SCHOOL FAIR
STILL BOOMS

ly, Mather Woolworth, Bert Wilson. Mr. Pike made a splendid address. He is one of Chatham's foremost orators and has the happy faculty of saying the right thing at the right time. He complimented the boys very highly on their success and also commended the teachers. He spoke also of the excellent success of the Central School Fair.

The following were the girl graduates: Grace Arnold, Jennie Austin, Flossie Baird, May Barnes, Gwen Charteris, Nellie Daniels, Kate DeCov, Grace Hicklin, Ada Kempf, Gertrude Kendall, Bessie Kerr, Merrianna Longley, Addie Mains, Pearl Mayes, Alice Merritt, Zora Merrill, Myrtle Pink, Nita Remington, Gertrude Rouse, Sara Singer, Gladys Side, Susie Smyth, Edna Shepley, Hazel Taylor, Laura Teeter, May Teeter, Pearl Wankless, Ruby Wilson, Bernice Wilson, Vera Wellman, Marion Tighe, Nora VonGuten.

Mr. Bell during his residence here has taken an active interest in school work. The Graduation Glee Club, soloist, Jack Burfoot, and accompanist, Miss Vera Wellman, then gave a well rendered selection.

One of the most pleasing features of the evening was the presentation of addresses to Mr. Plewes and Miss Hillman, the two teachers of the entrance class, by the graduates. Mr. Plewes was made the recipient of a handsome ring and Miss Hillman a beautiful locket.

The following were the addresses:

Dear Miss Hillman: The members of the graduating class of 1906 do not forget the very great interest you took in them during the closing months of their public school course.

Some wise person has said, "It is a liberal education to live with some people."

Our association with you convinced us of the truthfulness of this statement. We acknowledge that the members of this class possessed all the faults that characterize boys and girls of our age, but we assure you that your earnestness, your Christian kindness, your sense of justice, your devotion to your noble calling, have not gone unnoticed, and we trust that "the bread cast upon the water may return after many days," in our lives. As we have felt your influence day by day we have learned something of the meaning of those beautiful words, "The white flower of a blameless life."

We ask you to accept this locket as a little memento of the graduating class of 1906.

Signed on behalf of the class, KING KINGSMILL, HAZEL TAYLOR.

J. W. Plewes, Esq., Principal of the Central School:

Dear Mr. Plewes:—The events connected with this evening may mean to you only the annual recurrence of a great deal of work and worry, but to us, the members of the graduating class of 1906, it means a very distinct feature of that subtle something we call "life," for it emphasizes the fact that our public school days must now be a thing of the past.

There is in this thought some sense of satisfaction, for it assures us that part of our life's duties has been successfully performed.

But a feeling of sadness steals over us as we realize that we have said "good-bye" to those who so largely contributed to the success and happiness of our public school careers; and while we acknowledge our indebtedness to the whole staff, and most heartily thank them, one and all, yet to you, the presiding genius of this large and successful school, we owe a debt of gratitude, which we shall never be able to repay.

Not many men, not many women, are capable of entering so largely into the lives of boys and girls as you are, and because of this sympathetic nature, we have always felt that you were peculiarly fitted for your calling in life.

We have observed, too, not only your kindly, sympathetic nature, but your rugged manliness, honesty of purpose, and deep interest in everything that pertained to our welfare.

This building bears ample testimony to your love for the beautiful, and if we possess in any degree a desire to know and appreciate the beautiful, in nature, in art, or in life, Taylor, Laura Teeter, May Teeter, Pearl Wankless, Ruby Wilson, Bernice Wilson, Vera Wellman, Marion Tighe, Nora VonGuten.

We are well aware of the fact that in no possible way can we repay you for what you have done for us, but we wish most heartily to assure you that we are not ungrateful and that the memory of our days at the old Central School shall be fondly cherished while memory lasts.

You may, in future, have larger classes, and better and brighter classes, but you can never have a class with a deeper sense of all they owe to the principal and staff of the Central School.

We pray you to accept this ring as a little "remembrance" of our very pleasant association.

Signed on behalf of the graduates of 1906, MARION TIGHE, ROLAND McDONALD.

Both Miss Hillman and Mr. Plewes responded appropriately, thanking the scholars for these remembrances. The program closed with a selection from the orchestra.

The fair was continued all day yesterday and was attended by very large crowds. Mr. Plewes and his able and energetic staff of assistants deserve untold praise for the success of their undertaking.

HAIR NOTES.

Sydney Silcox, B. A., Inspector of Public Schools, St. Thomas, and author of "Hints on Drawing," spent all yesterday morning at the Central School Fair. He was much surprised at the extent and excellence of the work shown, and admired the fine and suitable school building. Dr. Silcox is strongly in favor of centralization of school effort in large buildings as opposed to a number of ward schools. He was shown the new wing and was loud in praise of the progressive board of trustees who have charge. Dr. Silcox also consented to judge the Nature Study exhibit.

A deputation from the London Schools, consisting of Principal Latte, author of "Hints on Drawing," and Miss Powell, Supervisor of Art, came down on the noon train and stayed till evening. They were most complimentary and invited all the Central School staff to the London School Fair, which will have its first exhibition during the week of Nov. 13.

The teaching sisters of the Ursuline Academy were the guests of the Central School teachers Thanksgiving morning. After spending two hours examining the work shown, they were entertained in the cafe.

A deputation of students from the London Normal School visited the Fair yesterday and prepared a report to present upon their return.

BRITAIN'S NAVAL POLICY.

Prince Louis of Battenberg Explains It At St. John, N. B.

St. John, N.B., Oct. 27.—Admiral Prince Louis of Battenberg was St. John's guest yesterday, and was royally entertained. In response to a toast to him at the luncheon given by the mayor yesterday afternoon, he expressed his appreciation of honor done him, and in turn honored this city by giving the first explanation ever officially made of the reason for his visit and the causes for the new policy of the British Admiralty which gave rise to it.

He took this last opportunity in Canada, he said, to correct misapprehensions he had found concerning Britain's new naval policy.

"Instead of a radical change, it was a national evolution. Concentration," he said, "is the essence of strategy, dispersion is weakness. Under all conditions, main forces are distributed in far outlying posts, stations beyond all means of direct communication. Consequently the Admiralty had to form squadrons which were sent away, and there they stayed and they worked their own sweet will, and as it would take a letter the best part of a year to reach them, nobody could interfere.

"Now take the squadron which I command. We can get up steam practically in an hour. We can get under way in about the same time. We can disappear in two hours beyond the horizon, and no man living can tell where we may turn up in a few days' time.

After quoting from Togo's tactics to prove the minor importance of naval bases, Prince Louis concluded: "Believe me, your interests have never been better looked after, the full disposition of the naval forces of Great Britain have never been so advantageously placed for safeguarding the interests of the Empire, not only on this side of the Atlantic, but everywhere else."
