GUILTY.

It must not be forgotten that, following the Lusitania tragedy of May 7th, 1915, a coroner's jury at Queenstown, Ireland, brought in this verdict:

"This appalling crime was contrary to international law and the conventions of all civilized nations, and we therefore charge the officers of the submarine which sank the Lusitania, and the German Emperor and Government of Germany, under whose orders they acted, WITH THE CRIME OF WILFUL AND WHOLESALE MURDER before the tribunal of the civilized world."

And this verdict stands on record as the verdict of humanity, and some day, be it early or late, the ex-German Emperor and the late Government of Germany must stand before the bar of the world's justice to receive sentence, not alone for the crime of the Lusitania, but for all those which followed the deliberate and murderous sinking of that ship. The Arabic, the Hesperian, the Ancona, the Sussex, with their precious cargoes of humanity, were in turn torpedoed by German submarines and their helpless passengers and crews left to perish or save themselves as best they could. By the orders of the same individuals, viz., the German Emperor and the German Government of the day, hospital ships were sent to bottom, notwithstanding that the marks of their calling were plainly exhibited by night as well as by day. The Britannic, the Braemar Castle, the Asturias, the Gloucester Castle, the Lanfranc, the Donegal, the Dover Castle, all bearing the sacred Red Cross symbol of mercy, were openly and shamelessly sunk by the underwater pirates of the German Navy, contrary to all the recognized rules of the General Convention. Liners, tramps, fishing craft, easy prey for the sneaking submersible were destroyed by torpedo or gun fire, and the crews abandoned to their fate. The brotherhood of the sea was non-existent so far as Germany was concerned, but that brotherhood has got to be reckoned with. That brotherhood will demand that the guilty murderers of noncombatants receive the penalty due them. The coroner's jury at Queenstown rendered a verdict of guilty. Therefore the guilty ones have to be brought to punishment. William Hohenzollern, residing for the time in Holland, is the arch-criminal. After him come his advisers in crime, beginning with Admiral Von Tirpitz. Shall these go free while the blood of the slain calls for the vengeance of the law? Civilization calls for punishment of the German homicides, and no matter how much English pro-Germans may protest, punishment must be meted out. The Lusitania was butchered to make a German holiday, and until swift justice is meted to the butchers, the world will be unsatisfied. An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth. Man for man, ship for ship, town for town, must be demanded of Germany, and her governments, present and future must be required to deliver up for judicial punishment, those amongst her leaders who have distinguished themselves by special barbarities and brutalities. Amongst these the ex-Kaiser has to be included. His name is particularly mentioned in the verdict of the Queenstown jury. He is the chief violator of the laws of nations, and his punishment must fit the crime. He has experienced many changes of mind, but none of heart. Though abdicated, in his heart he still considers himself the real Emperor of Germany, the Kaiser by Divine right. He has waded through slaughter, not to a throne, but from it, followed by the dying groans and shrieks of his millions of victims. His bloodstained hands can never be washed white, his guilty mind never cleansed of the horrors which he wrought upon the world. Mental punishment, some might say, will suffice, but not so. The ex-Kaiser must be made to suffer physically. He is the Nero, the Caligula, the Domitian of modern history, execrated as these monsters were, in their day. Fear of physical suffering predominated in them and a like fear of bodily pain is part of the Hohenzollern nature. Guilty he stands before an anguished world and that world demands his extradition from Holland and the meteing out of punishment for the sufferings that he brought upon humanity.

At the moment I cannot say what the rates will be, but connecting lines have the matter under consideration, and as soon as I hear from them I will advise you definitely.

I am giving you this information for the guidance of the trade.

Police Court.

Half a dozen of the stalwart residents of Torbay lined up before the Bar of Justice this morning, a penitent expression on their countenances. It appears that they were indulging in a little harmless amusement in their native home, trying their aim in throwing sods at each other. This occupation did not meet with the full approbation of some few members of the weaker sex, and consequently they made complaint. However, these ladies grew remorseful at the last minute and failed to put in an appearance at the court. The case was postponed sine die.

Those Chinamen

In connection with the current talk of the Chinese labor which is to come here, we hear that the Chinks belong to the 500,000 who have been laboring in France since the outbreak of the war. The British Government has decided to distribute them around the Dominions as cheap labor, and that no head tax shall be levied on them. This will be a beautiful place to live in with a few hundred thousand Chinamen running about everywhere, and there is but one consoling thought attached to the whole business—maybe we will then get our linen washed for nothing.

OLYMPIAN DEEDS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.

It is now possible to tell how capt. Bertie Hayes, of the British transport Olympic, which sails this afternoon for Liverpool, won the Distinguished Service Order for sinking two U-boats on May 12, 1918, in the English Channel, off Portsmouth. For this exploit $10,000 was given by the Admiralty to the captain, officers and crew. Both submarines were destroyed at daylight, and the survivors were picked up from them by the American destroyer Davis, which was about a mile away on the port quarter. One submarine came up on the starboard bow of the Olympic, as the mist cleared away, and was rammed immediately. As the bow of the 50,000 ship was cutting her in two, another U-boat appeared on the port quarter, half a mile away, and was sunk by a shell from the six-inch stern gun. Twenty-seven of her officers and men were rescued by the Davis, with five from the U-boat that was rammed. The Olympic sank another U-boat in June, 1916, by gun fire, but as there were no survivors it was not counted as official by the Admiralty. Capt. Hayes has commanded the Olympic since the end of October, 1914, when she figured in the unsuccessful attempt to tow the battleship Audacious after she had been mined. The Olympic has carried nearly three hundred thousand troops since then to Mudros, Alexandria, and from Canada and the United States to England and France, without accident. She has had many narrow escapes from torpedoes, some missing her by barely five feet.

NO HITCH YET.

LONDON, Nov. 15.

When the cruiser Koenigberg, which brought the German delegates, was off the Isle of May, on the Scottish coast, this afternoon, it was met by British vessels which escorted her to Rosyth. The preliminaries, so far, have been carried out without a hitch, and it is not expected the Germans will quibble over details. The discussions probably may end at Saturday's meeting of the delegates.

ANOTHER SURRENDER.

LONDON, Nov. 17.

In compliance with the terms of the armistice the German forces in East Africa, under General Von Lettow Vorbeck, surrendered on Nov. 14, on the Zambesi River, south of Kasama, Northeastern Rhodesia. This official announcement was made Saturay night.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 16.

TWO MORE FORTRESSES.

BASEL, Nov. 17.

French troops Saturday entered Colmar and Mulhausen, two of Germany's great fortresses in Alsace, according to a despatch received here; there was no trouble.

STRAIGHT TALK.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 17.

According to a Berlin despatch, President Wilson has informed the German Government that maintenance of law and order is a prequisite of the armistice, and that if the Russian Bilshevik representatives are received in Berlin, the armistice agreement will be dissolved.

SOLF'S WHINE.

BERLIN, Nov. 16.

(By Wireless to London).—Foreign Secretary Solf has sent a message to Secretary of State Lansing, urgently requesting President Wilson to give permission for a German Commission to imemdiately leave Germany for the United States, so as to personally lay before the American Government the conditions existing here, and to assure the taking of steps to purchase foodstuffs.

CERTAINLY NOT.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 16.

While President Wilson himself had not had the matter brought to his attention to-day, officials regard it as entirely unlikely a commission of Germans will be permitted to come to the United States at this time, under any circumstances.

ALLIES WILL DECIDE.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 16.

Secretary Lansing made public today the text of his reply to radio communications from the German Government, asking modifications in the terms of the armistice with Germany and Turkey. It arranged that the requests would be referred to the Allied Governments and the Supreme War Council and through established diplomatic channels.

BARE NECESSITIES ONLY.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 16.

The problem of feeding Germany is not one of going to the relief, but of relaxing the blockade, "so that they maye secure for themselves the bare necessities that will give stable government," said Herbert M. Hoover, Food Administrator, before sailing for Europe to-day to discuss food measures for the relief of starving people. Unless anarchy can be put down, and stability of government obtained in these enemy states, he said, there will be nobody to make peace with, and nobody to pay the bill of France and Belgium for the fearful destruction done. Justice requires that a government be established, able to make amends for wrongs done, and this cannot be accomplished through spread of anarchy. Famine is the mother of anarchy.

GLAD TO GET RID OF THEM.

LONDON, Nov. 16.

Prisoners of war held by the Germans, will be granted opportunities for returning to their homes without delay, according to a German wireless message picked up here.

MORE GUESTS FOR HOLLAND.

LONDON, Nov. 17.

CURLING, N.F., Nov. 17.

NO SURRENDER.

LAREDO, Texas, Nov. 16.

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, at the Pan-American Labor Conference here to-day, served formal warning that no general reduction of wages or increase in working hours after the war would be accepted without a bitter fight by organized labor. Mr. Gompers issued a statement, inspired by a recent public utterance of Williams Barr, President of the National Foundry Association, that a reduction of wages and longer hours would be the only means to enable American manufacturers to continue to cope with foreign industries after the war. "Notice is given here and now," Mr. Gompers said, "that the American people will not be forced back by either Barr, his Association or all the Bourbons in the United States."

'Cascapedia' May Be Abandoned.

Yesterday morning the Minister of Shipping received a message that the Cascapedia was in trouble, 120 miles W. of Cape Race, and had sent out S. O. S. signals. A later report was that a warship was standing by her, and it was presumed this morning that she would be towed into this port. At 12.30 to-day, however, Shea and Co., received the following message from their agents in Halifax:—

"Our information is that Cascapedia has been abandoned, and all hands taken off by steamer Bellerophon."

They also asked for any information that the agents here could furnish, and it is evident from the wording of the message that they were not giving it as definite or reliable information, but merely as what they had heard. The Bellerophon is supposed to be the warship previously mentioned. The Minister of Shipping had not received any further particulars up to 1.30 p.m. today. The Cascapedia, of the Federal Line, of which Shea and Co. are agents, left Halifax Thursday night for here, with a general cargo, and it is presumed that in the terrific storm of Friday sustained damages necessitating her abandonment.

t the R. C. Cathedral.

[illegible] yesterday His Grace the Arch[illegible]op occupied the pulpit at the [illegible]edral at Last Mass and preached [illegible] the following text:

[illegible]nd the Gentiles shall fear Thy [illegible], O Lord, and all the kings of the [illegible] thy glory.

[illegible]e hath had regard to the prayer [illegible]e humble; and he hath not de[illegible]d their petition.

[illegible]ecause he hath loked forth from [illegible]igh sanctuary; from heaven the [illegible] hath looked upon the earth.

[illegible]hat He might hear the groans of [illegible] that are in fetters; that He [illegible]t release the children of the [illegible]."—(Psalm CI.)

[illegible]e Grace began his discourse by [illegible]er that the momentous and im[illegible]ant events that had transpired [illegible] in the past few days called for [illegible] message from the pulpit that [illegible] Within the past week the wel[illegible] announcement had been made [illegible] the great war which had con[illegible]ed the world for more than four [illegible]y years had been brought to a [illegible]rious and triumphant conclusion. [illegible] announcement had been hailed [illegible] universal joy throughout the [illegible]e world, and in that universal [illegible]cing none united more whole[illegible]tedly than did they in this ancient [illegible]loyal Dominion of Newfoundland. [illegible]ommon with the rest of the Em[illegible] through more than four trying [illegible]s they had borne "the burden of [illegible]ay and the heat," they had borne [illegible] share in the hardships and sac[illegible]s and sorrows of the world war, [illegible] had given lavishly of their treas[illegible]they had given freely of the youth [illegible]eir country whom they could ill [illegible]t to spare; and they had done so [illegible]se they were firm in the convic[illegible] from the beginning that the cause [illegible]hich they had made these sacri[illegible] was founded on the immutable [illegible]ciples of justice and right. It was, [illegible]fore, His Grace said, meet and [illegible]r that they should rejoice in the [illegible]ph of that cause in support of [illegible]h they had made so many and [illegible] great sacrifices.

[illegible]ompted by the instincts of their [illegible] their first impulse was to turn [illegible]prayerful thanksgiving to the [illegible]ghty who in his mercy and good[illegible] had caused the blessed light of [illegible]e to shine forth once more over [illegible]r-distracted world. For that [illegible]less, inestimable blessing of [illegible]e they would send forth to the [illegible]ghty a Te Deum of thanksgiving [illegible]anksiving that hostilities had [illegible]d, that strife amongst the na[illegible] had terminated, and that the [illegible] of arms had been stilled, they [illegible]d and trusted to be revived no [illegible]. But though it was right and [illegible]g that they should rejoice at the [illegible] of peace there were many [illegible]ns that would occur to all of [illegible] why their joy should not de[illegible] into undue exultation, but [illegible]ld be sobered and tempered with [illegible]ration. During the dreadful years [illegible]r, they had passed through many [illegible]ssing periods, through many [illegible] and dreary days when the future [illegible] all uncertain and dim. Through [illegible]any vicissitudes of the past four [illegible] they had borne their reverses [illegible] disappointments and adversities [illegible] spirit of calm equanimity. It was [illegible] for them to bear the successes of [illegible]y in the same serene, prilosophical spirit. It had been indeed [illegible]ing to observe that this note of [illegible]otional moderation and restraint [illegible]been the striking feature of the [illegible]ion everywhere throughout the [illegible]re of the welcome news that the [illegible]had ceased. In every responsible [illegible]nouncement that had been made, [illegible]ning with the inspiring message [illegible] Majesty the King, this subdued [illegible] of self-control and serenity had [illegible] strongly emphasised.

[illegible] Grace went on to say that the [illegible]ns for this were mainly two-fold. [illegible]e first place, mingled with the [illegible]al feelings of gladness which [illegible]present triumph of their arms [illegible]caused there must be associated [illegible]ling of sorow and regret for [illegible] who have fallen in the cause the [illegible]ph of which they were cele[illegible]g. This, he ventured to say, [illegible] the first thought that occurred [illegible] of them, not alone to those [illegible]had given their loved ones in [illegible]use, but even to those who had [illegible] the privilege of numbering any [illegible]eir kindred on their country's [illegible] of honor. They could not but [illegible] with pride mingled with sorrow [illegible]many who had gone forth from [illegible]st them during the past years [illegible] strength and enthusiasm of [illegible] who have given their young [illegible] for their country, and who were [illegible] sleeping in honoured, though [illegible]e unknown and unmarked [illegible] beneath the battle-plains of [illegible]e and Asia. They would be, [illegible] traitors to the memory of [illegible]honoured dead did they not first [illegible] recall their fallen heroes, in the [illegible] of victory and triumph. They [illegible] not and they ought not forget [illegible]eirs was the noblest portion, [illegible] the most glorious share in the [illegible]y which had finally come to the [illegible] for which they dided.

[illegible]econd reason why their rejoic[illegible]ould be subdued was to be [illegible] in the seriousness of the issues [illegible]roblems that lay before them. [illegible]mendous responsibility rested [illegible]e world leaders, those states[illegible]and diplomatists in whose hands [illegible]are extent lay the moulding of [illegible]e of the world. The great [illegible]ad left the Old World in ruins, [illegible]ally and metaphorically. It [illegible]not too much to say that the [illegible] immediately before them were [illegible]ed to become amongst the most [illegible] and the most critical in the [illegible] of the human race. A great [illegible]had been reached in world his[illegible] The cataclysmic events that [illegible]been happening in Europe had [illegible]ed one upon the other with such [illegible]r rapidity that they had not [illegible]me to realize to the full extent [illegible] paramount and far-reaching [illegible]ance. This only did they know [illegible] Old World was to-day shaken [illegible]foundations by a social, political [illegible]economic earthquake and that [illegible] and dynasties and empires and [illegible]ions some of them the growth [illegible] than a thousand years, lay [illegible]d, broken and in ruins. There [illegible]spirit of unrest and discontent [illegible] all society. Millions were [illegible]ace with starvation. The [illegible] of anarchy, disorder and re[illegible] was abroad, and we could [illegible]see what the coming months [illegible]bring.
