

SHE NOW WALKS AS WELL AS EVER

Mrs. Harper Gains 20 Pounds and Health Is Restored by Taking Tanlac.

"When I began taking Tanlac I only weighed one hundred and eight pounds, but I now weigh one hundred and twenty-eight," said Mrs. S. Harper of 30 Bond street, Toronto, Ont.

"Last year I had a case of influenza that was so bad I thought I was never going to get well. When I finally did get up I was in a terribly run-down condition. I suffered terribly from indigestion after every meal, and had frequent attacks of dizziness.

"My feet hurt me so I could hardly walk, and I had a hard time getting about. I couldn't sleep and got up every morning feeling all tired out. All my strength seemed to be gradually slipping away from me and I actually fell off from a hundred and forty-six pounds to a hundred and eight.

"But I took Tanlac on the suggestion of a friend, and it's just wonderful the way it has relieved me of all my troubles. Two bottles put me in fine condition, but I took two more just to be sure of clinching the good work. I have gained back twenty pounds of my lost weight, am strong and well, my feet no longer hurt me, I can walk anywhere I want to, and do my work with ease and feel like a different person altogether. I think people are foolish to suffer when they can get Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in London by Standard Drug, Limited, and by an established agency in every town.

BRANDS SECTION OF NEW PLUMBING ACT A 'TRADE MEASURE'

Dr. Cunningham Makes Cautious Comments—"Distorts Meaning," Says F. A. Dallyn.

A preliminary understanding by which provincial plumbing regulations will not be too strictly applied to local cases was reached by F. A. Dallyn of the provincial board of health and the local board of health at a meeting Tuesday afternoon. The points of difference between the local body and the provincial board centered on "back venting." The provincial regulations maintain that a certain amount of this is necessary, while Dr. O. I. Cunningham, chairman of the local board insists that it is a useless expense.

Dr. Cunningham said that the chief argument for back venting had been that it prevented sewer gas from entering the building and carrying disease with it. The theory that it was maintained, and there was therefore no need for protection against it, Mr. Dallyn replied that there were other reasons than health for the existence of the trap.

Under Building Inspector. Chairman Cunningham expressed the opinion that plumbing regulations were not within the sphere of the board of health, but should be under the building inspector. It did not affect public health, Mr. Dallyn said, but pointed out that regulations drawn up by the city would still be subject to the approval of the provincial board of health, no matter what department did the work.

He claimed that the provincial bylaw was based on the best plumbing practice of the past 60 years. The hardship which back-venting might cause in some cases by additional expense had been foreseen, and a clause was inserted in the act by which special exceptions could be made. The London bylaw had completely eliminated clauses requiring back-venting, and the provincial authorities could not agree to that. He claimed that the additional cost of installing back vents was equalized by the fact that repairs could be carried out more cheaply than on non-vented systems.

The debate became lively at several points. Dr. Cunningham criticized the fact that the provincial regulations had been drawn up largely on information from the plumbing trade. Mr. Dallyn replied by asking where else such information was to be had. "The plumbers' guild in Toronto is one of the best organized, self-instructing guilds in the country," he declared.

"They carry on education in their craft and are thoroughly up-to-date in their science. Toronto has one of the best sets of regulations on the continent."

Plumbers Were Jailed. Dr. Cunningham remarked that such might be the case at present, but that in a few years the government had seen fit to investigate the trade there and send some of its members to jail. Mr. Dallyn said the doctor should be more specific in statements of that kind if they were going to be the press. There was no further discussion on this point.

The chairman also claimed that a section of the act which said that the approval of the "provincial board, the trade and other governing bodies" must be obtained for innovations in plumbing, "branded it as a trade measure."

Monthly Reports Received. Aside from the discussion little business was transacted owing to the absence of Dr. W. S. DeBorham. The monthly reports of the plumbing inspector and the sanitary inspector were received.

Dr. Cunningham commented on the fact that the city could only approximately 40 cents yearly on the health of its citizens, whereas private corporations often spend $2 or $3. He also pointed to the large expenditures proposed for fever houses, which would save only a few lives, while progressive health measures would save hundreds.

He advocated the employment of a statistician by the city as a means of getting a better grasp of the city's public health work.

That modern discoveries and inventions were the signs of the coming of Christ's Kingdom, was the claim of A. M. Graham of Boston, Mass., an International Bible Student lecturer, who spoke to a large audience at the Masonic Temple last evening. This kingdom, he said, is being set up and will supplant all other kingdoms, bringing life, health and happiness to mankind. The distress of the nations since 1914 was a fulfillment of prophecies and was only making the world ready for a better order of society. All institutions not built on righteous principles must go, Mr. Graham declared.

Christ has redeemed the world and was taking possession of it, because the set time of the Divine purpose had come.

The speaker was here under the auspices of the local branch of the International Bible Students' Association.

CANADA IS LAND OF OPPORTUNITIES

Speaker At Life Underwriters' Banquet Says Canadians Are Divinely Favored.

The utmost enthusiasm prevailed at the annual banquet of the Life Underwriters' Association of London held in the Prokos grill rooms last night. Besides dining together and having a most enjoyable evening interspersed with song and story, the members carried away with them many valuable pointers, and lots of profitable inspiration derived from the speeches of the evening.

J. J. Callaghan, president of the London association, occupied the chair, having on his right O. B. Shorty, Toronto, president of the Life Underwriters' Association of Canada, and on his left J. H. Castle Graham, Toronto, secretary of the same organization. These were the speakers of the evening.

A Necessity, Not a Law. Mr. Shorty, in a reminiscent address which covered a period of some twenty years' devotion to life insurance work, said that life insurance was not a mere something to fill in with; it was one of the most important businesses in the world. Insurance was a necessity, not a law that enabled the man who did not get out and work did not get the enjoyment and pleasure out of life. If some folks lost all they had—their life rich for example—and got out and worked, there would be more production, the people would be happier, and it would be a much better and brighter world.

Income was undoubtedly the coming form of insurance. Today, the cry was for good service; the world was crying for it, and life insurance was the best service that could be given. The price of success was hard work, and the man who did not get out and work did not get the enjoyment and pleasure out of life. If some folks lost all they had—their life rich for example—and got out and worked, there would be more production, the people would be happier, and it would be a much better and brighter world.

Education. He advised the life underwriters to get together, to go in for co-operation. The opportunities in Canada today were the greatest in the world. Canadians ought to get down on their knees and thank heaven that they were Canadians, for Canada was the keystone in the arch of the British Empire.

"You men have opportunities in this country that no other men have," said the speaker in conclusion. "What is wanted are strong hearts, steady faith and ready hands. Yours is a great responsibility in a great country."

Mr. Callaghan, in a few concluding observations, thanked the members on his own behalf and that of the other officers, for placing them in charge of the local association's affairs for another year. He urged upon them to increase their membership and to make 1921 the best year in their history.
