" BEAUTIFUL THINGS."

(Ottawa Free Prezs.) Beautiful faces are those that wear (It matters little if dark or fair) Wholesome honesty printed there.

Beautiful eyes are those that flow Like crystal panes, where heart fires glow With beautiful thoughts that burn below.

Beautiful lips are those whose words Leap from the heart, like songs of birds, Yet, whose utterance produce girds.

Beautiful hands are those that do Work that is earnest, brave and true, Moment by moment the long day through.

Beautiful fast are those that go, On kindly ministries to and fro, Down low liest ways, if God wills it so.

Beautiful shoulders are those that bear Ceaseless burdens of homely care, With patient grace and daily prayer.

Beautiful lives are those that bless, Silent rivers of happiness Whose hidden fourtains, but few may guess.

Beautiful twilight at set of sun, Beautiful goal with race well run, Beautiful rest with work well done.

Beautiful graves where breezes creep, Where brown leaves fall, where drifts ll

deep, Over beautiful forms wrapt in beautiful sleep

THE SALMON OF LABRADOR.

By the wild Canadian shore, -By the sandy Labrador, By the rocky Mingan Isles, And where Anticosta smiles, Numberless the salmon shoals Gather where the salt tide rolls Rivers, streams of crystal clearness, Pour through that far-reaching strand, From thy river mouth, St. Lawrence, To the coast of Newfoundland, War as where the Belle Isle Strait Opens to the sea its gate.

Cold these rivers as the fountains From the wilderness that flow, Cold as water from the mountains, Gelid with the ice and snow. There amid the salt abysses, Or the river's spring fresh tide, Gleaming, fishing, leaping, diving, Schools of lordly salmon glide.

Where the river of St. John Mingles with the ocean surf, Brown with weedy rocks and sand drifts, Green with bordering velvet turf. There the angler with his tackle, Where the July sun rides high From the dawning to the sunset, Goes to angle with the fly.

Near thy alder skirted border Where doth rattling river twine He erects bis hut of branches, Branch of hemlock and of pine; Floors it with the cedar sap Fragments, soft as couch of kings; There enjoys the forest pleasures And the sleep that labor brings.

Morning with its dewy freshness, With its rosy, smiling skies, Calls him to the brimming river, River of transparent crystal, Where in ripple and in eddy, Or in pool to cast his flies. DAISIES.

Country bairnies' dearest pleasures, Idolized as greatest treasures, Winsome daisies !

Wreathed in children's flowing tresses. Strung in garlands 'round their dresses, Wee white daisie

Into thy little hearts of gold The wees of love-lorn maids are told, Tender daisies !

The petals of thy soft crowns white Are fortune-tellers true and bright, Sunny daisies !

Anon, with thee, methinks are wrought The shafts of Cupid's cruel sport, Coquetish daisies 1

Crests of topaz, pearl robes rarest, Of Nature's gems the very fairest, Lovely daisies !

Like showy starlet; on rough earth, Shining thy great Creator's worth, Peerless daisies ! AGNES G. MULHOLLAND,

I loved her well in that young spring When all the world seemed love intent, And all the birds began to sing, To show themselves on mating bent.

And Time had wings as on he went-Those happy day's whereof I sing, When first she wore my wooing ring, And I on wedding was intent.

Yes, Time had wings; and so he went, And summer's feet pursued the spring Ah, when the golden coin is spent The empty purse's a useless thing, And empty hearts no tribute bring— Ah me ! where is my old content ?
