W. A. Murray Co.'s Brilliant Spring Opening.

Beauty everywhere, in every departnent-this is the keynote of the really rilliant spring showing of millinery costumes, cloaks, silks and dress materials which began yesterday in the Before one has entered the store, the company has provided a genuine sensation in decoration; for it is not too much to say that the display windows of the W. A. Murray Co., Ltd., are the nost beautiful that have been seen the city for many seasons, if ever efore. The architectural effect conof four distinct panels, with . Doric columns, in white and the Louis XV. French grey style, while violets, daisies, daffodlis and wild roses turn their pretty faces to the beholder liant as a salon in the days of Louis The millinery department, spacious and well lighted, was a profusion of all that could delight the feminine eye. The general scheme of decorations was over 6000 daffodils in 100 Verde antique boxes distributed over the department, and arranged amongst palms, green bay trees and 100 magnolia trees in bloom. The effect is really terday visited the millinery department of the W. A. Murray Co. were there to see the lovely new spring hats, and certainly they were a happy and delighted body of purchasers. For the ompany were showing all the finest exclusive millinery in vogue for the spring of 1909. The shapes are somewhat smaller than last season's in the brim, but large and extreme in the crown, which, however, rest low on the head. Flower hats, leghorns, pretty bonnet shapes, Spanish and mushroo turbans are much in vogue; and for young ladies the most desired are the new Victoria pokes, displaying ties and streamers. The trimmings embrace flowers, large and small, very fine flowers in pompadour effects, willow and ostrich mounts, and ties and streamers on the also much used, and while looking massive are really very light in weight shades are amber, old rose, amethyst wistaria, crocus, tuscan and royal and forget-me-not blues. The models are all imported from the best milliners in Paris, London, New York and Chica-

In the costume department there were equally beautiful attractions. The department is showing two-piece suits for street wear in light and dark grey broidered with silk and self-colored grev Rajah, self-tone embroidered; and as a special feature, a black chiffon ccat for afternoon wear, hand-emproidered and hand-painted in varied tirts. The linen (two and three-piece) suits are shown in all colors and a (Robinette & CQ.) obtained order in the issue of subpoena for service in the variety of styles—white, champagne, province of Ouebee. taupe, hellotrope, apricot and ro effects and the new straight line effect in coats. All are exclusive and highly easy. The department is also showing the new automobile coats in royal for afternoon wear, and in the modish > linens. In the silk department the W. A. Murray Co., Ltd., are featuring French printed foulards, on satin and twill grounds, in 44 inch and 22 inch widths. All the new shades prevail, apricot ochre, amethyst, wistaria, catawba, grazelle (just in vogue), puce, taupe and ashes of roses. In the the department is also showing rough and semi-rough Shantung silks for dresses and three-piece suits. The dress materials, too, in the spring opening of the W. A. Murray Co., Ltl. exceedingly attractive. The materials embrace cachemire de soie (al silk), orientals, crepes, Bayadere stripes and Ottomans.

> early spring showing of the W. A. Murray Co., Ltd., continues the rest of the week, and ladies of taste will find it a veritable fairyland of beautiful things to wear.
