FOUNDED 1826. A morning newspaper published every day in the year by The World Newspaper Company of Toronto, Limited.

TUESDAY MORNING, JUNE 24.

A Way to Settle the Strike.

Strike conditions in Toronto are being made as tolerable as possible by the people of the city for their own convenience. Nearly everybody has had the experience of being told under the harrow for some time past, and those who understand what it is to meet a doubled expense with a stationary income are ready to extend full sympathy to the striking street-car men who have to meet a 55-cent expenditure on a 36-cent income.

OTHER PEOPLE'S OPINIONS

The World will gladly print under this heading letters written by our readers, dealing with current topics. Space is limited; they must not be longer than one column and written on one side of the paper only.

SAFETY FIRST BATHING.

Editor World: Considering the number of drownings which have already occurred this year, it would indicate that this is liable to be a record year. The writer thinks a little newspaper publicity might do much to help in this line, by calling attention to numerous thoughtless acts of bathers, which might have nasty consequences. For instance, let me point out a couple of thoughtless acts.

A Union Enterprise.

There is a fine line of suggestion in the decision of the Women's Waist and Dressmakers' Union of New York, which brought out a summer hotel with 700 acres of forest hills and an acre lake in the Blue Mountains of Pennsylvania for $85,000. It was a dead bargain, having cost half a million originally, and requiring only $15,000 further expenditure to adapt it to the purpose of a summer resort on a co-operative basis for which the union desired it.

A Line of Cheer Each Day of the Year

By John Kendrick Bangs. (Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) STRIVING AND HOPING. If in the end I miss my goal, I shall not let it vex my soul. I shall not let it vex my soul. There's so much pleasure in the chase, That, whether we shall win or fail, There's joy in striving thru it all. And whatsoever the end may be, I've had fair hope for company.

A 1925 Millennium.

Alexander Hugh McKimhan, of the International Bible Students' Association, which is the Pastor Russell organization whose literature during the war was censured as treasonable, has been speaking at a convention in Brooklyn and announced the millennium to begin in 1925. Those of us who have been familiar since 1866 with predictions of this kind may be forgiven when we recall the long series of dates announced by Dr. Ker, Dr. Cumming, Rev. Mr. Baxter, Dr. Wilde, and dozens of others whose signposts mark the millennial records of the last fifty years.

Kingston Locomotive Co. Says Too Soon for Intervention

Special to The Toronto World. Kingston, Ont., June 23.—In a letter to Mayor Newman, chairman of the civic militia committee, appointed to try and effect settlement of the 650 strikers of locomotive company, G. Wallace, president, states the time is not yet opportune for outside intervention. He states strikers can arrange meeting with company when they desire.

POLITICAL NOTES

No Conservative Convention in Ontario

The convention committee for the provincial Liberal convention, which will decide the leadership of the present opposition in the Ontario legislative assembly and also the policy of the party, meets in Toronto today. Whip Hurdman of Ottawa is in town. He is convener of the convention committee. He will be joined this morning by William Proudfoot, H. H. Dewar, C. M. Bowman and Major Toimie, and they will lay out the business of the convention.

Kiel as Well as Scapa Flow

Latest reports prove that the sinking of the German fleet at Scapa Flow was a premeditated affair, the result of a conspiracy apparently arranged by Admiral de Reuter when in Germany. The vessels not surrendered to the allies and still lying at Kiel were sunk at the same time.

The Thin One: Did you see two friends of yours who came up from Ottawa, on head of any convention of your party?

The Stouter One: I do not think it would be wise to hold a convention. We are leaving that to the Liberals. And Proudfoot's got to show his appreciation of a little judicious chloroform. We were kind to him at the closing exercises.

Other People's Opinions

Hon. N. W. Rowell is getting in wrong more and more in Ottawa and the eyes of erstwhile friends are coldly fixed upon him from Ontario. The Ottawa Citizen, contrasting the present positions of T. A. Crear and Mr. Rowell, says: "Spoken in the house, he speaks disrespectfully of the government's tenderness towards food profiteering."

Other People's Opinions

Mr. Rowell's own nature is not of the warm order. If he is trying to keep a place in Ontario warm for his own eggs at Ottawa can hardly hatch out when such comments as the foregoing are made upon him, it held not be strange, with Mr. Rowell's arguments, leader should find the present opposition's convention so unseasonable that he might well enter it with his coat buttoned up.

The Promoter's Wife

By Jane Phelps. Neil's conscience troubles him. CHAPTER CXIX. Gradually Neil became so engrossed in his business that he neglected every minute of his time. Even his garden was neglected, and I did the best I could with it in the little time I could spare from my care of the house, and other things taken upon myself. My flowers suffered, but vegetables just at that time were very expensive and more necessary to health than flowers. The cost of living had risen rapidly, and all we could save would mean that we would have to live on a reduced scale. I was always tired and out of breath. I was always tired and out of breath. I was always tired and out of breath.

IS IT SO?

BY IDA L. WEBSTER

It seems as if every possible chance should be given the returned man in aiding him to get employment, and in the one in question, persons driving some motor car, in at least one place that we happen to know of, and possibly two or three thousand other spots that we do not know of.

IS IT SO?

The position to which we refer is that of "gasoline dispenser" in one of the many stations throughout the city. In the one in question, persons driving some motor car, in at least one place that we happen to know of, and possibly two or three thousand other spots that we do not know of.

IS IT SO?

Well, the point of the argument in regard to the dress is, that in the war atmosphere, trousers and jackets were quite in form, and young men wearing same caused a certain amount of comment in congested thoroughfares. But today, when women are not only expected to look like women but to act like them.

IS IT SO?

Another part of the argument is that while so many men were at the war it was necessary for women to take the place of men in order that the wheels of industry should not stop. Now the men are home, and a great portion of them, and many of them are in need of work, therefore it surely cannot be feasible or even square to keep girls working around garages.

IS IT SO?

We have referred to a good worker, and she did good work in the days when men were not available, but her work was done for a purpose which was to help the war effort. Now that the war is over, and men are returning, it is not fair to expect women to continue in the same positions.

IS IT SO?

It is not fair to expect women to continue in the same positions. The war was a time of necessity, and women stepped into the shoes of men. Now that men are returning, it is not fair to expect women to continue in the same positions.

Sir Conan Doyle Suggests Asking Soldiers to End Ship Strikes

London, June 23.—Sir Conan Doyle, writing to The Times, on the Ephean outbreak, suggests that if the dock strikes is the only reason Canadians are disappointed in transport, a call should be made for volunteers from among them to take the places of the dockers.

ADVICE BY BRITISH

He however, questions whether some blame does not lie with want of tact or want of hospitality, and says that having had a whole Canadian division encamped for a year on his home at Crowborough and many of his officers under his own roof, he can testify that no men could have behaved better. The Sunday Times also suggests that a company of troops sent to barbed wire ports so that they could see themselves what barriers detain them.

ADVICE BY BRITISH

A Canadian soldier's letter to The Times appears to suggest that people not so far responsible on the whole, to aid a force for the dastardly acts of a few whose conduct and character are as much condemned as any ranks of Canadians as among the British public.
