

It's All In The Tie Space

The reason why one man has to pull and jerk his tie into place while the other slides his around easily is due entirely to the tie space provided in the collar.

Very few makes of collars have enough tie space—especially in the larger sizes.

The design of W. G. & R. collars is such that every man, whether he wears size 14 or 17, secures ample and uniform tie space.

W. G. & R. collars are the "slide-easy" kind—a boon to mankind.

Come, try them you fellows who have been wearing the other kind. Life is too short to be unhappy.

THE FORMAN MYSTERY

By GEORGE HUGHES.

"Ethel? Peter?" The queries occurred to Warrenner even as he rose to his feet to assist her. But she dropped back on the bed without his assistance. To whom did she refer? That "Ethel" was her dead sister? He had no doubt, but the mysterious "Peter" who was he? Was he a brother? No! He remembered that the Forman household was essentially a feminine one. A cousin, maybe—or a lover? The yellow demon of jealousy was now hammering madly at Warrenner's soul, obliterating everything good and leaving his evil passions exposed. He might have known that this dream would terminate thus! Poor, trusting fool that he had been! He had allowed himself to be deluded into loving this woman, this perdition creature! What a fool—what an ass! His thoughts tumbled. Thru jumbled eyes he looked upon the deep withered face of the woman, the one whom he believed responsible for his present discomfiture. The stranger!—was he the "Peter" of Miss Forman's ravings? Warrenner's eye prompted an affirmative answer. And, not knowing the stranger's name, Warrenner was content with that belief. He recalled to mind the day he and the stranger had met so abruptly near the Forman home. Where had the man been? His devil answered with the unuttered suggestion that he had just emerged from the Forman home, where he had been to visit the sickle one.

Hugging this thought to his heart, is it any wonder that Warrenner became bitter? To him the world was black, and his cynical mind enveloped mankind with the same deadly pall. He went about his duties with an indifference that was foreign to him, speaking only when necessary, smiling seldom, where before he had laughed often. The iron had entered his soul, and had graven deep with fiery words the reason for his melancholy mood.

On the third day Mrs. Forman arrived at the hospital on the feet wings of mother love. She had received Warrenner's wire telling of her daughter's recovery, and hesitated what to do. But following the receipt of Warrenner's letter, she had started immediately for Toronto.

Warrenner was not sorry to see her, since her presence would assist him to control himself when attending her daughter. But his patient's condition did not prove as bad as he had anticipated. For on the fourth day she was able to converse coherently. She was not distressed at her surroundings and the presence of her mother and Warrenner, and asked the reason therefor.

He raised a frail white hand to her snowy brow and passed it slowly over her eyes. The last vestige of mist cleared away, she proceeded: "I went suddenly weak just as I was about to start, and that is the last I remember." She glanced around at the white walls, the beds, and the drapery curiously. Her wandering eyes fell on Warrenner, who had noiselessly entered. "What hospital is this?"

Warrenner told her. She made no comment. During the next few days she recovered rapidly. She seemed brighter than ever before, and some of her old-time vivacity was evident in her voice when Warrenner, morose and worried, spoke rather sharply to her. But her manner changed in a twinkling, and her eyes became bantering. She called him on his melancholy appearance, not knowing the reason for it. But she was unable to extract even a smile from him. The bitterness in his heart would not allow him to compromise with her. To him she was a jade, a coquet, heartless and sickle, who played with men's hearts for the mere sake of amusement.

Came the day set for Miss Forman's removal to her home. She had gained strength rapidly, and had accordingly prevailed upon her mother and Warrenner to sanction her return home. So, as arranged, Warrenner and Mrs. Forman had secured a taxi and drove to the hospital.

They alighted at the western approach to the institution, Warrenner in the lead. But as he was assisting his companion to descend from the vehicle, he happened to glance at a passing street car. The car was of the summer variety, open on all sides, allowing him a full view of the interior.

"Beg your pardon?" Mrs. Forman had turned at Warrenner's sudden exclamation. Her eyes followed his in the direction of the speeding car. "I thought I recognized someone on the car that has just passed," he informed her, an excuse which she accepted without comment.

LENGTH OF TRAINS NOT TO BE DEFINED

By a Staff Reporter.

Ottawa, March 28.—Under existing conditions the board is not justified in directing a revision of the length of freight trains," says a judgment of the railway commission, regarding the applications for an order defining the maximum length of trains to be hauled on Canadian railways. "With the termination of the war and the getting back to more normal conditions, the matter of the regulation of the length of long-trains can and will be gone into on its merits. In the meantime there is no other one thing more important in transportation than the movement of the freight."

"The fundamental importance of getting the most efficient movement out of the rolling stock is patent to all."

The order goes on to say that "conditions are such that it is impossible to add to the rolling stock at once. The question is to do the best with what there is."

Kitchener, March 28.—Chief Engineer Wilson, of the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association, made a test in this city for water pressure today and found that with 11 streams running a pressure of only 48 pounds was registered, instead of 80 pounds. TANKS REAPPEAR CAPTURE VILLAGE

Supported By Cavalry, Armored Cars Drive For From Boyelles.

New York, March 28.—The United Press correspondent with the British army reported that the first time since the fighting in Belgium at the beginning of the war armored cars, supported by cavalry, achieved the capture of a village, the place being Boyelles (7 miles north of Ypres). The armored cars, supported on the north and south by cavalry, swept over the Germans. The enemy fled precipitately, not having expected more than a clash with small advance forces. The Germans had laid a trap at Boyelles to which they supposed would be only a reconnaissance guard of the British advance.

German Prisoners in England Exceed Britons in Germany

London, March 28.—Great Britain holds more than 71,000 prisoners of war, of whom 55,378 are Germans, while Germany has 32,800 British war prisoners. Very few Britons are held as prisoners outside of Germany.

Proposals of exchanges of prisoners have been considerably advanced with Turkey, but Germany and Austria-Hungary have not replied to the British suggestions.

SPRING THAW HALTS ACTIVE OPERATIONS

Germans Stop Important Activities on Russian Front—Raid Rumanians.

Berlin, March 28.—The war office reported: Eastern front: Army group of Prince Leopold: Between the sea and the Carpathians the spring thaw has been making the more important military activities impossible. The body of the engagements on the Shara has increased to twenty mine-throws and eleven machine guns.

Front of Archduke Joseph: During a raid on the northeast slope of Cornu, in the wooded Carpathians, the raiding detachments worked their way into a Russian position. They saw several dugouts and returned with some prisoners. A Russian attack on Magyrov failed. South of the Ural Valley a strong-swept over the Germans. The enemy fled precipitately, not having expected more than a clash with small advance forces. The Germans had laid a trap at Boyelles to which they supposed would be only a reconnaissance guard of the British advance.

Two American Barques Are Listed as Missing

London, March 28.—The American barques, Brown Brothers and Manga Reva, and the Swedish barque Barden have been listed as missing. The Brown Brothers, which left Brunswick on Nov. 13 last, bound for Trondheim, was a vessel of 870 tons gross, and was built in 1875.

The Manga Reva sailed from London previous to Nov. 15 last, for Hampton Roads. She registered 2214 tons, and was built in 1891.

The Swedish barque Barden left Mobile on Sept. 5 last for Cardiff. The vessel registered 398 tons gross, and was built in 1892.

German Food Inventory Discouraging in Results

Copenhagen, March 28.—The result of the recent stocktaking of the grain, potatoes and other foodstuffs on hand in Germany was so unfavorable, according to The Berlin Vorwaerts, which quotes remarks made before the Reichstag committee on food by the Socialist Deputy Ebert, that the Vorwaerts is the only Berlin paper which carries an account of the proceedings before the committee.

German Prize Ship Appam Turned Over to British

Norfolk, Va., March 28.—The United States district court here today on the order of the supreme court turned over the prize ship Appam to Floyd Hughes, representing the British-African Steamship Navigation Co., owners of the vessel prior to her capture by the German navy. The court ordered that $500,000, the proceeds of the sale of the cargo, be paid to the English owners. The money is in Norfolk and Richmond banks. The unpaid portion of the cargo, consisting of ore, is ordered returned to the owners. German defendants are ordered to pay all costs in connection with the case.

NO FOOD COMBINE.

Winnipeg, March 28.—Having completed his investigation into the cost of living, P. A. Macdonald, public utilities commissioner, has reported that he found no evidence of any combine to keep up prices of food supplies in Winnipeg. Prices here, he reports, are not unreasonable, when compared with prices throughout the continent, and he found no other principle other than that of supply and demand fixing the cost of articles. Mr. Macdonald conducted his investigation at the request of the provincial government.

Berlin, March 28.—The war office reports: (With the majority of the units the day passed quietly. In the district of both sides of the Somme and the Oise there were only minor engagements.
