

be difficult indeed to conceive how a more perfect work could have been produced. The whole subject of anatomy is taken up in such an original and unique manner that what is often considered a dry or uninteresting subject becomes a most fascinating study. We again venture the opinion that no one will ever regret the purchase of this work.

REGIONAL MINOR SURGERY.

REGIONAL Minor Surgery. By George Gray Van Schaick, M. D., Attending Surgeon French Hospital, N. Y., etc., etc. Bound in cloth. Heavy book paper, 226 pages. Profusely illustrated. Price $1.50. International Journal of Surgery Co. N. Y.

THIS work occupies a unique position. Although devoted to minor surgical technics, the same amount of care has been bestowed upon the treatment of each individual condition that it is in text-books accorded only to subjects of major surgery. The aim throughout has been to provide the general practitioner with a book that will afford him such practical information as he can utilize in his routine surgical work. No space has been taken up by theoretical discussions, each subject being treated in a clear and concise manner, yet omitting no detail of the least importance. While in many surgical affections a number of methods are applicable, the writer has selected only those which, in an extensive experience of nearly twenty years in hospital and private practice, have proved most satisfactory. The book is profusely illustrated with original sketches.

WOOD'S REFERENCE HAND-BOOK.

A Reference Hand-book of the Medical Sciences Embracing the entire range of Scientific and Practical Medicine and Allied Science by various writers. A new Edition, completely revised and rewritten. Edited by Albert H. Buck, M.D. New York City. Vol. IV. Illustrated by Chromolithographs and eight hundred and fifty-nine half-tone and wood engravings. New York: William Wood & Co. 1902-Price per Volume $7.00.

THE present volume contains 875 pages, and covers subjects from "Ergot" to "Infiltrations" contributed by a staff of about 115 able writers. As already mentioned in the Canada Lancet in reviewing previous volumes, the press work, binding and illustrations are all that could be desired. These volumes make a complete library, covering the entire field of medical and allied sciences. Many of the articles have been carefully examined, and invariably found to have been well written and thoroughly up-to-date in their matter. Great praise is due both the Editor and the Publishers for the high standard of this work.
