TOM EDISON AN OLD BOY
HE RANKS IN LIST AS CANADIAN STRATFORD'S GREATEST.

Major Larmour Writes Interesting Reminiscence of the Wizard as a Grand Trunk Telegrapher—How He Flitted Away to His Father's Home in Michigan and Never Returned Till His Recent Cobalt Visit.
Major R. Larmour, assistant superintendent of traffic for the western division, writing of the Old Boy, the G. T. R. in the Stratford Old Boy Herald, gives a first-hand account of Thomas A. Edison's experiences in the G. T. R. metropolis as a telegraph operator.
It was over 40 years ago, and Edison was still young enough to be a kid, and, like all other operators with little to do, found it hard to keep awake and promptly answer his half-hour roll call. His inventive genius found in this circumstance a field for operation. He procured the works of an old clock and manipulated the running gear so that instead of recording time in seconds, minutes and hours, it only did business every half hour, and that business was to give the Stratford office signal, "I I I."

Signal Too Prompt.
The prompt regularity with which this came in at the head office at Toronto marked too great a contrast with previous conditions, and thus aroused suspicion that there was some game being played, and an inspection followed, which disclosed the facts of the case. In those days there were no automatic stop signals to hold trains for orders, such as are now in use. The night operator, when he was to stop and hold one train to be met by another, simply lit a red lamp and held it conspicuously in his hand. One night Operator Edison was required to hold an east-bound freight that had right of track, until a west-bound train arrived.

Answered, Then Slept.
He had replied to the despatcher, acknowledging the receipt of the order, and signified that it would be carried into effect. Edison sat down with his red lamp waiting the approach of the east-bound train, but unfortunately dropped off asleep. The train arrived, and as there was no signal exhibited to stop, it went on its way. It was, perchance, a vivid dream that awoke him, but too late. The train had passed him; the tall light was still visible. Edison, frantically swinging his red lamp, started on a keen run after it, and falling to notice the open car in guard of those days at a street crossing, he tumbled into it. His lamp was smashed; he was helpless to avert the perhaps fatal results of his carelessness.

Back to Michigan.
Visions of Kingston penitentiary presented themselves as the natural sequence. Self-preservation in a moment became the dominant thought; quick decision and prompt action followed. He gathered up his belongings in the office, stepped on a passing train, and for Port Huron, where his father lived. I believe that until his recent visit to the Cobalt region he never set foot in Canada again. Fortunately for his peace of mind, as well as for the company, the two freight trains saw each other in time to stop without damage.

Got Tom's Wages.
Twenty-five years after Edison's adventure, the writer had become well acquainted with his father, residing at Port Huron. One day while discussing some new invention of Tom's which was then startling the world, a gentleman suddenly said to me, "Do you know, sir, that the G. T. R. has been owing me a sum of money for a long time now?"
I begged him to explain the circumstances. And with a half-humorous smile, he said: "When Thomas resigned his position with the G. T. R. at Stratford he was a minor. There was part of a month's wages due him, to which I think I am justly entitled."

Hickson Sent Cheque.
Writing to Mr. Hickson, then general manager, I recounted the circumstances connected with the return of the money due Edison as unclaimed wages. Mr. Hickson promptly sent a cheque for the amount and instructed me to personally deliver the cheque and to make such ample apology for the company's seeming neglect as the occasion suggested. It is needless to add that I carried out these instructions to the full extent, taking with me some dozen leading citizens of Port Huron as witnesses, that the ceremony might not lack any of that dignity and impressiveness which the circumstances warranted.

It is also needless for me to add that Mr. Edison, in acknowledging the receipt of the cheque and apology on behalf of the G. T. R. Co., did not forget to the occasion, afterwards entertaining the visitors in a style well befitting the father of a son who had, by his own genius, perseverance and application, made of himself one of the most famous men living in the world, one whom this city will always be proud to remember as a "Stratford Old Boy," and to honor as one of the world's greatest benefactors.

Rare Botanical Find.
The Perth Expositor thus describes an interesting discovery:—"From a botanical standpoint, Mr. F. Morris, one of the teachers in the Perth school, and a young man well known in Perth, has discovered on an island in the Rideau the first walking fern ever reported in this section of the province. This particular species of one of the many graceful ferns of the manner in which it grows and spreads itself. When the fern grows to maturity the top droops over and when it comes in contact with the earth it takes root and this process being continued during the summer months it received the name by which it is known. Mr. Morris is an indefatigable searcher after new species in the botanical world and he has succeeded in recent years in identifying and properly naming a large number of orchids found in this section, besides many other wild flowers and plants."

An Errand of Mercy.
Deeply impressed recently by an address given at Brighton on the evils of smoking, a young minister rose and said that that morning he had had a present of 100 cigars, one of them he had smoked, but he now determined to go home and throw the rest into the fire. Thereupon a Baptist minister arose and said that he meant to accompany his reverend brother.

Birth-marks, which mark and mar the outside of the body are a grief to every mother whose children may bear them. But for every child who bears a birth-mark on the skin there are many who bear an indelible birth-mark on the mind. Nervous mothers have nervous children and many a man and woman owes an irritable and despondent temperament to those days of dread when the mother waited the hour of her maturity. The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription strengthens the mother for her trial. With strength comes a buoyancy of spirits and quietness of mind, which is the color of the happiest gifts a mother can bestow on her offspring. By giving vigor and elasticity to the delicate womanly organs "Favorite Prescription" practically does away with the pain of maternity and makes the labor as easy as the birth of a flower. There is no opium, cocaine or other narcotic contained in "Favorite Prescription."

Colors.
White is the emblem of light, religious purity, innocence, faith, joy and life. In the judge it indicates integrity, in the sick, humility; in the woman, chastity. Red, the ruby, signifies fire, divine love and royalty. White and red roses express love and wisdom. Blue, or the sapphire, expresses heaven, the firmament, truth from the celestial origin, constancy and fidelity. Yellow or gold is the symbol of the sun, of marriage and faithfulness. Green, the emerald, is the color of spring, of hope—particularly of the hope of immortality and victory, as shown by the laurel and palm. Violet, the amethyst, signifies love and truth or passion and suffering. Purple and scarlet signify things good and true from a celestial origin. Black corresponds to despair, darkness, earthiness, mourning, negation, wickedness and death.

THE $80,000 DIVISION
Former Manager of Home Life Retained $62,000 of it.

Mr. John Firstbrook Received $11,500—Other Directors Sold Their Stock at Par and Received Bonuses in Addition—Mr. Pattison Thought Mr. Stratton Would Be Recouped by the Increasing Value of Stock.

Toronto, Sept. 12.—The examination of Mr. A. J. Pattison, former manager of the Home Life, was continued before the Royal Insurance Commission yesterday and Mr. Tilley questioned him at some length to show the difference between the various contracts which Mr. Pattison had as manager with the Home Life Co. He insisted that he had in 1898 given up a contract which brought him $2,600 a year for one which only returned him $1,200 per annum, because he thought the company, having changed to a level premium system, could not afford more, and that it would be better for them to revise the contract, so that the salary would be larger in subsequent years when the company's business and revenue were greater. Mr. Tilley next tried to obtain some idea as to the monetary value which Mr. Pattison placed on his contract in 1898, when it was made, but witness said he had not counted it. The change in the contract with the manager and the appointment of a permanent chairman were made an extension of his contract with the directors, and the contracts with them on Nov. 12, 1898.

Recommended by Committee.
These contracts were made on the recommendation of a committee composed of Messrs. John Phillips, Pres. Diver and John S. King, who recommended that the officials in question be appointed for life. It was, Mr. Pattison presumed, the intention of the committee to bind the company for the period of witness' life, but the contract was made for fifteen years. The minutes indicated that there were five directors present at the meeting at which the contracts were confirmed, including the manager and permanent chairman, with whom the contracts were made. John S. King and Mr. Hillcock were the others present.

How $80,000 Was Fixed.
Coming down to the manner in which the $80,000 was paid him to surrender his contract, Mr. Pattison said that he had computed the probable revenues of the company for the balance of the term of the contract, and found that he would receive approximately $30,000. He also referred to the estimate of value of his stock, whose estimate of value was a little more than his own. It was based upon a certain percentage of growth annually, which might or might not have been realized. Mr. Pattison said that the probability of the loss of his contract was a consideration. Mr. Firstbrook Got $11,500.

Mr. Firstbrook, who, Mr. Pattison said, received $11,500 cash for the surrender of his contract, in addition to the $30,000, complained that he did not get full value for his contract.
What Stock Was Worth.
Taking up the question of the value of the capital stock of the Home Life for the time of the amalgamation of the two companies, Mr. Tilley suggested that stock of the Home Life Co. could be obtained on the market at 20 per share or less, but Mr. Pattison could not agree with that suggestion because he did not know it was a fact. He admitted that in any large amount it could be obtained at some depreciation from the actual cost. In reply to further questions Mr. Pattison admitted he had never paid more than par value for the stock, and the premium paid for it for any stock he held and some he had bought for less. The annual reports to the Government, which were produced by Mr. Tilley, indicated a large impairment of capital up to the date of the amalgamation.

Stratton Obtained Control.
Mr. Pattison said he gave money to the directors for their stock but it was not obligatory on them to sell the stock, and they were not necessarily to pass up the directors. Mr. Stratton, in no stipulation except that he was to receive a certain amount of stock, and that there would be room made on the board for certain directors of the People's Life. The arrangement was that he was to sell his own stock and to deliver the stock of all the Toronto directors, which would enable him to constitute the board as he desired. The question of reinsuring the business of the Home Life was discussed at the first or four meetings, and witness informed them of Mr. Stratton's proposition, but did not mention that he was to receive $80,000 for surrendering his contract.

Directors Sold Their Stock.
Mr. Tilley suggested that the directors might have retired from the board, selling their shares because they would have then been just as well off as their fellow-shareholders. But Mr. Pattison said he would not like to be appointed a director who had been on the board for 15 or 16 years, with the suggestion that he retire and make way for a new man unless he disposed of his interest in the company at the same time. The directors enquired the terms proposed by Mr. Stratton, and they learned there were some willing to sell their stock. The price which Mr. Stratton paid for their stock was the highest price at which it had been sold. Mr. Pattison produced a schedule showing the amounts he paid to the various directors who sold stock he delivered to Mr. Stratton.

Schedule in Two Parts.
The schedule contained two columns, the second being the amount paid for the stock itself at the price paid by Mr. Stratton to him for its delivery, the first column represented amounts which he paid out of the $80,000 he received, as a consideration for services rendered the company as directors for which they had received no consideration.

Table with 2 columns: Name, Amount. Includes: Thos. R. Wood $500, Dr. J. S. King 500, Fred. Diver 1,250, Dr. Briggs 500, J. S. King 750, W. A. Firstbrook 250, J. W. Curry, K. C. 500, N. F. Dupuis 250, T. Elliott 625, J. Firstbrook $5,125, A. J. Pattison $11,500, J. Hillcock 200.

Directors Got Bonus.
Mr. Tilley enquired in detail into the transactions covered by the schedule. Mr. Pattison explained that the amounts mentioned in the first column were arrived at by negotiation with each individual separately. The figure which Mr. Stratton gave for the stock as set forth in the second column, was the highest price at which he had ever known it to be sold. Mr. E. R. Wood had held his stock for five or six years, and had received no dividends, hence the payment of $500. Dr. John S. King's transaction was similar one; there was in addition in his case a desire to be continued as medical referee of the company. Although he ceased to be a director, Dr. King is still medical referee. In Mr. Diver's case there was, Mr. Pattison explained, a misunderstanding. When he came to settle up, Mr. Diver, who had been connected with the company for 13 or 14 years without receiving director's fees, claimed that it had been arranged he should receive $2,500. Mr. Pattison said his impression had been that Mr. Diver was to get $25 per share, but Mr. Diver had convinced him that he had misunderstood that gentleman's proposition.

Press Told Him First.
Rev. Dr. Briggs, in answer to Mr. Tilley, said that he did not know anything about the $80,000 deal with Pattison until it came out in the morning paper.
"Did you think that it was worth $80,000 to cancel the contract?" asked Mr. Tilley.
"No. It was not in my mind. I said to a friend that these brethren should get $20,000 for their services, and my friends said: 'They would not get that much.' Nor did I know about the $11,000 deal with McCutcheon. It was an item that never came before the directors, and was an astounding thing to me. Although it appears in the minutes, it never passed before my eyes."
If some times the minutes were not read at the directors' meetings, and Dr. Briggs answered that at times they were not.

John S. King, vice-president of the Home Life, sworn, knew that Pattison had a contract, and also that Firstbrook had one. He knew that Pattison was going to get some financial benefit for himself, and thought of it entirely as a personal matter.
Commissioner Langmuir broke in: "You were a vice-president of this company, and you did not enquire what was going on?"
"I did not enquire."

Witness told him he received $2,000 for his fifty shares in the company, $1,200 for his actual stock and $750 as a bonus for his services as director.
A Bigger Slice.
Mr. Tilley asked witness if he had known Pattison got $30,000 would he have been after a bigger slice, and witness answered in the affirmative.
Witness understood that the McCutcheon contract was just an assignment of Pattison's agreement. As far as the stock itself, it was not worth $25 per share as an investment.

Fred. Diver, another director of the Home Life, had fifty shares, which he sold for $2,500 to Pattison. He knew nothing of the $80,000 deal.
Dr. John S. King knew of the two contracts. Pattison had told witness that there were dealings, but he would explain them later.
Witness thought that Pattison was getting $500 instead of $80,000, just the same bonus as the rest of the directors. "There was some transaction going on," said Dr. King, "that was kept quiet from the rest of us. We realized that fully."

J. Walter Curry, K. C., was next. He knew nothing of the negotiations with the People's Life.
Mr. Curry's Understanding.
As to the transfer of Mr. Curry's stock, that was done by Mr. Pattison, with the understanding that the money was to come from Mr. Stratton.
Witness did not have anything to do with the McCutcheon agreement, although he seconded the resolution.
"Did you know that McCutcheon was getting $11,500 more than the $5,000?" asked Mr. Tilley.
"I don't know it yet," answered Mr. Curry. "I never saw that clause of the agreement."

John Firstbrook knew there was a deal going on, but as to the $80,000 transaction Pattison never told him anything about that. He thought if he had finished his contract with the Home Life for fifteen years he would have received $25,000.
In answer to the question: "Where did the money come from to pay you $11,000 and Mr. Pattison besides?" Mr. Firstbrook answered: "I thought it was to come from Mr. Stratton, who was a wealthy man."
