will have commenced its career of ordinary labor and I believe of success. Among so many persons differences of opinion will exist, but the great majority of our settlers expect to make good farms out of their lots with no greater labor or outlay than is necessary in favorable circumstances. These men are at their work and they must be looked up in order to get at their views.

Since our arrival the weather has been favorable. Our experience amounts to the minority and as many nights. Days clear and warm nights, clear with frosts, sufficient on two evenings to leave thick ice on the pools; yet, until to-day, when we have had rain from the East, the days and nights have been dry, fitting the brush for burning, the soil for road-making. Day by day progress has been made in the three preliminaries to well-doing, houses, roads, cleared soil. The doubts and fears of any crop being sown and reaped in the present year have been renewed. During our short residence the older inhabitants have been kind and obliging to the new-comers in every respect. To the energy of the Commis-

older innasitants have been kind and obliging to the new-comers in every respect. To the energy of the Commissioner General the immigrants are deeply indebted, not only in his own department but in arrangements made for those among us who were willing to accept or who required employment. De-OWING to IMPERATIVE NEED I am reluctantly compelled to give notice that all accounts due 31st December, 1872, must be paid on or before the first dey of June next, otherwise they will at that date be put into the hands of my Attorney for collection St. John, N. We knew that the day on which we travelled by rail to Glasgow—the 28th April—was clear, fair and sultry in the east and centre of Scotland, stormy in east and centre of Scotland, stormy in the farther north and west, and a day of killing frost to bud and blossom, and of heavy snow in the south of England and London. We sailed on the evening of the 25th from Glasgow, and on the morning of the 26th from the Clyde for a thousand miles into and through a cutting wind, chiefly from the north; next, for six to seven hundred miles, through cold and stormy winds, chiefly from the west. extent of bitterly cold north-west and westerly winds that came over the ice, for which seamen kept a sharp look out; and he remainder of our voyage was made through a low temperature, with little wind. They could have informed us that the extent of roads, and the number of clearances and houses arranged for were not completed from the depth o' snow still remaining in a few sheltered localities, and from its existence on the ground for a month past the average and a depth greater than the average of seasons. The facts might have occurred to us as probabilities before we left Scotland and on any subsequent day; but other matters required attention on the sea, and these probabilities of weather were oversoil, and knew the wants of our position The Location is the Finest in St. John The Subscriber, returning thanks for the libera patronage bestowed on him while proprieto of the sibley House, would respectfully reques a continuance of the same in this New Place, where, with the best facilities to serve his riends, it will be his pleasure to make his house meet the requirements of all.

babilities before we left Scotland and on any subsequent day; but other matters required attention on the sea, and these probabilities of weather were overlooked. The Government considered the propriety of advising the women and children to remain in St. John, and thought of making some provision for their accommodation in the city, but the disadvantages were more than equivalent to these inconveniences of the position which would be surmounted in two, or at the furthest, three weeks. Arrangements were made by the Surveyor General, the Hon. B. Stevenson, with the old residents in the neighborhood for accommodation and labour, and every possible effort permitted by the condition of the country has been made to furnish clearances and houses and roads. All the immigrants enployed on the roads have been paid a dollar per day. Where the clearances on lots were only partially executed or not commenced the owners of the lots have been paid to complete them, and where the log houses were not ready for their future inhabitants those men who could brild them have been paid for the work. The accommodation for the women and children has been much more overcrowded than it is desirable, but not so great as I have seen in the habitual life of large cities. Temporary homes for some families were found in eight or tentents, a shelter disliked by some of their inmates and liked by others. All these difficulties are in process of daily reduction. A number of the houses have been inhabited by their future owners since their arrival; a number more for eight or nine days and others for shorter periods; the timber is cleared from a few acres around some homes; and ere another week passes away the new settlement will have commenced its career of ordinary labor and I believe of success. Among so many persons differences of opinion will exist, but the great majority of our settlers expect to make good MEETING of the Commissioners will No. 9 North Market Wharf, On TUESDAY, 3d June, At five o'clock in the afternoon. may 27 7i
