

Wages and The Boycott

Subjects Dealt With in Cross Examination of Miners President.

Mr. Mitchell's Evidence Before the Strike Commission Not Ended.

He Considers Eight Hours Day Should Be Limit For Work.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 17.—In the presence of many persons as could be jammed into the Superior court room today, Wayne MacVeagh, for the Erie, and John Mitchell, for the miners, continued their brilliant battle of cross-examination before the Anthracite Coal Commission. The tough president of the union, which calls for a yearly trade agreement, and which means a straight out recognition of the union, was the bone of contention, and although four hours were taken up in a discussion of the question, not much material progress was made. The chief witness called to show the utter irresponsibility of the union, and its inability to make contracts which could be enforced, was the principal argument as to the alleged boycott, and he often had deliberated the miner's president for an assassin. The latter, however, slowly and deliberately gave some reply, but they did not always satisfy his inquisitor, who expressed his admiration of the ability of the witness. Mr. MacVeagh weighed heavily on what he said was a reign of terror in the anthracite region during the period of the strike, and with the assistance of many documents, maintained that it would be utterly impracticable for the companies to enter into an agreement with an organization that could not control its own men.

Uncle Sam's Game of Grab

Fencing off Several Thousand Miles of British Columbia for Herself.

Secret Survey Parties Erecting Monuments as Boundary Marks.

In the quietest possible manner and with great secrecy the United States government has encroached upon Canadian territory to the northeast of Cape Fox and appropriated to itself thousands of square miles of land, lying within the boundaries of British Columbia, and the western of Portland Canal, says the Vancouver Province. Large areas, known as the American "houses of refuge for mariners," have been surveyed along the mountain ridges and across divides in a northwesterly direction towards the interior of the province. In brief, such is the all-important matter to light is not an all-important factor in the case.
