I'm no quitter but I guess I don't like to hear 12 o'clock ring at all, at all. Gee, but it's a cinch for me from 12 to 1. I get outside my lunch, and then its mine for the editorial room, where they keep all the big American papers, and ask me whether I don't like reading 'em. Well do you know what I've been thinking lately? I've read a big wad of stuff about this insurance rumpus over in New York, and I ran across the words "Mutual scribers, both in and out of London. Benefit" an awful lot. I asked the boss what "mutual benefit" means. He told me, and when I got it through my crust, I said to myself, that if there ever was anything in the world that means "mutual benefit" it was adver- hour of going to press. All the latest tising. I'm always glad when I see the ads come in. I know it means my pay, and that as long as they keep coming in my job holds good. That's where the benefit for me comes in. where the benefit for me comes in.

Then I take the paper home, and the first thing mother does is to look over the ads to see what's doing. That's where she gets in on the "mutual benefit," and the next day she goes down town and buy's some things she wants that she saw in the ad, and that's where Mr. Merchant gets his share of the "mutual benefit."
