

CHIGNECTO POST AND BORDERER.

SACKVILLE, N. B., OCT. 4, 1883.

Issues in Westmorland.

The reckless partisanship of the St. John Grit press, which stirred into being the Convention at Shediac, is condemned on all sides, and by none more heartily than by the Attorney-General, who visited Westmorland last week, and who openly stated, he declined being held responsible for the utterances of those papers; asserting that his Government intended to persevere in its policy of strict neutrality in Dominion issues laid down at its formation. Westmorland has two candidates, Mr. Killam, who is suspected of having Opposition leanings in Dominion affairs, and Mr. Wells, of opposition proclivities in local affairs. We do not propose to make any invidious comparisons between these gentlemen personally, but to deal with the principles they represent, rather than the men, is a statesmanlike course. We heartily approve of the position of one in Dominion issues. We cordially embrace the local policy represented by the other. A writer feels a natural difference in instituting comparisons between two politicians who are personally his friends, and who, moreover, both maintain lines of policy which he has advocated. This is our position, but we cannot forbear stating our belief that the action of the Convention at Shediac was premature, if not ill advised, notwithstanding the exasperating language of the St. John papers. We believe there was no such terrible crisis upon the country as warranted the very few gentlemen assembled there, taking upon themselves the serious step of initiating a Dominion struggle on a local battle-ground. Sir John's majority in Parliament is still continuing to increase. To supply our people with domestic made goods and fabrics, and to create new classes of industries and employments in the Dominion, is a policy, not only not in danger, but is, every day becoming more fixed, as the permanent policy of the country. No apprehension seems entertained that any secret foe menaces the continued construction of the railway to the Pacific. It has already crossed the plains and touched the foot hills of the Rocky Mountains. It is upon the success of these large measures the Liberal-Conservative party must stand or fall, and it is manifestly a great party, and the far-reaching national designs upon which it was formed, to imagine it is endangered by the election of this or that man in a town meeting or even to that highly important institution, a local assembly. Without desiring to depreciate the work accomplished at Shediac, it seems to us, it promotes the colossal objects of the Conservative party as much as a sou-went guest in the Bay of Fundy affects the north star. A political party can be kept together in two ways, either by party organization and strict discipline, the party bosses whipping the rank and file into line and promptly punishing any show of personal independence, or secondly by a party adopting so wise, liberal and progressive a policy as to compel the adherence of fair and reasonable men. The great Conservative victory of 1878 was one of ideas; independent men inspired by the new cause, everywhere broke loose from the rule of bosses and sundry party claims, to swell the triumphal procession of a revolution. A party elevated by such means into power, cannot be strengthened by a commerce in principles and a purchase and sale of support. The local parties in Ontario, Nova Scotia and Quebec have furnished no real aid to Sir John. In deprecating the carrying of Dominion politics into local issues, the electors have nevertheless to face what seems to have developed into a square interest between the two parties. The Grit party will vote with Mr. Killam and Mr. Wells therefore appeals to the Conservatives. It is to be regretted that the Shediac convention embraced so small a representation of the Conservative party. Had it been generally known that the object of calling the meeting was to select a candidate Sackville, Westmorland and other parishes would no doubt have elected and sent duly accredited candidates to the Industrial Exhibition just closed! The Toronto Globe estimates that there is scarcely a country in the Dominion which could not be made to yield $100,000 worth of honey per annum, and even if that estimate be regarded as extravagant, it is but too evident that our farmers are culpably negligent in failing to harvest the vast honey crop which annually goes to waste on their farms. Among other important points brought out at the Convention was the necessity of provision being made for instruction in bee-culture. There is at present but one Professor of Bee-culture in North-America, and that is Professor Cook of the Michigan Agricultural College, who has this year had under his instruction a class of 40 students. We wish that some of the farmers who read the Post would turn their attention to the matter and at the Agricultural Show next fall give us an exhibit of what the noble county of Westmorland can do in the matter of honey.

Westmorland Election.

Mr. Barron.—The question which naturally presents itself to the vast majority of the electors of Westmorland at the present time is: For whom shall I vote at the approaching Election? The mass of the people can have no possible interest in the result but the public good; and the paramount duty of the elector is to vote for the man whose character and political creed is best calculated for the general benefit of the Country. There are now two gentlemen asking for your suffrages, and it is proper in considering the question asked, to cast a hasty retrospect at the politics of the county for the last twenty-five years, their present state, and the position occupied by the respective candidates.

Sackville Exhibition.

The annual Exhibition of the S. & W. Agricultural Society, held on the 28th ult., was not less successful than usual. The morning was threatening, but excepting a light shower about noon, no rain fell, and the afternoon was very pleasant. The attendance was not quite up to last year, but quite up to the average, and things passed off generally with less friction than usual. While it may be said that the display on Friday was an average one, this is not all we ought to be able to say. Speaking generally of an exhibition, held in the centre of one of the finest agricultural districts in the province, under the auspices of one of the oldest societies, and one which counts on its roll of membership, some of the most intelligent farmers of New Brunswick, it might be expected, under such circumstances, that there would be steady advancement, and constant progress. It is true that the season exercise a very potent influence upon exhibitions, and the drought of this summer has told largely and seriously on the condition of the stock exhibited on Friday that had not been stall-fed and not castrated or operated against a first class show of roots. A while making allowance for the unfavorable season in the direction named, and admitting that in the ladies' department the show was excellent, still we think the display as a whole, was up to the point it ought to be, or might be if the farmers would take hold as they should and bring their animals or articles to the exhibition even if it was some trouble. Nothing can be accomplished in this world without effort, and effort in most instances to be successful must be persistent. We live in an agricultural district, we are proud of our farmers, a very large number of them are prepared to take their stand beside any class of men, either in or out of the profession for intelligence and moral worth. We took no stock in the attempt of our St. John correspondent to belittle the Board of Agriculture and insult the farmers generally, and we are anxious the Sackville exhibition should be the very best local exhibition in the province, and thus it is that we write as we have done. The exhibit of cattle and horses was exceptionally good. Messrs. Black and George's two-year-old steers were ahead of anything ever exhibited, and Mr. Wood's four-year-old steers were equally deserving of admiration, while the row of thorough-breds consisting of some thirty head, presented the admirer of stock to gaze. The horses in the 1, 2, and 3 year old classes were far above the average exhibit and proved beyond a doubt the availability of breeding from thorough bred stock. In the 1 and 2 year old's the first prize was awarded to the thorough-bred horse Beacon, whose fine points, beauty of form and easy action, were easily traced in these colts. The track not being graded is a drawback to the exhibiting of horses. Want of space precluded the making of honor mention in the various exhibits deserving them, but a pair of two-year steers raised by Mr. Buckley, of Amherst, and H. B. Allison's rare collection of plants deserves more than passing notice. Mr. Henry Trueman had a very fine lot of draught horses well worthy of a prize, but for some reason or other, they were overlooked by the judges. The prize list will be found on first page.

The Dominion Exhibition.

Great Success.—Crowds in the City.—Trade's Procession.—Port Elgin Cloth.—Oxford to the Front.—Joggins and River Hebert Coal.—The Model Dairy.

The Centennial Exhibition of 1883 is already almost a thing of the past. The preparations of many months are finished and have culminated in a pageant of industry that can be viewed so rapidly, that in a day or two the multitudes that through the city and flood the streets, will regard the attractions that have ceased to be. It is a great success—beyond anything witnessed in the Maritime Provinces before. So great an exhibit of a people's industry so soon after the great fire had burnt up St. John, is an evidence of the pluck and enterprise of the business men of St. John, that makes them worthy descendants of those Royalists, whose advent it celebrates. The Trades' Procession this morning was a striking affair, but similar one in 1853, at the turning of the first road of the E. & N. A. Ry. The various trades in uniform—bakers, bricklayers, tailors, shoemakers, printers, brass-workers, ironworkers, and numerous bands of music, with applauding crowds on the sidewalks and filling the windows and house-tops, and smiled upon by a glorious sunshine—was a brave sight and not easily forgotten. The Exhibition building and grounds were crowded to-day, by people from all parts of the Maritime Provinces. Rain came in the afternoon and marred much of the pleasure of the occasion. In the main building Westmorland and Cumberland take a prominent place. One side of an avenue is draped with homespun and tweeds from Messrs. J. Reid & Sons' mills, Port Elgin. It embraces some 70 varieties. The pattern and styles are new and fashionable. While it is impossible to make the finest class of goods from our coarse wool, Messrs. Reid are to be congratulated on making cloths that experts can find no flaw in, either as regards design or texture. The Oxford mills have even a larger show than the Port Elgin. Nothing but praise can be said of the samples they show—exhibiting at once the resources of the Oxford mills and the enterprise of the owners. Some of the finest and tweeds rival the best imported. The Spring Hill Coal Company make as usual a fine display of the various sorts of coal they sell. The Joggins Railway Co., has also erected a stand of coal, embracing steam, soft, grate, &c., all of which presents a handsome appearance. The River Hebert Coal Co., makes a most excellent show of coal from their mine—in large masses as well as small for grates. This coal being mined near the surface is slightly discolored by lime. While this somewhat mars the beauty of the coal, it in no way detracts from its commercial value. From the main building, your correspondent wended his way to the drilled where at 3 o'clock, Prof. Shelburne, in an well and able work, and sat and sleep well. I cannot say too much for Hop Bitters.

Dr. Rice and the Rev. Dr. Carman, the newly appointed Methodist Superintendents of the Methodist Church, will reside respectively in Toronto and Belleville. —General Laard has got into his annual row—this time with a volunteer officer of the Oxford Mills. Galt, Sir N. Belleau, Chief Justice Dorion, Principal Dawson, Prof. Kingston, Prof. Steery Hunt. —The cause of Mr. Whitcho's suspension from duty is his coming to the attention of the principal officers of the fish culture in the Dominion was a failure. Mr. McLellan attributes the cause of Canada not getting first prize at the International Fisheries Exhibition to the course pursued by Mr. Whitcho. —LUDWIG, Mich., Feb. 2, 1880. I have sold Hop Bitters for four years and there is no medicine that surpasses them for biliousness, kidney complaints and many diseases incident to this malarial climate. —H. T. ALEXANDER, Sept. 14th, 1880. Hop Bitters Co., Toronto: I have been sick for the past six years, suffering from biliousness and general weakness. I have used three bottles of Hop Bitters, and they have done wonders for me. I am well and able to work, and eat and sleep well. I cannot say too much for Hop Bitters. —SIMON ROBBINS. —The Nova Scotia Provincial Exhibition was closed at Truro on Friday last. The closing address was delivered by the Hon. Mr. Poirer, and closed by a pleasant and appropriate speech.
