The ordinary lime and water wash has the disadvantage of easily washing off, and also sticking to and marking one's clothes or whatever runs against We clip from the American Poultry Yard, three excellent recipes for making whitewash that will not rub off: 1. Slake in boiling water, one balf bushel of lime, keeping it just fairly covered with water during the process. Strain it, to remove the sediment that will fall to the bottom, and add to it a peck of salt dissolved in warm water; three pounds of ground rice boiled in water to a thin paste; one-half pound powdered Spanish Whiting, and a pound of clear glue disso'ved in warm water. Mix the different ingredients thoroughly and let the mixture stand for several days. When ready to use, app'y it hot. If a less quantity is desired, use the same proportions.

2. A good whitewash for use apon outside work may be prepared one half bushel of lime and strain as pefore. Add to this two pounds of sulphate of zine and one pound of salt dissolved in water. If any color but white is desired add about three pounds of the desired coloring matter such as painters use in preparing their paints. Yeilow ochre will make a beautiful cream color, and browns, reds, and various shades of green are equally easily obtained. 3. Another excellent wash, lasting a'most as well as ordinary paint, may be prepared for outside work as follows; Slake in boiling water one-half bushel of lime. Strain so as to remove all sediment. Add

CURES

"There can be no question as to the superiority of Ayer's Sarsaparilla over all other blood-purifiers. If this was not the case, the demand for it, instead of increasing yearly, would have ceased long ago, like so many other blood medicines I could name."

CUTTING AND CURING

CLOVER.

Be sure and cut the clover early, before the seed has formed. Clover is a biennial, one of those plants that begin to die when once it has produced seed. Here is the point: By duced seed. Here is the point: By cutting before the seed forms you can cut two crops in one season and still keep the root alive. At least it will not die because its purpose has 'I will be right down, mamma, in just one minute.'

She kept her promise. She reached the sitting-room in time for prayers, and her bright 'Goodmorning' and cherry smile were like rays of sunshine. A look of surprise and gladness came into the faces of father and mother. Baby Ruth toddled up to her for Baby Ruth toddled up to her for a kirs and she lifted the darling milking vard, no wonder Betty in just one minute.'

And rarely disturbs a plant. The old way to plough and plant at any time and then 'plough out' ful soapsuds prove when employed as manure. Applied to the roots of it will not die because its purpose has been fulfilled. This year we shall need all the hay we can get. Skilling reactions you can cut two crops in one season and still keep the root alive. At least of the soapsuds prove when employed as manure. Applied to the roots of into usefulness in half the time required for the same accomplishment by force, and with less than half the risk. Abused in the manure. It is an excellent plan to have a large tub, and put the soapnine years old from which he had taken that year fully three tons per acre in three cuttings. But there is another great advantage in early cutting. The hay for milk and butter purposes is worth double that of the ordinary grade, say as good authority as Hoard's Dairyman. The thick stems of a rank growth of clover make it hard to cure by the ordinary means of exposure to the sup. Long before these stems are successfully tested its remedial worth. dried through the tender, thin leaves will be shriveled ap and broken off. This necessitates curing clover by heating and with as little stirring as possible, and that only when freshly cut. American Cultivator says that the best way is to follow the mower with the hay tedder with only the least interruption. Then as soon as the leaves have dried rake the clover and put it in cock. It may seem dry because the leaves will rustle, but leave it twenty-four hours or, if need be, thirty-six or fortyeight. Then open and it will be found moist inside. The moisture has come from the stem, and when the has dried off the hay will be cuisd sufficiently to go into the barn or stack. The slight heating which hay thus gets not only does not injure it, but really makes it more palatable to stock.

FEATHERED FRIENDS.

It is said, I know not how truly, of the owl family—wise birds that they are!—that they manage to bring up a large family without working so hard as do other feather folk.

They do it in this way: The mother They do it in this way . The mother They do it in this way. The mother lays two eggs, and sits on them till the year at the rate of $6.00 per inch.

the time the second lot are hatched the first ones can feed themselves, or at any rate are much less care. Thus she does not have to work herself nearly to death as do birds who bring up their whole five or six at once. There are many queer thinge to be said about owls. They are very intelligent as pets in the house, being scarcely ever afraid of anybody. Their way of eating is curi-Sometimes they swallow the mouse, or whatever it may be, whole, and then, after a while, throw up a ball of the fur and bones. Every one who has spent much time in the country has heard owls hoot; even the owlet's babycry is a faint hoot.

The owl is one of the most useful Syrup of Figs is taken; it is pleasant of our feather friends. Cows coming in in the summer ime are apt to get too fleshy before calving, says a valued correspondent. About three or four weeks be-fore the cow is due I bring her up and reduce her food. Preventing an accumulation of flesh is a preven. tive of milk faver. A week before she calves I put her into a box stall. If she worries much I go in and curry her. The curry-comb or card is a great thing to invroduce your-self to a cow. After she calves keep her quiet and avoid drafts and cold water. I have never cured a case of milk fever, but I believe I have prevented bundreds of cases.
