

Mt. A. University Ends A Successful Year

Pres. Borden gives encouraging report of the year
—Tribute to former Mt. A. Students fighting Empire's battle.

Report of President of The University

Sackville, May 25.—Pres. Borden in his annual address at the closing of the university tonight said:

Notwithstanding the financial stringency and the counter attraction of the war, the past year has been one of the most successful in history of the university. The total registered attendance has been 232, and the scholastic results have been highly satisfactory.

Our students' council has continued its work in directing the internal economy of the residence in its usual effective way. In fact, the battle for good government is won, when you get a body of loyal, contented, self-respecting men such as we have at Mount Allison, organized in the spirit of true democracy. Under such conditions, the solid common-sense of the most dominates and controls the whole.

One of the most helpful and inspiring features of the year is found in the organization and work of the officers' training corps. A grant was obtained during the year from the Dominion government for the purpose of fitting up our Lingley hall gymnasium for militia purposes. As a result, we have a most commodious drill hall, and a building that will lend itself admirably, when properly equipped, to the general purposes of a college gymnasium. We purpose spending a few hundred dollars during the year to install equipment which will make our gymnasium one of the most attractive features of our college life.

The inspection, a few days ago, of our officers' training corps, resulted in the passing of 139 of our men as "efficient." A further examination will be held immediately after closing of those who are seeking lieutenant's certificates.

The high average of health maintained throughout the year, and the immunity enjoyed from all serious illnesses, I attribute very largely to the regular and wholesome exercise thus obtained.

After twenty-five years of deficits, it is a great pleasure to be able to report the prospect of closing the year's accounts with the balance on the right side. This is specially gratifying, in view of the fact that in the past four years, since I have been connected with the university, we have increased the amount paid out in salaries by six thousand dollars. This result is in part due to the income from the increased endowment contributed by the generous friends of Mount Allison during recent years.

We thought, a year ago, that the erection of a new science building was within our grasp, but the stringency and general distraction resulting from the war have rendered such an undertaking impracticable. Our needs, however, are as urgent as ever, and we are confident that the splendid work done by our faculty in applied science will, in the near future, be done under the better conditions of the equipment for which we have so long waited.

The friends of Mt. Allison are beginning to understand that there is no department of Christian activity that yields such large dividends in the shape of cultured, efficient leadership for church and country, than a Christian college like Mt. Allison.

The improved financial conditions already resulting from the gifts of our friends, will, in my opinion, justify our recommending the board of regents to appoint two additional professors. Dr. Smith has, for forty-four years, filled the chair in classics with conspicuous ability and erudition. He is widely known as one of the ablest classical scholars on this continent, and is loved and honored by every student who has had the privilege of listening to his lectures. I have been telling Dr. Smith that it is due to the college and to his many friends and admirers, that he devote the best energies of the remainder of his life to the work of compiling, for the use of posterity, the mass of local history stored away in his capacious memory, and in editing some of the classical works which he has so copiously annotated. In order to give him leisure for this work, I am recommending the appointment of an associate professor to relieve him of part of the work of his department.

Chairs in Biology and Social Science

We have had under consideration for several years, the establishment of a chair in biology and social science, and I am satisfied that the time has come for such an advance movement.

Still another appointment has been made necessary by the resignation of Dr. Dwight, who has acceptably filled the chair of philosophy for the past three years. The departure of Dr. and Mrs. Dwight, who have filled such a large and interesting place in the social and intellectual life of the community, will be greatly regretted by their many friends.

It will be of interest to you to know that I am prepared to recommend to the board the appointment of three men of conspicuous ability and successful teaching experience to fill these positions.

I can hardly trust myself to voice the one thought that has doubtless been filling the minds of many as we have been assembled here in our convocation exercises. We have all been thinking of our thirty or more Mount Allison boys now in the firing line on European battlefields. Like Tennyson at his Christmas feast, we have been conscious of the mute shadows of those who have departed watching all. We perhaps have been thinking of Gordon Boone, one of the popular and beloved students of other years, lying stark on the field of battle, of Winthrop Bell, a brilliant graduate of the class of 1904, eating his heart out in a German dungeon; of Don Trapp, reported missing, and, if alive, possibly suffering a living death in a German prison; of one of our own townsmen and a Mt. A. graduate of the class of '99, George R. McCord, who resigned a safe and lucrative position in the rear to take his place in the very fore front of battle; and how many others we know not of the brave boys Mount Allison has delighted to honor, who today may be lying, their pale faces turned to heaven, in the "No man's land," where, between the "felled incensed points of mighty opposites," no one dares to reclaim the bodies.

Of these men, we may repeat the last written message found on the last survivor in that ill-fated Antarctic expedition, who, facing death, penned the words, "For the greatness of England, my nation."

While Mount Allison mourns, Mount Allison may claim a little fraction of the glory of our Canadians, the fame of whose splendid heroism still rings around the world.

Address to the University Graduating Class by Dr. Borden

My Dear Young Friends:

Now, after these years of pleasant social and intellectual intercourse, we have come to the parting of the ways. There are many things I would like to say to you, but I have no doubt that you feel that in the past months you have been benefited with good advice.

There is, however, one thought that is suggested by the events that are growing up upon us in these most momentous days in human history. The conviction thrusts itself upon me that one clear outcome of this year of carnage and clash of human passions will be the teaching of the moral and religious importance of moral and religious values.

Germany will be judged in the end, not by her splendid feats of arms nor by her unrivaled military equipment that is the amazement and dismay of the world, but she will be weighed and found wanting by the standards of the Prince of Peace. Her vaunted doctrine that "might is right" will leave her shattered and broken, materially and morally bankrupt, the contempt of an outraged world. But the teaching of the despised Nazarene will be more than ever the standard of human conduct. Germany's contempt for truth and honor will be the largest factor in her final defeat.

The Englishman is being tried out as never before. He is a slow starter, but a strong finisher. He is only now beginning to understand that England is at war. He is no quitter. He plays the game to the end. The issue that is testing him today more than the clash of arms, is the question of right. Shall he keep the rules, shall he play the game fair with an enemy that breaks treaties, starves prisoners, outrages a neutral nation, and murders helpless women and children? Let us pray that England's answer to Germany's prayer, "God punish England," may still be, "God forgive Germany."

You are English in your parentage, in your ideals, in your love of trust. You are proud of your nationality, proud of the Empire to which you belong, proud of the Canada whose honor you uphold.

My last word to you is—Play the game hard and keep the rules, even when your blood is hot.

One of our boys, a little while ago, in a fierce football contest, would not let Mount Allison score after the referee had given the point to our team, because he alone knew that the ball was not over the line.

Never let yourselves down to the level of a greedy and unscrupulous opponent. Now, when Canada is calling for men she can trust, when she is turning with nausea from the charges and counter-charges of political corruption that fill the papers, now, that every weak spot in our business and political machinery is being tried out as never before,—while the greed of our merchants and manufacturers is making honest Canadians ready to disown their country, now, when the splendid courage of our boys on the battlefield is being clouded by contemptible political chicanery at home, Canada is calling, as never before, for men of high purpose and strict integrity. She needs the hand-picked men of our Christian college. I am satisfied that, wherever duty calls, whether it be to charge into a deadly hall of shrapnel or to manufacture honest boots for the men who are fighting for you, you will play the game, and play it fair.

God bless you, my dear young friends. We have learned to love you, and are sorry to part.
