A Chat with our Readers the greater part of our circulation It almost seems unnecessary to talk through the recommendation of our readers, and this is why we emphasize to our good friends, our readers, about The Western Home Monthly, and yet we the importance of any little thoughtfulbelieve it is worth while speaking and ness which you may care to exercise on our behalf. This idea of getting sub-scribers for us is by no means a onewriting about. In this opinion we venture to think that we are shared by at least 40,000 readers who readily spend sided proposition. Every new subscriber their good money in order that not a means a step to the advancement of the single copy of the magazine should fail magazine, and those of our readers who to reach them during the twelve months. Few, if any of them, would be happy without it, and with the passing years their interest and regard have wonderfully increased, so that now great num-bers consider it their duty to bring its merits under the notice of their friends. While people complain that at present While people complain that at present the West is undergoing a period of stringency, nothing of that nature is noticeable in our subscription depart-ment. Our mail bag is bigger than ever and cheerfully optimistic. Old and new subscribers are remitting daily from farm, ranch, village, town and city all throughout, the West, and sometimes throughout the West, and sometimes from very remote corners of it. For instance, one subscriber wrote us today, sending us not only his own yearly sub-scription, but that of five others. He is in the remarkable position of living two hundred miles from a railroad. In his isolation he finds The Western Home Monthly a cheerful and never-failing friend, and while comrades are few time does not hang wearily. Letters ap-preciative of the progress of the publication reach us by every mail, and we feel that the appearance and character of this very issue is the highest evidence yet shown of what we are accomplishing in presenting a healthy Canadian magazine that is of interest to man, woman and child. Our increasing circulation is naturally most gratifying and encouraging to us, for circulation is the life and pulse of every periodical; it is the fundamental without which no great structure can be erected. The Western Home Monthly was founded fifteen years ago, when the territory ex-tending from the Great Lakes to the Pacific Coast was sparsely settled in comparison with today. It quickly made its way, found a place in the affections of the people and in every way kept pace with the influx of population. It has grown in strength, favor, and influence. In some districts it is rare to find a home that does not receive the magazine. For instance, in one Alberta city we find that no fewer than three hundred subscribers are paid up to the end of the year 1916, while it is a regular thing to have thousands of our readers pay two years in advance. We are very grateful to our subscribers of former days who have so generously contributed time and thought to the welfare of the magazine. We are proud of their friendship, proud of the standing we have won among the many publications that are published in the West, and we hope to continue to keep The Western Home Monthly at such a high standard as will always merit their regard and confidence. Summer is a very busy season for most of our readers, but even while in the midst of work preparatory to the harvest, many opportunities are afforded our friends of saying a good word for The Western Home Monthly. Some of your neighbors may be recent arrivals in the "Great West" and they would ap-preciate your courtesy in drawing their attention to a magazine which they could really enjoy reading. We obtain have been on our mailing list for any length of time will readily concede that we are constantly adding new features and making The Western Home Monthly more and more attractive. When you come to Winnipeg for the Fair don't forget to look us up and renew your subscription. The majority of our readers renew promptly, and it might be remarked that a renewal is the surest sign to the publisher that the periodical is to the publisher that the periodical is appreciated. The address tag on the cover always shows to what date your subscription is paid, so that, as a matter of fact, it is quite unnecessary for us to write and tell you when to renew. By taking an active interest in your sub-scription and promptly renewing when scription and promptly renewing when the time comes, you save us a great deal of trouble and, in addition, insure for yourself uninterrupted receipt of the magazine. Some of our readers who on failing to renew, have been cut off on failing to renew, have been cut on our list, and have expressed surprise at our high-handed attitude. A magazine, however, should be paid for the same as anything else, and while some pub-lishers are philanthropic enough to take long chances in this respect, we cannot, and only guarantee continuous receipt of The Western Home Monthly to those whose subscriptions are paid in advance.

Billimun, Sask., May 24, 1913. Dear Sir:—The April issue of your magazine found its way through the mail to my shack and, being pleased with it, I unearthed a dollar which you will find enclosed as a first subscription. While smoking after dinner one day I took up the copy I received to find what it contained, and it was the middle of the afternoon before I remembered to go out plowing again, so I'm not sure if its a good magazine for a bachelor to take. Dear Sir: I have just received the last issue of your valuable Western Home Monthly and, on looking at the wrapper, I found out that my subscription runs out next month. I have taken it for a year and a half now, and I would like to thank you for the pleasure it has given me during that time. I like reading it very much during the long winter months. I think I will come to a close by sending you a dollar for the book for another year.
