nutriment needed for a half day's work.

MILLIONS LOST TO CANADA IN EXCHANGE, BUT NO MOVE FROM GOVT., SAYS MCKENZIE

Former House Leader of Liberals Scores Union Cabinet For Failing To Make Effort To Better Situation — Trade Where Canadian Dollar Is Accepted At Full Value, He Urges—Quebec's Hour To Come, Says Gauthier.

[Canadian Press.]
OTTAWA, March 2.—Referring to the exchange situation in the continuation of the debate on the address in the House of Commons this afternoon, D. D. McKenzie, former House leader of the Opposition, said:
"Let me say to this Government and to the country—and I am not particular in what way it will be understood; in fact, it can only be understood in one way—that while I am anxious for the widest possible trade with foreign countries, I would not trade to the extent of one 5-cent piece with any country which will not recognize my Canadian dollar to the full face value of that dollar. If this country is loyal to itself, loyal to its principles, loyal to its institutions, it will stand by Canadianism in the matter of having any trade with any country that will not recognize the Canadian dollar at its full face value as international currency. I am not in favor of any restriction of trade, but I am for Canada trading where there is fair trade and where she is properly treated."

Willing to Sell.
"If there is any reason why any country should be willing to sell goods to us and yet not recognize the face value of the dollars with which we pay for them, that reason should be clearly stated. Although this condition of things has existed for some time, although millions have been lost to the people of Canada as a result of this condition, not a word has come from the Government with regard to the making of any effort to bring about better conditions or to relieve the people of Canada of this great drain upon their resources. I am not saying whether the Government could do anything or not, but surely they could make an effort; surely they could attempt to do it. It is possible to satisfy them in that regard of what should or could be done in regard to the adverse exchange conditions which have prevailed during the last few months."

Remnant of Government.
Mr. McKenzie referred to Sir George Foster as leading the "remnant of the Government." If Sir George's speech of yesterday, Mr. McKenzie went on,
was nothing but to bury it.
Referring to Mr. Cronyn's speech, Mr. McKenzie said that the member for London found the old machinery of government, the breaking down and increase to meet present conditions. Personally he found no sign of a breakdown in Liberalism. Liberal principles were as strong and vigorous as ever, and as Mr. Cronyn was dissatisfied with the present administration he should

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children
In Use For Over 30 Years Always bears
Signature of Chas. H. Hitchcock

look around and find another.
Fulfilled Usefulness.
"Let us see what the Government's friends say about it," went on Mr.
McKenzie. He quoted from an editorial in the Montreal Gazette to the effect that the Government had fulfilled the period of its usefulness, and next to which Mr. Rogers described the Government as "thinkers and jobbers,
dealing only with secondhand policies."
The Government is afraid of itself,
said the speaker, "but I do not agree with the Hon. Mr. Rogers that the minds of its uplifters are in a dis-ordered state."
Referring to the speech of Mr. Rogers out of the Government to avoid the inevitable crash, Mr. McKenzie said:
"If my honorable friend, the leader of the Government, refuses to see that the Government is like the house built on sand and will surely fall, he will not be able to say he was not warned in good time before the crash came."

Should Be In Seats.
Mr. McKenzie said it was important
that the ministers should be in
seats at least a part of each day during the early stages of the session, so that they could answer any questions which
the members asked.

Referring to the absence of Sir Robert Borden, Mr. McKenzie said there was no attempt to find fault with Sir Robert
for having taken an enforced rest.

However, the Opposition and the members were informed through press
dispatches, apparently authentic that Sir Robert was indisposed of retaining the leadership and had only been persuaded to retain office by his colleagues. The leader and every member of the Opposition were anxious to hear of the prime minister's recovery and had no desire to embarrass him in any way.

Mr. McKenzie said he hoped to hear from plenipotentiaries who had gone to "that most holy place, New York, where apparently all business must be done," and that the prime minister
was at present. He wanted to know why the ministers could not have met at Sir Robert at Halifax and transacted
the Canadian business at a Canadian port.

Not Democratic Election.
The last election Mr. McKenzie declared, was not a democratic election.
It was not a fair election; it was not a proper expression of the will of the people.

In regard to shipping, Mr. McKenzie said the Government were paying four times the price they would have had to pay had they carried out the policy of the Liberal party.

The Government claimed to have done
great things for returned soldiers. "I don't know," said Mr. McKenzie, "what the returned soldiers think of the administration." The leader of the Government
"has been deluged with petitions asking him to dismiss the minister in charge of re-establishment. The Government has not a single friend among the returned soldiers. If they were subjected to a plebiscite, the Government would be wiped out of existence."

Reference to Tariff.
The acting prime minister, said Mr.
McKenzie, had made fun of the suggestion that any reference to tariff matters should be made in the speech from the throne, yet in 1915 reference had been made to a proposed revision of the customs tariff in the speech from the throne. This speech had been prepared by the Government of which Sir George Foster was a member.

SAYS QUEBEC, BADLY
TREATED, WILL WAIT
OWN TIME TO CONFER

OTTAWA, March 2.—"The hour of Quebec," ran the words, rang through
the House today, precipitating a clash which enlivened a debate on the address already becoming rather wearissome. It was Mr. Gauthier, of St.
Hyacinthe who used the words, and previously there had been reference to the need for better relations between Quebec and the rest of the Dominion.

"Speaking in my own name and in that of the province of Quebec," Mr.
Gauthier declared, "I will quote the words of one of our public men, who says that the province of Quebec is not in a state of mind to enter into
any conference."

Mr. Gauthier continued: "The province of Quebec has been badly treated.
It has been slandered. It is waiting for its hour. After that it will confer and not before."

The words brought Mr. Burnham to his feet. He demanded to know if they were intended as a threat.

Only Declaration.
"It is not a threat. It is a declaration," Mr. Gauthier called back.
Mr. Burnham again protested. "The difference between a threat and a declaration of that kind," he retorted,
"is that the man who makes it is afraid to back it up."

"You have no right to insinuate
that I am a coward," replied Mr.
Gauthier. The speaker intervened.
Mr. Burnham remarked that he was not attributing physical cowardice to Mr. Gauthier, "I am attributing to him moral cowardice." Mr. Burnham was proceeding when, again, the speaker intervened. He asked Mr. Burnham to withdraw. Mr. Burnham complied, further remarking that he did not "care
a brass farthing whether they threaten or whether they don't."

The incident thus closed.

Mr. Burnham strongly attacked prohibition and Mr. Cargrain of Charlevoix-Montmorency, referred to Mr.
Rowell and Sir George Foster as bolstering up a Government composed of remnants, malleables and green grocers.

H. M. Mowatt (Parkdale), who followed Mr. McKenzie, said if the leader of the Opposition went to his party leaders in his own province he was quickly learning that his party was prepared for an election. He twitted
the Opposition later with the failure of its followers to carry Assiniboia.
He thought the result of an election
would be the same as in 1917.

"What about Quebec," asked Lapointe of Quebec East. "Will the Government place candidates in the by-
elections there?"

"I am not in the councils of the Government, and the Government will speak for itself. The Government take it, is not a party now," replied
Mr. Mowatt.

No French Member.
Mr. Mowatt thought it was a great calamity that there was not a French-Canadian member in the cabinet. But,
he remarked, the Government was not supported in the House by French-Canadian members. He urged the settlement of racial differences, that the honor of Canada should be put first and race second. He claimed there were more real Liberals on the Government than on the Opposition side of the House.

"I have found men more radical among those who would call themselves Conservatives than I ever found among my old friends. I have been astounded at the uprooting which complained Tories are prepared to do," he said.

Mr. Mowatt could not see why there should not be a Unionist party. If men on the Government side of the House
carried on their work for two years without dissension, he failed to see why the same elements could not make a party of their own. The only thing he gave Canada during the war, Mr.
Mowatt declared, "was that the Government was not afraid to do what was unpopular."

Quebec Is Waiting.
L. J. Gauthier, St. Hyacinthe-Rou-
ville, asked why, if the Government claims that no one was prepared for an election, were they not to be elected?
The Government would be returned to power with a triumphant majority, and next to
which Mr. Rogers described the Government as "thinkers and jobbers,
dealing only with secondhand policies."
The Government is afraid of itself,
said the speaker, "but I do not agree
with the Hon. Mr. Rogers that the
minds of its uplifters are in a dis-
ordered state."

Referring to the speech of Mr. Rogers
out of the Government to avoid the
inevitable crash, Mr. McKenzie said:
"If my honorable friend, the leader of
the Government, refuses to see that
the Government is like the house built
on sand and will surely fall, he will
not be able to say he was not
warned in good time before the crash
came."

Should Be In Seats.
Mr. McKenzie said it was important
that the ministers should be in
seats at least a part of each day during
the early stages of the session, so that
they could answer any questions which
the members asked.

Referring to the absence of Sir Robert Borden, Mr. McKenzie said there was
no attempt to find fault with Sir Robert
for having taken an enforced rest.

However, the Opposition and the
members were informed through press
dispatches, apparently authentic that Sir Robert was indisposed of retaining the
leadership and had only been
persuaded to retain office by his colleagues. The leader and every member of the Opposition were anxious to hear
of the prime minister's recovery and
had no desire to embarrass him in any way.

Mr. McKenzie said he hoped to hear
from plenipotentiaries who had gone
to "that most holy place, New York,
where apparently all business must
be done," and that the prime minister
was at present. He wanted to know
why the ministers could not have met
at Sir Robert at Halifax and transacted
the Canadian business at a Canadian port.

Not Democratic Election.
The last election Mr. McKenzie declared, was not a democratic election.
It was not a fair election; it was not a
proper expression of the will of the people.

In regard to shipping, Mr. McKenzie
said the Government were paying
four times the price they would have
had to pay had they carried out the
policy of the Liberal party.

The Government claimed to have done
great things for returned soldiers. "I don't know," said Mr. McKenzie, "what
the returned soldiers think of the administration." The leader of the Government
"has been deluged with petitions asking
him to dismiss the minister in charge
of re-establishment. The Government
has not a single friend among the returned soldiers. If they were subjected
to a plebiscite, the Government would
be wiped out of existence."

Reference to Tariff.
The acting prime minister, said Mr.
McKenzie, had made fun of the suggestion that any reference to tariff matters should be made in the speech from
the throne, yet in 1915 reference had been made to a proposed revision of
the customs tariff in the speech from
the throne. This speech had been prepared by the Government of which Sir George Foster was a member.

SAYS QUEBEC, BADLY
TREATED, WILL WAIT
OWN TIME TO CONFER

OTTAWA, March 2.—"The hour of Quebec," ran the words, rang through
the House today, precipitating a clash
which enlivened a debate on the address already becoming rather wearis-
some. It was Mr. Gauthier, of St.
Hyacinthe who used the words, and
previously there had been reference
to the need for better relations between Quebec and the rest of the Dominion.

"Speaking in my own name and in
that of the province of Quebec," Mr.
Gauthier declared, "I will quote the
words of one of our public men, who
says that the province of Quebec is
not in a state of mind to enter into
any conference."

Mr. Gauthier continued: "The province of Quebec has been badly treated.
It has been slandered. It is waiting
for its hour. After that it will confer and not before."

The words brought Mr. Burnham to
his feet. He demanded to know if they were intended as a threat.

Only Declaration.
"It is not a threat. It is a declaration," Mr. Gauthier called back.
Mr. Burnham again protested. "The difference between a threat and a
declaration of that kind," he retorted,
"is that the man who makes it is
afraid to back it up."

"You have no right to insinuate
that I am a coward," replied Mr.
Gauthier. The speaker intervened.
Mr. Burnham remarked that he was
not attributing physical cowardice to
Mr. Gauthier, "I am attributing to him
moral cowardice." Mr. Burnham was
proceeding when, again, the speaker
intervened. He asked Mr. Burnham to withdraw. Mr. Burnham complied,
further remarking that he did not "care
a brass farthing whether they threaten
or whether they don't."

The incident thus closed.

Mr. Burnham strongly attacked
prohibition and Mr. Cargrain of Charlevoix-Montmorency, referred to Mr.
Rowell and Sir George Foster as bolstering up a Government composed of
remnants, malleables and green
grocers.

H. M. Mowatt (Parkdale), who followed Mr. McKenzie, said if the leader
of the Opposition went to his party
leaders in his own province he was
quickly learning that his party was
prepared for an election. He twitted
the Opposition later with the failure
of its followers to carry Assiniboia.
He thought the result of an election
would be the same as in 1917.

"What about Quebec," asked La-
pointe of Quebec East. "Will the Government place candidates in the by-
elections there?"

"I am not in the councils of the Government, and the Government will
speak for itself. The Government
take it, is not a party now," replied
Mr. Mowatt.

No French Member.
Mr. Mowatt thought it was a great

calamity that there was not a French-Canadian member in the cabinet. But,
he remarked, the Government was not
supported in the House by French-Canadian members. He urged the set-
tlement of racial differences, that the
honor of Canada should be put first and
race second. He claimed there were more real Liberals on the Government
than on the Opposition side of the House.

"I have found men more radical
among those who would call themselves Conservatives than I ever found
among my old friends. I have been
astounded at the uprooting which complained Tories are prepared to do," he
said.

Mr. Mowatt could not see why there should not be a Unionist party. If men
on the Government side of the House
carried on their work for two years
without dissension, he failed to see
why the same elements could not make
a party of their own. The only thing
he gave Canada during the war, Mr.
Mowatt declared, "was that the Government was not afraid to do what was
unpopular."

Quebec Is Waiting.
L. J. Gauthier, St. Hyacinthe-Rou-
ville, asked why, if the Government
claims that no one was prepared for an
election, were they not to be elected?

The Government would be returned to power
with a triumphant majority, and next to
which Mr. Rogers described the Government as "thinkers and jobbers,
dealing only with secondhand policies."
The Government is afraid of itself,
said the speaker, "but I do not agree
with the Hon. Mr. Rogers that the
minds of its uplifters are in a dis-
ordered state."

Referring to the speech of Mr. Rogers
out of the Government to avoid the
inevitable crash, Mr. McKenzie said:
"If my honorable friend, the leader of
the Government, refuses to see that
the Government is like the house built
on sand and will surely fall, he will
not be able to say he was not
warned in good time before the crash
came."

Should Be In Seats.
Mr. McKenzie said it was important
that the ministers should be in
seats at least a part of each day during
the early stages of the session, so that
they could answer any questions which
the members asked.

Referring to the absence of Sir Robert Borden, Mr. McKenzie said there was
no attempt to find fault with Sir Robert
for having taken an enforced rest.

However, the Opposition and the
members were informed through press
dispatches, apparently authentic that Sir Robert was indisposed of retaining the
leadership and had only been
persuaded to retain office by his colleagues. The leader and every member of the Opposition were anxious to hear
of the prime minister's recovery and
had no desire to embarrass him in any way.

Mr. McKenzie said he hoped to hear
from plenipotentiaries who had gone
to "that most holy place, New York,
where apparently all business must
be done," and that the prime minister
was at present. He wanted to know
why the ministers could not have met
at Sir Robert at Halifax and transacted
the Canadian business at a Canadian port.

Not Democratic Election.
The last election Mr. McKenzie declared, was not a democratic election.
It was not a fair election; it was not a
proper expression of the will of the people.

In regard to shipping, Mr. McKenzie
said the Government were paying
four times the price they would have
had to pay had they carried out the
policy of the Liberal party.

The Government claimed to have done
great things for returned soldiers. "I don't know," said Mr. McKenzie, "what
the returned soldiers think of the administration." The leader of the Government
"has been deluged with petitions asking
him to dismiss the minister in charge
of re-establishment. The Government
has not a single friend among the returned soldiers. If they were subjected
to a plebiscite, the Government would
be wiped out of existence."

Reference to Tariff.
The acting prime minister, said Mr.
McKenzie, had made fun of the suggestion that any reference to tariff matters should be made in the speech from
the throne, yet in 1915 reference had been made to a proposed revision of
the customs tariff in the speech from
the throne. This speech had been prepared by the Government of which Sir George Foster was a member.

SAYS QUEBEC, BADLY
TREATED, WILL WAIT
OWN TIME TO CONFER

OTTAWA, March 2.—"The hour of Quebec," ran the words, rang through
the House today, precipitating a clash
which enlivened a debate on the address already becoming rather wearis-
some. It was Mr. Gauthier, of St.
Hyacinthe who used the words, and
previously there had been reference
to the need for better relations between Quebec and the rest of the Dominion.

"Speaking in my own name and in
that of the province of Quebec," Mr.
Gauthier declared, "I will quote the
words of one of our public men, who
says that the province of Quebec is
not in a state of mind to enter into
any conference."

Mr. Gauthier continued: "The province of Quebec has been badly treated.
It has been slandered. It is waiting
for its hour. After that it will confer and not before."

The words brought Mr. Burnham to
his feet. He demanded to know if they were intended as a threat.

Only Declaration.
"It is not a threat. It is a declaration," Mr. Gauthier called back.
Mr. Burnham again protested. "The difference between a threat and a
declaration of that kind," he retorted,
"is that the man who makes it is
afraid to back it up."

"You have no right to insinuate
that I am a coward," replied Mr.
Gauthier. The speaker intervened.
Mr. Burnham remarked that he was
not attributing physical cowardice to
Mr. Gauthier, "I am attributing to him
moral cowardice." Mr. Burnham was
proceeding when, again, the speaker
intervened. He asked Mr. Burnham to withdraw. Mr. Burnham complied,
further remarking that he did not "care
a brass farthing whether they threaten
or whether they don't."

The incident thus closed.

Mr. Burnham strongly attacked
prohibition and Mr. Cargrain of Charlevoix-Montmorency, referred to Mr.
Rowell and Sir George Foster as bolstering up a Government composed of
remnants, malleables and green
grocers.

H. M. Mowatt (Parkdale), who followed Mr. McKenzie, said if the leader
of the Opposition went to his party
leaders in his own province he was
quickly learning that his party was
prepared for an election. He twitted
the Opposition later with the failure
of its followers to carry Assiniboia.
He thought the result of an election
would be the same as in 1917.

"What about Quebec," asked La-
pointe of Quebec East. "Will the Government place candidates in the by-
elections there?"

"I am not in the councils of the Government, and the Government will
speak for itself. The Government
take it, is not a party now," replied
Mr. Mowatt.

No French Member.
Mr. Mowatt thought it was a great

calamity that there was not a French-Canadian member in the cabinet. But,
he remarked, the Government was not
supported in the House by French-Canadian members. He urged the set-
tlement of racial differences, that the
honor of Canada should be put first and
race second. He claimed there were more real Liberals on the Government
than on the Opposition side of the House.

"I have found men more radical
among those who would call themselves Conservatives than I ever found
among my old friends. I have been
astounded at the uprooting which complained Tories are prepared to do," he
said.

Mr. Mowatt could not see why there should not be a Unionist party. If men
on the Government side of the House
carried on their work for two years
without dissension, he failed to see
why the same elements could not make
a party of their own. The only thing
he gave Canada during the war, Mr.
Mowatt declared, "was that the Government was not afraid to do what was
unpopular."

Quebec Is Waiting.
L. J. Gauthier, St. Hyacinthe-Rou-
ville, asked why, if the Government
claims that no one was prepared for an
election, were they not to be elected?

The Government would be returned to power
with a triumphant majority, and next to
which Mr. Rogers described the Government as "thinkers and jobbers,
dealing only with secondhand policies."
The Government is afraid of itself,
said the speaker, "but I do not agree
with the Hon. Mr. Rogers that the
minds of its uplifters are in a dis-
ordered state."

Referring to the speech of Mr. Rogers
out of the Government to avoid the
inevitable crash, Mr. McKenzie said:
"If my honorable friend, the leader of
the Government, refuses to see that
the Government is like the house built
on sand and will surely fall, he will
not be able to say he was not
warned in good time before the crash
came."

Should Be In Seats.
Mr. McKenzie said it was important
that the ministers should be in
seats at least a part of each day during
the early stages of the session, so that
they could answer any questions which
the members asked.

Referring to the absence of Sir Robert Borden, Mr. McKenzie said there was
no attempt to find fault with Sir Robert
for having taken an enforced rest.

However, the Opposition and the
members were informed through press
dispatches, apparently authentic that Sir Robert was indisposed of retaining the
leadership and had only been
persuaded to retain office by his colleagues. The leader and every member of the Opposition were anxious to hear
of the prime minister's recovery and
had no desire to embarrass him in any way.

Mr. McKenzie said he hoped to hear
from plenipotentiaries who had gone
to "that most holy place, New York,
where apparently all business must
be done," and that the prime minister
was at present. He wanted to know
why the ministers could not have met
at Sir Robert at Halifax and transacted
the Canadian business at a Canadian port.

Not Democratic Election.
The last election Mr. McKenzie declared, was not a democratic election.
It was not a fair election; it was not a
proper expression of the will of the people.

In regard to shipping, Mr. McKenzie
said the Government were paying
four times the price they would have
had to pay had they carried out the
policy of the Liberal party.

The Government claimed to have done
great things for returned soldiers. "I don't know," said Mr. McKenzie, "what
the returned soldiers think of the administration." The leader of the Government
"has been deluged with petitions asking
him to dismiss the minister in charge
of re-establishment. The Government
has not a single friend among the returned soldiers. If they were subjected
to a plebiscite, the Government would
be wiped out of existence."

Reference to Tariff.
The acting prime minister, said Mr.
McKenzie, had made fun of the suggestion that any reference to tariff matters should be made in the speech from
the throne, yet in 1915 reference had been made to a proposed revision of
the customs tariff in the speech from
the throne. This speech had been prepared by the Government of which Sir George Foster was a member.

SAYS QUEBEC, BADLY
TREATED, WILL WAIT
OWN TIME TO CONFER

OTTAWA, March 2.—"The hour of Quebec," ran the words, rang through
the House today, precipitating a clash
which enlivened a debate on the address already becoming rather wearis-
some. It was Mr. Gauthier, of St.
Hyacinthe who used the words, and
previously there had been reference
to the need for better relations between Quebec and the rest of the Dominion.

"Speaking in my own name and in
that of the province of Quebec," Mr.
Gauthier declared, "I will quote the
words of one of our public men, who
says that the province of Quebec is
not in a state of mind to enter into
any conference."