

278; opposes revisionary power of judiciary, 297; moves supreme court have jurisdiction over land cases, 403; moves postponement of question of money bills, 216; wishes to consider money bills and vote in Senate together, 252; opposes requiring oaths from members of State government to observe constitution, 90; discusses national government, 130; insists on sovereignty of States, 136; thinks general government must operate through State governments, 174; thinks States equal, 188; insists on equal rights of small States in Senate, 201; favors compromise, 218; wishes compromise considered, 251; moves supremacy of national law, 267; thinks States should suppress rebellions, 281; would disqualify debtors for office, 330; asks meaning of duties and imposts, 409; opposes power to suppress rebellion in State, 417; moves to limit army in time of peace, 424; moves confession as ground for conviction for treason, 434; favors taxation by requisition, 436; proposes tax on importation of slaves, 442; on committee on navigation acts, 448; favors state control of militia, 453; moves impartial treatment of ports of entry, 460; moves pardon after conviction, 472; withdraws motion, 472; moves to admit new States on two-thirds vote, 488; thinks new States may be created within old States, 488; moves to commit question of making new States within old, 400; thinks Western country may separate from old States, 491; moves power to create States, 491; insists on ratification by State legislatures, 498; opposes constitution, 499.

Mason, George, Va., attends, 17; favors seven years as term for executive, 40; favors election of executive by people, 41; opposes dependence of executive upon legislature, 46; opposes executive power, 54; thinks executive should be protected against legislature, 68; thinks people can not elect executive, 269; opposed to term of executive during good behavior, 272; favors impeachability of executive, 290; favors ineligibility of executive for continuous reelection, 321; favors election of executive by legislature, 324; favors seven years and ineligibility, 325; moves modification of oath for President, 472; thinks President will be elected by Senate, 500; objects to election of President by legislature, 515; moves eventual election of President be limited to three candidates, 517; thinks system of electors autocratic, 518; proposes executive council, 531; rejected, 532; thinks President should not have pardoning power over treason, 571; objects to rule for years and days, 19; favors election of larger branch of legislature by people, 32; favors election to Senate by State legislatures, 74; opposes consent of legislature to be necessary to amend constitution, 80; consideration postponed, 90; opposes legislature to fix compensation for members, 92; urges election to legislature by people, 143; favors biennial elections for first branch of legislature, 145; moves twenty-five years as age of members of first branch, 149; favors ineligibility of members of first branch of legislature to office, 150, 152; thinks fit characters for offices will be found, 154; suggests property qualification for Senators, 172; on committee on representation in Senate, 205; insists on accommodation on representation, 211; moves to consider vote in Senate, 215; favors increase of representation, 220; thinks basis of representation should be fixed, 231; thinks slaves entitled to representation, 234; opposes wealth as basis of representation, 235; favors fixing standard of representation, 238; thinks three Senators from each State too many, 310; moves qualifications for legislature, 326; favors qualifications for legislature, 327; would exclude debtors, 327; favors annual meeting of legislature, 340; favors seven years' citizenship for members of legislature, 355; insists members of legislature must be residents of States, 367; proposes one year, 367; favors vote per capita in Senate, 366; favors long term citizenship for members of Senate, 367; favors majority for a quorum, 376; approves expulsion of members of legislature, 378; favors years and days at request of one-fifth, 379; on publicity in legislature, 381; thinks members of legislature should be inelig-