Britain's Eyes on Dominion, Hoping for Vast Addition to Supplies.

[Canadlan Press.]

Montreal, April 1.-A London cable to the Gazette says: "At present our eyes are turned to Canada, for if the rosy hopes entertained in this direction mature, a vast addition will be made to our canty supplies."

This statement, made by Dr. Parkin pefore the Royal Society of Arts yesterday, had reference to the oil supplies of the Empire. In New of the ever-increasing use of oil by the naval and merchant fleets and also by heavy engines and aeroplanes, Dr. Parkin urged that careful geological surveys be made in all the

THE HOLLOW OF HER HAND

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

Author of "Graustark," "Truxton King," Etc.

retired with Miss Castleton to the innerwas in possession of all the facts and was in possession of all the facts and was even then on the point of starting for Europe to see her. Of course, his letter had failed to reach her in time. There was quite a tragic scene in the seclusion of that remote little office, during which Mr. Carroll wiped his eyes and blew his nose more than once, after which he took it upon himself to dispatch a messenger to Sara with the word that he and Miss Castleton would present themselves within half an hour after his note had been delivered.

A telegram had already come from

A telegram had already come from Smith in the far-away Montana town, transmitting news that disturbed him more than he cared to admit. The show-girl was lying at the point The death, and he was having a very hard time of it trying to keep the resolute authorities from swooping down upon her for the ante-mortem statement they desired. It would appear that he arrived just in time to put courage into the girl. He would see to it that any statement she made would be the truth. But Mr. Carroll was not so sure of Smith's ability to avert disaster. He knew something of the terrors of the third degree. The police would fight hard for vindication. The meeting between Sara and Hetty was affecting. Almost immediately the former began to show the most singular was affecting. Almost immediately the former began to show the most singular signs of improvement. She laughed and ried and joyously announced to the protesting nurse that she was feeling quite well again. And, in truth, she got quite well again. And, in truth, she got up from the couch on which she reclined and insisted on being dressed for dinner. In another room the amazed nurse was frantically appealing to Mr. Carroll to let her send for the doctor, only to be confounded by his urbane announcement that Mrs. Wrandall was as "right as a string," and wouldn't need the services of doctor of nurse again for years to come. Then he asked the nurse years to come. Then he asked the nurse if she had ever heard of a disease called nostalgia. She said she had heard of "home-

"Well, that's what ailed Mrs. Wran-dall," he said. "Miss Castleton is the Booth came the next morning. Even as Booth came the next morning. Even as she lay passive in his arms. Hetty denied him. Her arms were around his neck as she miserably whispered that she could not, would not, be his wife, nothwithstanding her love for him and his readiness to accept her as she was. She was obdurate, lovingly, tenderly obdurate. He would have despaired but for Sara, to whom he afterwards appealed.

"Wait," was all that Sara had said, but he took heart. He was beginning to but he took heart. He was beginning to ful geological surveys be made in all the British Dominions, with test drills where conditions appeared favorable. The output in Canada had declined from 788,872 barrels in 1907 to 243,614 barrels in 1912. Referring to the Alberta off products. Dr. Parkin said that it was important that the Canadian Government should encourage the opening up of new fields, thus preventing wild-cat schemes of exploitation.

Hetty deliberately had placed herself in their hands, withdrawing from the conference shortly before Vivian's arrival to give herself over to gloomy conjectures as to the future, not only for herself, but for the man she loved and the women and weakly man with some the woman she worshipped with some-thing of the fidelity of a beaten dog.

Carroll had in his hand the second elegram from Smith, just received "This relieves the situation somewhat, observed, with a deep sigh. "She he observed, with a deep sigh. "She's dead, and she didn't give in, thanks to Smith." Rather clever of him to get a signed statement, however, witnessed by the prosecuting attorney and the chief of police. It puts an end to everything so far as she'is concerned."
"Read again Mr. Carroll, what she had

"Read again, Mr. Carroll, what she had to say about me," said Sara, a slight tremor of emotion in her voice. tremor of emotion in her voice.

He read from the lengthy telegram:

"She wants me to thank Mrs. Wrandall for all she has done to make her last few months happy ones, such as they were. She appreciates her kindness all the more because she realizes that her henefacters must have known every-were. She appreciates her kindness are the more because she realizes that her benefactress must have known everything. Almost the last words she spoke were in the nature of a sort of prayer that God would forgive her for what she had done to Mrs. Wrandall."

"Poor girl! She could not have known that it was justice, not sentiment, that moved her to provide for her," said Sara, "Well, she is off our minds, at any rate," said the matter-of-fact lawyer. "Now, are you both willing to give serious consideration to the plan I propose? Take time to think it over. No harm will come to Miss Castleton, I am confident. There will be a nine days' sensation, but, after all, it is the best thing for everybody. You propose living abroad, Brandon, so what are the odds if—"

"I shan't live abroad unless Hetty reconsiders her decision to not marry me," said the young man dismally. "Sara, you

I had found the right medicine, and after using nine boxes I was once more more more more more unwell a day since."

He sent the maid from the room, and must convince her that I love her better most of his private offices, where without much preamble he informed her that he knew everything. Moreover, Mr. Booth Carrell, I have this to say to your suggestion: I for one am relentlessly opposed to the plan you advocate. There is no occasion for this matter to go to the pubcasion for this matter to go to the public. A trial, you say, would be a mere formality. I am not so sure of that, Why put poor Hetty's head in the lion's mouth at this late stage, after I have protected her, so carefully all these months? Why take the risk? We know she is innocent. Isn't it enough that we acquit her in our hearts? No, I cannot consent, and I hold both of you to your promises."

"There is nothing more I can say, my dear Sara," said Carroll, shaking his head gloomily, "except to urge you to think it over very seriously. Remember, it may mean a great deal to her—and to it may mean a great deal to her—and to our eager young friend here. Years from now, like a bolt from the sky, the truth may come out in some way. Think of a result of a clean-up of the what it would mean then."

Sara regarded him steadily, "There are district effected by the police.

Sara regarded him steadily, "There are but four people who know the truth," she said slowly. "It isn't likely that Hetty or Brandon will tell the story. Professional honor forbids your doing so. That leaves me as the sole peril. Is that what you would imply, my dear friend?" "Not at all," he cried hastily, "not at all. " her head and remarked: "Of course, you never could be quite easy in your minds. There would always be the feeling of unrest. Am I to be trusted, after all? have proved myself to be a vindictive one or the other of you some time and crush you to satisfy a personal grievance? How do you know, Brandon, that I am not in love with you at this '"Good heavens, Sara!" he cried, agape.

"—at this very moment?" she continued. "It would not be so very strange, would it? I am very human. The power to love is not denied me. Oh, I am merety philosophizing. Don't look so serious. We will suppose that I continued along my career as the woman scorned. You have seen how I smart under the lash.

"But all that is impossible," said Booth, his face clearing. "You're not in love with me, and never can be. That! for your philosophy!"

At the same instant he became aware the same instant he became aware hard.

of the singular gleam in her eyes; a liquid Oriental glow that seemed to reflect light on her lower lids as she sat there with her face in the shadow. Once or twice before he had been conscious of the mys-terious, seductive appeal. He stared back at her, almost defensively, but her gaze did not waver. It was he who first looked away, curiously uncomfortable.

"I'll take chances, Sara," he said, with an odd buoyancy in his voice that, for the life of him, he could not explain, even to iffe of him, he could not explain, even to himself.

"Even admitting that such should turn out to be the case," said Mr. Carroll judicially, "I don't believe you'd go so far as to put your loyal friends in jeopardy, Sara. So we will dismiss the thought. Don't forget, however, that you hold them in the hollow of your hand. My original contention was based on the time-honored saying, 'Murder will out.' We can never tell what may turn up. The best laid plans of mice and men oft—"

Sara settled back among the cushion with a peremptory wave of her hand. The loose, flowing sleeve fell away, revealing her white, exquisitely-modelled arm almost to the shoulder. For some strange unaccountable reason Booth's eyes fell.
