For Drink and Drug Habits Physician of Pasteur Institute

This splendid treatment, which has eliminated more physical suffering and mental distress than any other medical accomplishment of recent years, has the unqualified endorsement of many of the most eminent men of the medical world. We submit the statement of Dr. William L. Wheeler, of the Pasteur Institute of New York, who says after a period of one year's critical observation:

DR. WM. L. WHEELER 361 WEST 23rd STREET, NEW YORK

No better evidence of the efficacy, success of the No better evidence of the efficacy, success of the Gatlin Treatment can be asked for by even the most skeptical. Statements like the above are not idly made nor should they be so considered. Any man or woman who knows of any one addicted to liquor or drugs whose will power is weakened and who needs scientific medical assistance to save them from a life of misery or an early death should put them in touch with the facts concerning the Gatlin Institute.

Gatlin Institutes are established throughout the world where treatments may be had under the care of competent physicians or treatment may be had in the privacy of the home, club or hotel. Get complete information in person or by mail in plain sealed envelope. All communications confidential.

RECENI DEATHS

They and others may be informed, accordingly, that the Lincoln's Inn orange stall is the oldest in London, having occupied the same site for more than 130 years, and, what is more, having been carried on by the same family for all that time. There is no more familian figure, in fact, to the members of the legal profession, the 'judges, barristers and solicitors who throng Lincoln's Inn than the woman who sits behind the little fruit-stall, though she herself has been there for only about a year. Her mother, however, held it for fifty years before, and her great-aunt for more than sixty years before her mother. The aunt took over the pitch when she was only fifteen years old, and held it until she was nearly eighty, while the mother started at seventeen and did not give up until she was nearly seventy.

Needless to say, no no was better pleased to hear the recent decision of the home secretary that the orange woman of Chancery Lane. Who was afraid that she, too, might lose her "pitch." Whether the police, however, really have authority over her seems to be doubtful, and the steward of the firm will do nothing to disturb the last of the forange women of Chancery Lane. Some "pitches" in London are held on sufferance, the usual condition being that nothing shall be done to interfere with the free passage of the roadway. In the past there has been a good deal of trouble when the holders have tried to make out legal claims, and the question has been carried to parliament. When preparations were being made for the exhibition of 1851 it was decided that she had no rights. But she was given some compensation.

There was one case, however, in which a stall-holder made good his sea and the given the properties of the forange women had a little into flyde and the end had to be evicted. Triade and the end had to be evicted. The strength of the company behavior of the firm will doing reliable to the stall tholder made good his had an experiences of business men who similar to yours.

Some travellers, too, may remember the pitch in the Mall, just at the bottom of the Duke of York's steps, where one could obtain a glass of milk direct from the cow and toothsome buns and cakes. As in the case of the Apsley House pitch, this dated back many years. Indeed, old prints of the Mall show the refreshment stall and the cow tied to a stake in the ground. The Mall improvements necessitated the banishment of the stall a few years ago, although it was not done without consid-
