Several took him at twenty, the stable placing five twentydollar bills that netted them a nice two

St. Michael, Polydora and Chamunka came out for the Flash Stakes over three-quarters of a mile. Polydora, being by imp. St. Blaise, the hundred-thousand dollar Derby winner, was a warm favorite, but she was outfooled by St. Michael, who, going to the front after the first furlong, maintained his advantage to the end, winning by two lengths from Mr. Higgins' mare. Mr. Dawes' clever filly Chamunka was running strongly and looking very dangerous, when all of a sudden her saddle girth gave way and her jockey slipped to the ground with the saddle still under him. The filly kept on the even tenor of her way, racing on to the finish and beating St. Michael in by half a length. The funniest feature was that as soon as the post was passed Chamunka stopped and turned as if going in to the weighing paddock.

THIRD DAY.

SATURDAY, MAY 26TH.

Lost her rider.

On Saturday the race officials were nxious, but as the day progressed the sky cleared and the sun made its appearance, greatly to the joy of everybody and with the result that six or seven thousand people witnessed some excellent sport. It was a Seagram day with a vengeance, four out of the six races going to the credit of the black and yellow and rolling the popular distiller's winnings in purses and stakes for the three days up to $6,800 or thereabouts.

For the Don Purse, which set the be lling, there were eight starters. flag fell to an indifferent start with Stonemason having slightly the best of it. Cottonade, Balbriggan and Penniless did not propose that the Seagram horse should have it all his own way, so they ranged up alongside and rounding the course there was quite a battle royal for position on the stretch. Stonemason kept on and swinging on to the best ground outpaced the others. Cottonade once owned by Mr. Hendrie, being on to his heels and just below the betting stand, less than a furlong from home, made a determined challenge for the lead. Penni-less was along side of the mare and they both made an expiring effort. Stone-mason stalled off the attempt of each and finished full of running a length ahead tinished full of running a length ahead of Cottonade, who only beat Penniless on the post by a nose for second place. Balbriggan, thoroughly pumped, came a poor fourth with Laurel, who's evidently not up to her old-time form, fifth. Wist sixth, imp. Osprey seventh and Spring-buck hast. Five youngsters ran for the Woodbine Nursery Stakes and imp. Halfling and Rossmar, owned by Mr. Seagram, finished first an 1 second exactly as they did in the Juvenile Scurry on the first day in spite of the fact that each had to concede weight to the others, the imported fellow giving Mr. Hendrie's Flamboro and the Brookdale Stable's Superior no less than 14 lbs. each, while Mr. Dawe's filly Zana, Brookials Stable's Superior no less than a little in front, the lot got into their 14 lbs. each, while Mr. Dawe's filly Zana, strides and what proved to be a magnificent including her sex allowance, received no race was begun. Saragossa raced by the less than 22 lbs. A good start saw Ross-mar the first to show, with Superior at his shoulders and Halfling close by, followed by Flamboro and Zana. At the end of the first quarter Superior took up the running and led into the stretch, where Rossmar was fourth and Halfling with his load of 125 lbs., was pursuing Superior. Fairly straightened out Regan gave the English colt his head and spring-ing to the front he speedily had the race ing to the front he specify had not rand at his mercy. Rossmar came up in good style and the pair raced in two lengths apart, Flamboro' being third, the same distance away and Superior, badly fatigued, fourth. Poor little Zana was last all the way. The much-vaunted Red Coat race, No there are two of the species—brought out a septette of gentlemen in full hunting, costume, red coats and all, Mr. Latham on Mr. S. S. Howland's Lucknow looking neat and trim in a glossy silk hat, It was a case of clambering over the banks. ditches and rails in any way possible Before the horses had gone any distance two or three looked like giving up, so heavy was the going. Ploughed fields are nothing to the steeplechase at the Woodbine after several days' heavy rain. Every now and then the horses would pitch forward as they splashed into a hole and nearly throw their riders over hole and hearly throw their riders over their heads. As for jumping it was a marvel that they were able to rise to the obstacles at all. Between walking, jog-ging and galloping, Capt. Jack Crean cleverly managed to steer his mount, Prince Charlie, over the two miles and a and landing the thousand dollars including the stakes for first. It looked at one time as if there was going to be no second. Mr. Hayes, who rode the Broadhollow stable's Fireworks, and is accounted one of the best gentleman jocks in America, led over the first jump, but at the wall on the first round gave away to Prince Charlie, the pair forging well ahead of their field. At the rails in the east field on the second Hayes came a cropper, but, remounting, he pluckily continued in the race. Prince Charlie had by this time got a lead of at least three hundred yards. Although he did not press his horse he could not help increasing the distance and ultimately he meressing the distance and ultimately he won by a full quarter of a mile. Fire-works fell again at the hurdle in the stretch, the last in the race, and gave his battered, bruised and torn rider another bad tumble. Allan Wilson, the colored trainer and whipper-in, caught the horse but Mr. Hayes was too much blown to mount again. Wilson seeing Mamood, mount again. Wilson seeing Mamood, who had been loitering by the way, com-ing hot foot got up on Fireworks himself and with elevated elbows stretched out to their utmost limit, looking for all the world like the most approved scarecrow, he rode the race out, beating Mamood by the shortest of heads, amid the greatest anusement and round after round of applause. Waterloo threw his rider, Dr. applause. Waterloo threw his rider, Dr. Campbell, but that gentleman got up again and finished fourth. Athol, Laugh-ing Stock and Lucknow refused their jumps and didn't finish.

Next came the Toronto cup, the richest race of the meeting, being worth at least $1,700 to the winner, $350 to the second and $160 to the third. Mr. M. J. Daly's Copyright won this race last year and being considered of a class equal to being a formidable candidate for the Brooklyn Handicap was thought to have kind of a cinch this year. He was ac-cordingly installed favorite, but that did cordingly installed favorite, but that did not make him wir. Had the track been hard and dry he might have been able to carry his crushing weight of 133 pounds to victory, but as it was he was almost anchored in the mud.
