

discovered for the truck of this car being thrown from the rails; the train was moving slowly at the time; the car was not upset, nor was any of the freight on it displaced.

ON THE 22ND JUNE, 1854, a person named Johnson, while laying on the track, 3 miles north of Bradford, in a state of intoxication, was ran over by the Express train, moving south, at 7.49, P. M. One of his feet was badly crushed, and the other slightly injured. The accident occurred on a curve, where the engineer could not see him in time to stop the train before the engine had passed over him.
