THIS WEEK'S PRICES
 IN THE FISH MARKET

With the salmon season closed and the fall fish not yet coming in this is a quiet time of the year as far as the fish business is concerned. The dealers report a very short supply for tomorrow. Dog fish have been keeping the supply of haddock and cod down. Halibut sold this morning at 16 cents a pound, sword fish at 15, smelt at 12, cold storage salmon from 20 to 30, smoked salmon 25. Finnan haddies brought 8 cents, boneless cod 15, Blasters brought 24 cents a dozen, kipper herrings 80 cents, herring 80 cents. Salt shad sold at from 25 to 35 cents each and salt mackerel from 1 to 15.

There are also a very few fat shad for sale at from 85 to 45 cents each. The prospects for the future supply are reported poor. This has been the case for the last few years and the fishermen assign fishing in the spawning grounds up river as the cause.

THOSE OLD CANNON
 To the Editor of the Times:
 Sir,—I was interested in reading in your columns last evening that an American had purchased two supposed French cannon and taken them to New York to ornament his grounds; if these guns are really French there should have been enough spirit in our people to have secured them to adorn our squares or streets; but what about those four old cannon which the government gave the city some two or three years ago? Only one has been used, that on Market Square and it certainly looks well there; where are the other three? are they to be mounted and placed on King and Queen Squares as arranged by the old council, or will they be sold to some Americans who have eyes for curios, and appreciate old British cannon more than our commissioners?
 Yours truly
 ANTIQUARIAN.

WRECK ON POLLOCK RIP IS BRITISH SCHOONER
 Vineyard Haven, Mass., Aug. 21.—The abandoned vessel sighted on Pollock Rip Shoals on Tuesday, by the yawl Polly of New York, and at first thought to be a schooner yacht, has proved to be the British schooner Parana, which was wrecked and sunk on the shoals on Aug. 10. The schooner's cargo of coal had worked out of the hold and she came to the surface on her broad side. The revenue cutter Acushnet towed the wreck in here and it will probably be blown up.

MORE BUILDINGS WITH SANITARY CONDITIONS BAD

Another Correspondent Writes of Several in Which There Are 20 or More Tenants

The Times last night contained a letter referring to the disease breeding condition of a house in Queen street. Another correspondent has written to say that there are several such buildings, making in all twenty or more tenements, all the houses three-deckers, and all with closets in the yards. This correspondent explains the health issue, says that a written order was sent to the owner of the property in question on May 16 last, and that the matter was referred by him (Dr. Melvin) to the solicitor of the board of health on July 25, and that the writer of the letter greatly regrets in supposing that the officials of the board mentioned have in any way neglected their duty. Moreover, the solicitor recently had written assurance from the owners of the property that the matter would be attended to by Dr. Melvin.

Dr. Melvin says that, while it is true that there are still in the city several hundred houses with outside closets, the board of health last year caused patent closets to be placed in more than 800, and has had them placed in fully 1,000 houses in the last three years. The work is accomplished under great difficulty, but steady progress is being made.

HERE'S A RUDE JOLT
 FOR US WHO THINK
 WE ARE HUSTLERS

Worcester Visitor "Writes us Up" in Home Paper, But Says We Are Hospitable and Have Fine River

A rude jolt to the complacency of people of St. John is given by Dr. Max Baff in an interview published in the Worcester Sunday Telegram. We had fondly believed that St. John had widened up and got fairly into its stride on the path of rapid progress. We had believed ourselves a very wide-awake and bustling community, who were doing things and making history. But harken to Dr. Baff.

"If a patient of mine needed a rest in some quiet spot away from the seething maelstrom of city life, instead of prescribing a vacation in the rural districts I would rather outline a jaunt to St. John. There one could rest to his heart's content, if he lived up to the old saying, 'when in Rome do as the Romans do,' by doing as the people of St. John do, proceed in a leisurely manner to go through the daily routine. St. John time is an hour faster than Worcester time, and this fact impressed me as being the only sign of speed in the old city. St. John is a truly provincial city, the people lacking the progressiveness that one sees in the cities of the United States."

Dr. Baff criticizes the Sunday law which prohibits harbor or river excursions on Sunday, but adds: "The people of St. John find this law no inconvenience so it seemed, so tranquil their life."

Having said so much by way of criticism, Dr. Baff describes the people of St. John as hospitable to the extreme. People put themselves out everywhere to accommodate him and his party, and their cordiality was one of the most pleasing remembrances of his visit to the city. He speaks with the utmost enthusiasm of the scenery of the St. John river, declaring that none that he has ever seen can compare with the beauty and grandeur of the St. John. Reverting again to what he regards as the slow progress of St. John, Dr. Baff says:—

"It did take me long to figure out why St. John had not grown larger, and I soon came to the conclusion as I wandered around the city that lack of concentrated energy on the part of the inhabitants is the sole cause. However," he adds, "they all seemed happy."

Mr. St. John Booster, put this in your pipe and smoke it.

PYTHIANS DECORATE GRAVES OF BRETHREN

Memorial Service Held Today—More Than 2,000 Bouquets

The Knights of Pythias turned out in large numbers this afternoon to observe their annual decoration day. They assembled at Castle Hall, Germain street, at 1:30 and, headed by St. Mary's and the Caledonian Pipe bands, proceeded to the cemeteries. The procession was composed of representatives of the following lodges: N. B. Lodge No. 1, Union No. 2, St. John No. 80, two uniform rank companies and the visitors from Boston. They proceeded through the city along Germain to King, King to Charlotte, along King Square to Sydney, thence to Waterloo and out the Marsh road.

They visited first the Church of England burying ground then the Methodist cemetery and Fernhill. Upwards of 2,300 bouquets had been prepared by the committees in charge and these were laid by the Pythians on the graves of their departed brethren in the shape of crosses. More than one hundred graves will be decorated.

The return will be made to the city by way of Brussels, Union, Sydney, along King Square and down King to their hall on Germain street.

A delegation went over to Cedar Hill this morning to decorate the graves there and several bouquets were sent to other points throughout the province where Pythian Knights are buried.

After the decorating has been completed, the delegates will assemble at the open spot near the memorial fountain, where a service will be held. Past Supreme Prelate Moulton will deliver the oration, and Knight C. F. McTavish will lead the gathering in prayer.

Store closes tonight at 6 o'clock
