NEWS FROM OVERSEAS

Items of More or Less Interest From Great Britain

At a meeting of the war emergency workers national committee a resolution was unanimously passed protesting emphatically against the renewed attempts to raid the balance of the Prince of Wales' Fund for the benefit of war charities, seeing that the statutory war pensions committee is now responsible for the needs of soldiers, sailors, and their dependents, or for other objects distinctly outside the purposes for which the fund was raised. It was urged that the fund was likely to prove by no means adequate to meet the needs of civilian distress consequent on the dislocation at the end of the war.

A wonderful bowler was the tribute paid to Percy Jeeves at the close of the cricket season of 1914. His name is now written on the cricketer's roll of honor, he having been the first action after service dating from early in the war. A Yorkshireman by birth, Jeeves qualified for Warwickshire, playing for the county for the first time during the season of 1913. His advent was described as "nothing short of a triumph," he capturing 106 wickets at a cost of 20.88, and securing a batting average of 20.13 for 24 matches.

Are old age pensions to be increased to meet the advance in prices caused by the war? This question has been occupying the Government's attention lately. Although a great deal of sympathy exists for all old people who look to the pension fund as a means of support, it is not thought that the government will undertake to make the national load of expenditure any heavier than it is at present by increasing the allowances under the Act.

There are to be no more "joy" riders for ladies in naval and military cars. This was one of the announcements made by Mr. Harcourt in the House of Commons when Sir Frederick Banbury complained of the petrol restrictions. Mr. Harcourt explained that the shortage of petrol was due to the shortage of tanker tonnage. He found no trace of any cornering of petrol or of oil. He warned the House that there might yet be an additional restriction in the form of Sunday motoring.

Many surgical operations never performed before can be traced to the war. A recent case is that of a Russian soldier in the hospital at Petrograd who has been successfully operated on by Dr. Waterhouse, British surgeon. A bullet had so shattered the patient's skull that the removal of at least one-tenth of his brain became necessary. The soldier is recovering and his mentality does not seem to have been affected. No anaesthetic was used.

The chief officer of the London Fire Brigade, reports officially that as a result of four enemy air raids on London area in 1915 the Brigade received reports as to the death of 94 males and 34 females and injuries to 94 males and 80 females. In addition, the lives of 20 males and 31 females were endangered by fires and explosions caused by the air raids, of whom 31 were rescued from positions of peril by the Brigade.

To Mrs. G. Scott of Terrace street came yesterday the sad intelligence that her husband, Sergeant Scott, had made the supreme sacrifice of his life at the front. Sergeant Scott was a man and a patriot of truest and highest type. Enlistment the 36th reserve battalion, he accompanied that unit overseas England, where he was retained because of his valuable services in structing and training young troops. Some few months ago he turned to Canada in charge of a of invalided soldiers, visiting home here for a short time, but being desirous of returning as far as possible to England and the He was offered sergeant's status with a battalion here, but preferred to return and win his motion upon the field, which he

By Courier Leased Wire.
Athens, Sept. 21, via London Sept. 23.—The Greek government said on the best of authority to telegraphed definite proposals to Entente capitals, which, if accepted, will mean Greece's entry into war. If the uncertainty of the tions between Greece and the tence continues, it is regarded improbable that Greece may do war on Bulgaria on her own account. Semi-official efforts of the Entente to ascertain from the Entente tence here a statement as to the sires of the allied governments been fruitless. The ministers given to understand that as ma three members of the Greek cabinet were ready to resign if the Entente here a statement as to the instructions had not been received.
