Officers of the steamer T. C. Power, which arrived at Dawson to-day from St. Michael, report a frightful mortality. At a village near the mouth of the river eleven dead bodies were found when the steamer stopped. They were lying on the bare ground, outside the huts, but all the survivors had fled in terror. Soldiers on board the Power interred the remains, little imagining that at every village for 600 miles the same unpleasant task would fall to their lot.

At the Holy Cross-Mission, numbering seventy Indians, twenty-six were dead when the Power reached there. At Valencia, near Anvik, eight bodies were found Giant Powder Company at Cadboro Bay and buried. This village was also entirely deserted.
