We wonder not that Bachelor Brown Was not much liked in his native town; The boys delighted to play him tricks, And most of the folks their eyes would fix On distant objects when he passed by— But he only thought they were very shy.

It so fell out on a Christmas Day
That lads and lasses went out to play
When snow lay deep in the fields hard by,
And bright and clear was the winter sky. And origin and clear was the Asnowball battle was soon begun, When lo! in thick of fight and fun A ball was thrown with a sudden whirl, By a bright and active laughing girl, Right through the window of Bachelon

Right through the Brown,

Brown,

Who starts to his feet with a sudden frown,
And rushing forth he eries, with a hiss:

"Who is the villian that dared to do this?"

They all held back and were quite abashed When they saw their neighbor's window smashed, and and tossed her head,

smashed,
But the girl stood up and tossed her head,
And with laughing eyes she archly said,
"Please, sir, I wanted to bring you out
To join us all in the snowball bout."
When Bachelor Brown saw the pretty face
And marked the figure so full of grace,
His anger fled, and he straightway fell
In love with the saucy village belle.

A very strange thing had come to pass— Twas found that the fractured pane of glass Was broken in shape like a human heart, Which, of course, gave Bachelor Brown a start, For he thought there must be a fate in this,

So he sought the rollicing smowball miss;
With such success did he ply his suit
That she quite forgot his old repute,
For when he proposed she couldn't say

no;
And ere the coming of next year's snow
Bachelor Brown had a charming wife,
Which proved the jey of his altered life. "A snowball," they said, in the little town, "Had made quite a man of Bachelon Brown."

NO TEARS.

Perhaps not more than one newspaper had the story. It was headed, "A little boy of seven run over by a street-car and badly mangled." Perhaps scarcely one of the readers of that one paper paused to think about this trifle, in the busy rush and and whirl of holiday time; and yet 16 much it meant to one small ho was low How their hearts ached when rehold ! little fellow was brought in the poor his little bed! His mother's eyes water she could scarcely a ere so full of tears she kept back from the to tend him, but cry that would het her quivering lips the her hands trem we hurt his ears, and if enough to defined, they were yet firm that the me what was needed.

vas the bran, at wonderful thing of all nimsels at very and patience of the boy respect of crushed and wounded that it grer people's hearts to see him, so gentle and uncomplaining and ahor lade his elders ashamed of every rate of punt they had ever untered over pains.

The doctor, though used to beds of pain, grew very pitiful when he found, after two eperations had been performed under the influence of ether, that still another was necessary.

"I do hate to use so much ether," he suid, "and yet it's too much to expect him to bear the operation without." The poor mite, himself, caught the words, and understood them, and his sweet, childish voice, conquering with its sweetness fear and pain alike, said, earnest-

"I'll hold still, oh, so still, and not cry once, if mamma will sing a song, and if she won't let the tears come into her eyes/Sile is mo in

And then the mother sang-and only the pitying Father in Heaven who helped her, knew how she kept back the springing tears—sang and sang, and the boy listened with his patient eyes fixed apon her face; and, meanwhile, the doctor took out piece after piece of bone from the poor mangled hand, and never one cry or groan came from the childish lips.

Ah, what a lesson it was for grown-up people, who cry out in their pain, and are not willing to bear the probing hand of the Great Physician! Said one of the old saints, "There are no tears in the knows the end from the beginning, and weunds us but to heal.

Chanot we let people be themselves, and enjoy life in their own way? You are trying to make that man another you. One's enough.— Emerson.

Persons don't make their own faces and its no more my fault if mine is a good one than it is other people's fault if theirs is a bad one. Discuss. Falsehood may have its hour; but it

He that loses his conscience, has nothing left worth keeping.

ETHERINGTON'S ADJUSTIBLE SPRING BED.

The Spring Bed consists entirely of STEEL SPIRAL SPRINGS which lock on the slats of a common bedstead : making a most

DESIRABLE BED WITH BUT A SINGLE MATTRESS,

Thus a saving in the price of bedding. They are the best laying, the most easy, most comfortable, most elastic, the cleanest and the easiest cleaned, the best ventilated (therefore the most healthy), the most durable, the cheapest and the easiest repaired. Most adjustable, as it fits all Bedsteads without regard to width or length, and is perfectly able, as it fits all Bedsteads without regard to width or length, and is perfectly noiseless. It can be packed in a trunk 16 inches square, so the most portable; no hiding places for vermin, no sagging to the centre, no slats to become bent and remaining so, but can be adjusted to the unequal weights of the occupants, permitting them to lie upon the same level.

On all points of merit we solicit com-parison with any other Bed in the mara-
