WEAKNESS
OF MEN AND WOMEN

Could we read the hearts of every man we meet, what a load of sorrow and despair would be disclosed. Indiscretions and Blood Diseases have caused more physical and mental trouble than all other causes combined. They strike at the foundation of manhood; they sap the vital forces; they undermine the system, and not only for the sufferer but for the family circle, but they may even extend their poisonous fangs into the next generation. If you have been a victim of early sinful habits, remember the seed is sown, and sooner or later you will reap a harvest. If your blood has been diseased from any cause, do not risk a return later on. Our New Method Treatment will positively cure you and you need never fear any return of the disease. We will give you a guarantee and send to that effect. We warrant you, sincerely against the promiscuous use of mercury, which does not cure blood poison but simply suppresses the symptoms.

WE CURE OR NO PAY.
Don't Let Your Life be Drained Away, which weakens the intellect as well as the body. There is no room in this world for mental, physical or sexual dwarfs. HEART DISEASE.

SOME OF THE PECULIAR ASPECTS OF THIS DREAD MALADY.

Anger, Hate, Tobacco and Excess of All Kinds Forbidden to its Unfortunate Possessor—The Fear of Death That It Entails.

A lawyer was talking with a friend when a sudden pallor came over his face. Thrusting his hand quickly into a waistcoat pocket he drew out a small phial, from which he poured two or three pellets into the palm of his hand and swallowed them. He was a stout, robust man, having every appearance of health. His friend exclaimed:

"Why, Jack, what's the matter? What are you taking those pills for?"

Jack smiled grimly.

"There is something the matter with my heart," he replied. "Now and then the machine gets out of order. Some of the wheels don't work or a cog slips. If at those periods I can get those little pellets of strychnine down quick enough, the difficulty is fixed up for the time being. But one of these days the poison will get in its work too late, and then—"

The clasp was supplied by a look more eloquent than words.

"What is the nature of your heart affection? Have you been examined?"

"Yes, I presume that in 25 years I have been examined by 50 physicians. But no two of them ever agreed as to the exact nature of my disease."

"What are your symptoms?"

"The first and most prominent symptom is the fact that I am constantly made aware that I have a heart. Either it is beating so slowly that I can scarcely feel it or else it is racing like a Corliss engine at full speed. At night I can hear it croaking and straining like an old schooner off Point Judith in a storm. I have often smiled to myself in the dark hours just before dawn when I have been awakened by some frightful struggle on the part of my heart to keep up its natural rhythm to think how some strong man, a baseball player or an athlete, who never knew he had a heart, would act if such an attack came upon him suddenly."

"Oh, it is only a case of dyspepsia," said his friend. "I often have green feelings around the heart myself."

"Yes, that's what all your friends tell you," said the lawyer. "They want to cheer you up. It's a good thing that they do. Heart disease is naturally depressing. Consumptives always believe they are going to get well, but a man whose heart is affected is positive that he won't live a week."

"I suppose the condition of your heart prevents you from running?"

"Yes, and any form of severe physical exercise. I wouldn't run a block for $30,000. I am never in a hurry to catch a car. I usually take from two to three minutes to walk up the stairs of the elevated road."

"What effect does heart trouble have upon the mind?"

"Well, I suppose that depends upon the man. If he be of the highly imaginative type, the consciousness that his heart is diseased is always depressing. There are times when he is perfectly quiet or when the heart is gently stimulated by poisons, such as strychnine or alcohol, that he is comparatively free from distressing symptoms. But the knowledge that his heart is weak never wholly leaves him. It follows him everywhere. He dare not drink because he is afraid of overstimulation and consequent palpitation. He must not use tobacco because the weed has a depressing influence upon his life pump. He dares not permit his temper to get the better of his judgment. The heart is peculiarly susceptible to anger. Should a man grossly insult him he must grin and bear it, for both the passion of resentment and the physical effort required to place a blow would result in more injury to the man himself than to his enemy."

"I can see from your remarks that heart disease has some moral advantages."

"Yes; it certainly is a deterrent so far as alcohol, tobacco and anger are concerned. In fact, heart disease is a great asset to vice of any kind. It keeps up a row even if a man tries to do a little loving."

"Is there any pain?"

"Not in the sense that the word is generally understood. If your finger is caught in a door crack, there is a vivid sense of suffering, but no fear. With heart trouble there is no acute pain, but plenty of uneasiness and a full sense of weakness. Anguish is the better word to describe it."

"I have been walking along a street, feeling in my normal condition, when a chain is opened in the sidewalk and I find myself deep and deep, and I have stood on the brink trembling and sweating with apprehension. A feeling of such awful weakness and apprehension has come over me that I have been paralyzed speechless. There was absolutely no physical indication that anything had happened, but the mental appreciation was frightfully appalling."

"At such times my heart had telegraphed my brain that it was tired. It had been pumping away in my breast ever since I was born, never stopping. And now, in some inscrutable manner, which the wisest of doctors can give no rational explanation of, it has stopped beating for the fraction of a second. But in that brief space of time all the organs of the body have been notified that something is the matter with the engine."

"You stand hesitating on the brink of another existence or annihilation, listening to see if the engine will resume its old time beat. That is the time that your clammy fingers reach for your waistcoat pocket. In your haste you take a double dose. Slowly the noble organ responds to the stimulus, and you are saved for the time."

"I believe that I make no exaggeration in the statement that I have really to all intents and purposes died a thousand deaths. But such is the wonderful elasticity of the mind, so buoyant is hope, that after the most severe of these attacks it leaves no lasting impression. But I naturally try to get the little bottle out quick."

Content Either Way.
"People are always content with their children," said Mr. Crusty.

"Yes," answered Mr. Dusty. "If a boy is diffident, they say he is naturally reserved, and if he is belittled they say he is sure to make his way in the world."

Single Ever.
I called her my wild Irish rose and asked her to marry me.

"But wild roses are always single!" cried she, with a mocking laugh.—Detroit Free Press.

Bile Poisons, Liver Disorders, Headache, Biliousness and Constipation are Thoroughly Cured by

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

There is no single organ in the human body which exerts such a wide influence over the other organs as does the liver. It has been well named the regulator of the system.

Once the liver grows sluggish and fails to filter bile poisons from the system, there comes pain, disease and death. The head aches, the tongue is coated, the bowels become constipated, the digestive system is thrown out of order, and foul impurities, that should be removed from the body, are thrown back into the blood streams, to find their way to the weak spots of the human frame.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have a direct action on the liver, and bring back the liver to its normal condition. Nearly everybody is familiar with the extraordinary virtue of this famous treatment. Here is an example of the letters received from cured ones:

Mr. John Skelton, the well known bridge-builder of 101 Sherwood street Ottawa, states:—

"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for kidney and liver derangements, brought on by exposure, and find them better than any pills or medicine I have ever used."

"They cleaned my system and made me feel healthy and vigorous and better in every way. I can recommend them as the best liver and kidney medicine that I know of."

Mrs. G. Bird, Harrison, Ont., says:—

"I have suffered agonies from such headache and dizziness, often having to take to my bed. Reading of your celebrated Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, I tried a box of them. They indeed are wonders—relieve quickly."

Mr. James Baird, postmaster, Coneseon, Ont., states:—

"It gives me and my wife much pleasure to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills as a family medicine of superior value. We use them in preference to all other pills in our family and I might here state that they cured me when suffering from biliousness, and also cured my wife of sick headache, from which she suffered severely."

IN JANUARY

The Ontario Legislature Will Meet—So Says the Provincial Premier.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—It is our intention to have a session of the Legislature early in January," said Premier Ross, when asked in regard to the report in a morning paper that a session of the House was to be held in December and the dissolution of the Parliament to follow in April. The Premier stated that the newspaper was barking up the wrong tree when it predicted a session before the year was out. "That article was evidently inspired by the publication of a receipt and expenditures for Ontario for the past nine months. The public can see that the government has not the bill passed last session, extending its life."

Candor is the brightest gem of criticism.—Disraeli.

On the belief in luck have augurs, diviners, fortune-tellers, all traded from time immemorial to the present age. They "calculate" the incalculable, and, necessarily, arbitrary dogmas take the place of a logical basis on which to work out their schemes. They rely on the luck of odd numbers; in them the imperial phantom—either in birth or chance or death—loves to reside. Seven has always been a number to conjure with, and the seventh child of a seventh month, born in the seventh month comes clad in a mysterious panoply of foreknowledge absolute; while nine was at one place and period looked upon as a symbol of Deity. Great men will have their lucky day or month, as one of the Caesars gave his name to the eighth month, that in which the most fortunate events of his life had occurred. The blood of a great family like that of the Stuarts or the Bourbons, for instance, in station to carry with it, even in its collateral branches, the taint of that ill-success, ill-health, which is summed up as ill-luck. Certain gems, such, for instance, as opals, are esteemed as stones of ill-omen—talismans reversed. It is not, of course, that they carry with them ill-luck to their wearers or owners. The truth of this superstition is demonstrated by the violent deaths which have befallen unlucky opal wearers. Have they not succumbed to the ill-luck attending a gem, to gain possession of which a fellow creature has not hesitated to shed their blood? No doubt it is very unlucky to awaken the covetousness of a robber and a murderer.

HOW TO GROW THIN.

Remarkable Effect of Abstaining From Water—Not Hard to Do.

The most popular means of reducing adipose tissue just now consists of abstaining completely from water or an excess of any other liquid at meals. Encouraging stories are told of the amount of flesh lost in this way, and there is no doubt that the method is highly effective. Of course coffee for breakfast is not included in this regime, which does, however, prohibit any liquid whatever at luncheon or dinner. For any hour preceding the meal no liquids must be taken, and to make the cure effective one hour should be allowed to elapse before anything is drunk.

This process is not nearly so difficult as it seems. The most confirmed drinkers of water with their meals, men and women who are never satisfied unless they drink four or five glasses of water during a meal, have found that after two or three days they have become entirely accustomed to doing without so much liquid. The effects of this sort of abstinence are really remarkable. Like all methods of reduction, they are first shown in the face as the cheeks lose the puffed and bloated look that goes with undue stoutness. All of the athletic training farms follow this system, which is as good for the general health as it is for the reduction of flesh. The prohibition against water or any liquid greater in amount than a wineglass is strict. Not until an hour after eating can water be taken, and then there may be no limit to the quantity of it.

With a Difference.

One is sometimes startled at the discovery of a new and most disagreeable force in a single word, when that word is applied to himself to characterize some unpleasant fact of which he has long been aware.

"Don't call me fleshy," said a lady of magnificent proportions. "I don't object to my size, but I simply can't bear to hear that word."

Another woman has not the least desire to marry, but can't endure to be called a "spinster."

Not long ago a pretty woman in the thirties announced her intention of taking a somewhat extended trip alone, and ended with the remark, "An old maid like me doesn't need an escort."

Then Marjorie, the little maid of the family burst into a torrent of tears.

"You're not an old maid, auntie!" she wailed. "You're not. I can't bear it!"

"But I am, Marjorie," said her aunt, laughing. "Why, it's a nice thing to be. I like it."

"Oh, but you're not, you're not!" cried Marjorie, and she rushed off to the study to ask, passionately, "Papa, is auntie an old maid?"

"No, dear," said her father, soothingly, "not at all. She is only a postponed bride."

That proved wondrous comforting. The tears were speedily dried, but auntie herself was somewhat electrified when a caller came that afternoon to hear the little girl repeat sweetly, and in a tone of triumph, that no one could suggest her ceasing to repeat the remark:

"Did you know Aunt Helen is a postponed bride? Isn't it nice?"

The Ethics of Luck.

On the belief in luck have augurs, diviners, fortune-tellers, all traded from time immemorial to the present age. They "calculate" the incalculable, and, necessarily, arbitrary dogmas take the place of a logical basis on which to work out their schemes. They rely on the luck of odd numbers; in them the imperial phantom—either in birth or chance or death—loves to reside. The truth of this superstition is demonstrated by the violent deaths which have befallen unlucky opal wearers. Have they not succumbed to the ill-luck attending a gem, to gain possession of which a fellow creature has not hesitated to shed their blood? No doubt it is very unlucky to awaken the covetousness of a robber and a murderer.

Tread in a Bowdler.

A remarkable flint bowdler has been discovered in Leazes, England, and is now in the possession of Chas. Dawson, F.G.S., of Uckfield. In a cavity within the bowdler was found a full-grown toad, which must, when young, have entered the hole in the stone by a small aperture. There the unfortunate prisoner waxed to adolescence, and probably he may have died of chagrin on finding that he had delayed his exit too long, for the hole afterward became silted up. The bowdler, which is shown in section and also with the pieces replaced, was exhibited at the last meeting of the Linnean Society, and is eventually to be placed in Henry Willett's collection at the Brighton Museum.

Not Disposed to Dispute.

Aunt Hannah—Oh, you fool of a girl! Just because a man tells you you are the prettiest woman in the world and the wisest and sweetest you believe him.

Arabella—And why shouldn't I? Do you know, aunt, I kind of think so myself.
