PORT BURWELL, Ont., Dec. 22.—Rev. W. H. Treadwell, aged 76, a Baptist minister, dropped dead last night in a store.

SUICIDE OF W. VAN SLOOTEN.

Man Once Well Known in St. John

as a Pioneer Dock Expert. There are man men in St. John who will regret to hear of the sad end of W. Van Slooten of Brooklyn, N. Y., who, according to the account given below from the New York Sun, killed himself with a revolver some days ago. Like other news of interest to this city, the Sun slipped it from the columns of an exchange when it was some days old, when it should have been sent over the wires by the Associated Press.

Mr. Van Slooten was the pioneer dock promoter in St. John, and his labors ante-dated the present J. D. Leary. To a Sun reporter Friday night Hon. Dr. Pugsley expressed extreme regret on being told of Mr. Van Slooten's death. It was a surprise to him, he said, to hear such news. Mr. Van Slooten, as he knew him, was a genuine business man, who represented a group of wealthy New York capitalists. He was largely interested in Nova Scotia mining at the time of his visit to St. John, when he incidentally suggested a dock scheme here before J. D. Leary came on the ground. Mr. Van Slooten was well known in Fredericton in official circles and in other parts of the province:

(New York Sun.) (New York Sun.)

William Van Slooten, 44 years old, a wellknown mining engineer, with an office at 35 Wall street, shot and killed himself shortly after 5 o'clock last evening, at his home
52 Sidney place, Brooklyn, in the presence of his wife and Dr. Lawrence J. Morton of 303 Henry street, who had been attending him for mental trouble and nervous prostration.

For a few weeks past, Mr. Van Slooten had

For a few weeks past, Mr. Van Slooten had been in such a nervous and excitable condition as to be unable to attend to business except at intervals of two or three days. Although he was evidently bordering on insanity, his wife hesitated about taking any steps to place him under restraint, hoping that a rest and a trip south which she contemplated would restore him. He had not said anything which indicated that he had thought of suicide.

Yesterday afternoon he was so restless that Mrs. Van Slooten summoned Dr. Morton. When the doctor called Mr. Van Slooten and his wife were seated in the front parlor on the second floor of the house, which had been used as a study. A few minutes after the doctor's arrival and while they were talking about the weather Mr. Van Slooten got up and walking quickly to a desk near one of the windows, took from a drawer a big revolver of the Mausermagazine pattern, and instantly placing the muzzle close to his head, discharged it. The bullet passed through the top of the head. Mrs. Van Slooten fainted, and after carrying her from the room Dr. Morton reported the occurrence to the police. He said that Mr. Van Slooten was evidently insane and that he had been so quick in securing the revolver and using it that it was impossible to stop him.

Mr. Van Slooten was born in New Orleans in 1853. His father, John Van Slooten, participated in the revolutionary movement in Germany in 1848 and came to this country as a refugee. He was acquainted with Carl Schurz and other German revolutionists who settled in this country. Young Van Slooten had the distinction of being the youngest graduate in the University of Virginia, securing his degree as a mining engineer when 19.

that Van Slooten would have an easy victory.

This was evidently the candidate's own opinion, for after making a handsome contribution to the campaign fund, he withdrew entirely from sight. He was frequently billed to speak at meetings in the district, but never put in an appearance, invariably sending a nice little note, apologizing for his absence on account of pressing business. When the campaign was in full swing, the opposing orators started to cry, "Who is Van Slooten?" some of them intimating that he was a political myth.

Meanwhile "Honest Dan' Bradley, an independent democrat candidate with the republican indorsement, swept through the district night after night, summonling his mysterious opponent to come to the front and debate the issues with him, but election day came and went with Mr. Van Slooten still an invisible candidate. He went down in the democratic wreck of that year. Mr.

B., Dec. 20.—An Associated Press despatch, stating that Mr. Means was now on the way to Sydney with three carloads of negroes, ing shown to an official of the Steel npany tonight; he said the company found it absolutely necesary to import these people for work in connection with the coke ovens, of which Mr. Means is superintendent of the blast furnaces. There are now about fiftyfive negroes working in connection with these departments of the work. The work which these people will be given to do is that which native labor would not undertake to any extent. The Sun's reporter saw a mem the Bricklayers' Union, who, speaking unofficially, said that they would offer to objection to the company bringing these men into Sydney. "It is," he said, "for the people of Sydney to say whether these people should be allowed to come and work here or not."
