Sovereign
Hot Water Boiler

Adds 10 to 15 per cent. more than its entire cost to the selling price of any home in which it is installed—and pays for itself as well with the coal it saves.

The "larger first section" in its proper proportions is an exclusive feature in the "Sovereign" Hot Water Boiler. The "Dictionary of Heating" (it's free; write for it) tells how this first section saves coal and increases the heating capacity.

WINDSOR TABLE SALT

Is it a treat to have salt does not get damp and cake?

Well, I suppose it would be a treat to those who used it for the first time.

But you see, Mother always had Windsor Salt at home, and naturally I use it now in my own home.

Windsor Salt never cakes or hardens, so I don't know anything about the kind that does.

I would not think of keeping house without Windsor Table Salt.

HOW THE EDITORS VIEW THE DEMOCRATIC VICTORY IN MAINE

(Portland Argus)

The Republican party of Maine has gone to wreck. The turning of the people against it is not a revolt; it is a revolution. It is a revolution which all the forces of stagnation and special interests throughout the country, will do well to take heart. It drives home the lesson of the revolution in the fourteenth Massachusetts district. It means that this old-time stronghold of horrid protectionism, is a stronghold no longer. It means that even the corner of the country, so long hidebound in its old-time Republicanism, is responding to the universal demand of the people for relief from protection graft, and tariff-boasted high prices. The election of three Democratic congressmen from Maine, at this time is a national event of first class importance. It is a significant of far-reaching consequences. It spells Republican disaster in the Congressional elections in November. It forecasts the loss to Republicans of several states and probably many United States senators. It is the brightest, most encouraging omen that the National Democracy has had in years, and its influence throughout the nation will be electric.

(Boston Advertiser.)

The Republican rout in Maine, as shown by the election returns, is so disastrous, so sweeping, so thorough, that it would be useless as well as silly, to ignore the threat it carries to the Republican party in the east as well as in the west. When political prophets predict the election of a Democratic senator from Maine, it is plain that a wave of political unrest is to be found in New England as well as in other sections. When Maine elects Democratic representatives to Washington it is clear that this is an annual year in American politics.

(Boston News Bureau.)

In Maine locally it was the same old issue of regulation of drink. The Sturgis commission spent $150,000 enforcing prohibition in spots, and the state treasury went from $300,000 cash to loss of $400 cash. The Maine farmers don't like that kind of enforcement especially when it does not enforce, except in certain localities near election time. They want the fines to pay for the enforcement. The Republicans were very lukewarm, and had no principles and no leaders around which to rally.

(Lewiston Journal.)

Has Roosevelt been a candidate for president and had Roosevelt been voted for in this state on Monday, the ex-president, in our judgment would have received 50,000 plurality. What explanation is there for the Democratic victory in Maine on Monday, but the betrayal of campaign pledges and of platform promises by highly efficient Republicans in office? Had Taft vetoed the Aldrich schedule, and had Congress faithfully responded to downward revision, Maine on Monday would have gone Republican. Local issues did not defeat Governor Fernald, but the universal and reasonable interest elicited by the mistakes of the extra session of Congress, in which a majority of Republicans and a minority of Democrats united to promote a trust-builders' tariff.

(Washington Post.)

The overturn in Maine was to an extent made possible by the efforts of the Republicans to vitiate the obsolete prohibition law. This policy was resolved upon five or six years ago, since when the old-time majorities have dwindled to the vanishing point. The means employed to stop the liquor traffic, produced widespread dissatisfaction in the towns, and but for the fact that 1908 was a presidential year the flop would most probably have occurred then. On national issues the state is as reliably Republican as any of her neighbors in the New England group.

(Boston Herald.)

A new interest has asserted itself in Maine. It is asserting itself elsewhere throughout the United States. It is the interest of the consumer, who is the majority interest in the state, and is proving to be the majority interest at the polls. He believes in protection, but insists that after years of payment for the protection of minority interests it is his turn to have protection for his own interest against high prices and unnecessary cost for the necessities of his living. The Republican national campaign committee has offered its defense of the tariff legislation of its majority in Congress, and has committed that defense to the people with promise of further revision in the indefinite future. The Maine election is an unmistakable rejection of that offer. It is a demand for real and immediate revision.

HOLD BUGS MARQUIS AS A SHARPER

De la Ramee, Arrested at the Hague, Obtained Thousands by Swindling

IN INTERNATIONAL GANG

Took Name of Adopted Parents and, With Friends, Forged Patent of Nobility People in Good Society Among Those Swindled

Berlin, Sept. 17.—The "Marquis de la Ramee" has been arrested at The Hague at the request of the German police. He is wanted here on charges of fraud, obtaining money by false pretences, using a fictitious title and practicing card-shipping.

When arrested the "Marquis" was living at a hotel with his wife and a number of servants. He attracted much attention from the other guests by frequenting the corridors and lounge in an ornate dressing gown. The police have discovered that his real name is Bela Klimm and that he is the son of a former lecturer at the Technical College at Budapest.

His father left him $80,000 when he was eighteen years old. He soon became involved with a notorious card sharper named Bauer, who used him as a decoy to attract wealthy victims in Continental cities. After winning $7,500 from Klimm in one night, Bauer remitted the debt on condition that Klimm would join the gang and utilize his good appearance to enter society.

Forced Patent on Nobility

Hauer made a careful search for an extinct title and that of De la Ramee was selected, the last member of the family having died more than a century ago. Hauer discovered in Paris a poor workman named Marie de Ramee, whose wife was the daughter of a shoemaker. This couple formerly adopted Klimm and authorized him to call himself Le Ramee. Hauer and Klimm, by bold forgeries, changed the legal documents certifying the adoption of the name. Le Ramee is a patent of nobility, hearing the title Marquis de la Ramee. A second document was then forged, which made it appear that Klimm really was entitled to bear the title of Marquis.

Bogus Widow Got $50,000

Instead of the huge dowry he expected, Klimm found that his bride had only $5,000, not enough to pay his tailor's bill. He got desperate in debt's pinch, a man named Margolin, one of a gang of international swindlers, who was arrested two months ago in Petersburg for debts and forgeries amounting to $250,000, came to his aid. Margolin took an obscure actress, wearing a thick veil, to the house of a well known money lender, where she pretended to be the widow of the late millionaire Hecht. She signed a mortgage on Herr Hecht's property and the money lender advanced her about $50,000, which Margolin and Klimm shared, leaving the country together.

A number of people in good society have been swindled by Margolin and the "Marquis." The latter's trial will be one of the celebrated cases of the year. Much sympathy is felt for the luckless Alice Hecht.

BIG INCREASE IN THE NUMBER OF CIGARETTES SMOKED IN CANADA

Ottawa, Sept. 16.—The customs and excise returns for the last fiscal year show one indication of an inflicting tide of prosperity which will not be greeted with general enthusiasm.

The production of cigarette consumption in Canada for the fiscal year ended March last totaled no less than 400,711,001, an increase of a little over 100,000,000 cigarettes, as compared with the preceding year and representing an output of probably over $4,000,000 for "cotton nails," principally by boys and young men of Canada during the twelve months.

The comparative figures for the last three years are as follows:

1907-08—Domestic cigarettes manufactured, 384,890,344; entered through customs, 13,268,000; total, 398,158,344.
1908-09—Domestic cigarettes manufactured, 388,736,130; entered through customs, 11,238,669; total, 399,974,799.
1909-10—Domestic cigarettes manufactured, 457,068,138; entered through customs, 12,616,333; total, 469,684,471.

GOSSIP OF GOTHAM FOR THE TIMES

"Of the whole nineteen," said one of the men, "but a few have been brought to trial, and not one has been convicted, though the offenses with which they have been charged have enabled them to filch millions out of the public. Can you blame the public for giving Wall street a wide berth?"

Hammerstein

When he dies, Oscar Hammerstein, the grand opera impresario, says he wants to be buried to the strains of "The Meditation," the exquisite intermezzo from Massenet's beautiful opera. "This," says Hammerstein, "is the music which he produced two years ago with Mary Garden in the title role. During the period it formed part of his repertoire, the manager heard every performance of the opera given in either the New York or Philadelphia opera houses. Seated in an old arm chair in the first scene opening from the footlights on the left of the stage, costless and hatless, the grizzled old man felt a sense of spiritual exaltation as the violin took up the threads of the inspiring air and began to weave them into the multitude and entranced the aesthetic. The Hammerstein of today and that of eight months ago are two different men. The sale of all his grand opera interests to the Metropolitan Opera Company, by his sons while he was abroad, the impresario says has broken his heart. He is going to Europe the end of this month and will start at once to build a big opera house in London, where he intends presenting grand opera in opposition to Covent Garden on a scale he says that will make the productions in that hallowed institution of music look like a side show. Covent Garden's season, opens in the spring, inverting the practice in this country where it starts in the fall.

In his new house Hammerstein is going to introduce the American custom. He says there is no reason why London should not patronize the opera at the same time as the United States.

Force Mill Still Grinds

Among the fashionable friends of Mrs. J. Douglas De Forest, wife of the junior member of the stock brokerage house of Wagner, Dickerson & Co., the announcement that she had been named as co-respondent in an action for absolute divorce brought against Dallas H. Wilson by the latter's wife, has caused no end of a surprise. The Wilsons live in Santa Barbara, Cal., and have two children. Wilson is a lawyer and claims that his relations with Mrs. De Forest have been of a purely professional character.

In June last the latter left the Hotel Gotham, where she had been living with her husband for several years, ostensibly to visit a school girl friend in Santa Barbara. En route she was met by Wilson, according to the latter's wife, who says they coursed together to a chess table on the side of Santa Barbara. From that point they went to Reno, where Mrs. De Forest initiated an action against her husband for divorce. Wilson representing her as attorney. Wilson and his client came on to New York for a conference with her father, who is a wealthy lumber merchant. She is said to have returned to Reno after that and is believed to be there at this time. How, where and who she became acquainted with the California lawyer none of her friends know. The De Forests have been very popular in society and were supposed to be devoted to each other up to very recently. To no one more than to De Forest's father was the naming of his wife as co-respondent by Mrs. Wilson a greater shock. On the strength of the evidence to be introduced in this case he will interpose an answer to his wife's complaint against him. Interesting developments are looked for all around Justice Bischoff of the supreme court in a rule just established by him has held out to couples seeking judicial separation and to legal divorcees the prospect of immunity from the undesirable publicity which usually follows the formal application of the divorcee to the court for fees in such cases. Heretofore such applications have been made early in open court. In future Justice Bischoff says he will not hear oral argument in these cases and has ordered counsel to submit the papers to him in camera.

This means that reports of such applications will not get into the newspapers. To those of a sensitive nature this is often a source of relief. The anxiety resulting from their separation. In line with the example set by Justice Bischoff Justices Page and Kendrick have adopted a similar rule. If each of the other twenty-four justices of the supreme court do likewise—which seems probable, New York will hear less of the sorrows of that class of discontented, unhappy married men and women who daily wash their soiled linen in the public prints for the deletion of a certain morbid constituency, which thrive upon the misfortunes of others.

Chinese Theatre Goes

Chinatown's long-time famous theatre in Doyers street is going the way of other landmarks in New York. This time it is not to make room for a skyscraper, but in its present capacity, will serve as a mission to convert the Heathen Chinese, and other habits of the oriental underworld. It will be placed in commission as soon as the health board has explored and cleaned the bowels of mystery, extending three stories below the ground, which is suspected contains the bleaching bones of many a naughty Tom, who was "sub-tracked" down below as soon as the police had been visited by the "rubber-necks" for years, is said to be in a condition that might suggest a disease brought on by the proximity of the theatre of the former actors used to sleep and cook in the foul-smelling premises down below the ground.

In place of the little celestial orchestra that used to scrape out weird tunes upon one string, there will be a hundred voices of mission people ringing out songs of joy and inviting the way-faring to come to God.
