SHIPS AND SHIPPING.

Schooner "Penelope" Top-Line Sealer—Several Long Overdue Ocean Carriers Arrive.

The "Cadow Forest" Sight-d Another Victoria Sealer—The "Florida's" Distressing Voyage.

(Special to the Colonist.)

The sealing schooner Penelope, hailing from San Pedro, put into San Francisco on Saturday last with 215 seal-skins on board, having been out over five weeks.

The silver King returned on Thursday refused to clear her, acting on advice from Washington, which stated that it was against the law to hunt otter in Alaskan waters.

Last year's sealing season being a failure through bad luck, restrictions and seizures, the old-time sealers wanted a new business, but all save the owners of the Herman and Edward E. Webster were refused permits to chase otter.

There will be six revenue cutters patrolling Alaskan waters this year, three of which will leave San Francisco some time next month.

and is navigable for hundreds of miles beyond. It is a fine body of water and its usefulness will no doubt be fully realized if the Caledonia is operated on it.

The service rendered by the steamer on the Upper Skeena is not to be abandoned, however, for, according to the report, the vessel is to run intermittently on both rivers although they are distant from each other more than one hundred miles.

Mr. Hall, manager of the Hudson's Bay Company in this city, is at present in the East, and in consequence the report cannot be verified.

TO GUARD AGAINST COLLISIONS. An inventor who believes that the compass can be utilized as a director of approaching danger to a vessel at sea, says he took the idea from observing a violent vibration of the compass needle on a vessel on which he was, caused by the passing at two miles distance of a vessel loaded with steel rails.

On this principle he has constructed a compass which is regulated by a chemical that will not be affected by the magnetic force of the boat's steel.
