

Suspense.

The saddest job on earth is waiting for good or ill—it's just the same; at other times the hours go skating, but when we wait they're halt and lame. Some dire misfortune we are dreading; the waiting's worse than the blow; we say, "We'd think it better stalling, if grief would do its worst and go." The man who's waiting for the sheriff to lead him to the gallows floor, and there reduce him to a scrap, is glad when all the waiting's over. We wait for some expected blessing, with hopes that buoy, and fears that rack; and waiting for it's so distressing that when it comes we send it back. We wait and wait and wait for dinner, and when it's dished, some two hours later, our appetite, that was a winner, has jumped its job and pulled its freight. When we are kids we're sadly waiting for lumps years to make us men; when manhood comes its cars we're hating, and wish that we were kids again. We're waiting always, waiting ever, for something foul, or something fair; the end will come to waiting never, until we wait for harps up there.

GERMAN'S FOOD.

(New York Journal of Commerce.) That food supplies are scarce for the people in their homes is practically proclaimed by this government action, and it can hardly be that the army supplies are liberal. There seems to be little chance of getting much grain by importation, and between now and the next harvest there is likely to be a scanty supply of food at the front and in the rear of the armies, while the ranks of the cultivators of the soil have been depleted to the ranks of those fighting for the life of the nation. Under the circumstances the government is hardly to be criticized for using its authority to the utmost to conserve the food of the nation and see to its equitable distribution, instead of leaving that to a cruel competition between those who have and those who have not, though it seems like a policy which has had no precedent since the days of Joseph in Egypt, when it was justified by famine instead of war. What effect this lack of food may have on the duration of the struggle is an interesting and rather melancholy question.

ITALY EXPELS GERMAN.

Rome, Feb. 4.—Oscar Schweickhard, the organizer of the visit of Italian journalists to Germany, has been expelled from Italy. He was suspected of being a spy and escaped from his brother's house in Tripoli when his wife was arrested during a raid. Schweickhard took the Italian journalists over the battlefields of northern France and Belgium, and showed them the German camps. He paid all the expenses of the trip and gave the men 100 francs ($20) a day while they were on the tour. Italian papers openly accused Schweickhard of having been bribed by the German government to act as a spy. In his brother's house in Tripoli arms and ammunition intended to be used in revolts of the natives against the Italian authorities were seized by the police.

FIND EMPLOYMENT IN GERMANY.

Venice, Italy, Feb. 3.—Many Italian peasants, both men and women, are going to Germany to engage in farm and factory work, in response to offers of unusually high wages. For the men $1.62 a day is promised, and to the women 75 cents.

Italian newspapers are warning the peasants against accepting this employment, in view of the uncertainty in regard to Italy's foreign policy, but apparently many unemployed persons are willing to assume the risk involved.

GERMANY'S TERRIFIC LOSS.

East Prussian Casualties Far Exceed Those in West.

London, Feb. 4.—The German casualties suffered in the fighting in East are published here. These appear to exceed by far the enormous loss suffered on the west front. Among the regiments which no longer exist are the Third Infantry Reserve Regiment. All this unit's officers have been killed, wounded or are missing. Infantry regiments Nos. 61 and 151 were annihilated during the fighting in Poland.
