Pitezel's Baughter Called.
Jeanette Pitezel, or, as she was familiarly known in the family, "Dessie," the daughter of the dead Pitezel, was called as the first witness. She is a girl of about 15 or 16 years or age, and seemed perfectly composed as she took the oath.
Before the witness was asked any questions Holmes arose and asked the court that he be granted further privileges in the way of books, etc. to enable him to conduct his case. He also complained of the lack of a lawyer, whereupon Mr. Graham interrupted him, and said that he had held a con-

The Mounted Police Department has received reports from different police divisions, which tell of great devasta-tion by prairie fires in the Territories during the past few weeks. In addi-tion to the tracts already mentioned, over which the fire has run, reports to hand show that a stretch of coun-try from Bressylor settlement, north of Battleford, to Fort Pitt, 45 miles of country, was over-run by fire. The ladies of Toronto are well edu-cated with regard to the comfort and appearance of furs in winter time, but the men, as a great rule, are not. In other cities of the Dominion-Montreat, Ottawa, Quebec, and as far west as Winnipeg--it is different. There the men look comfortable and well dressed in furs, when the weather is wintry. A change is, however, predicted in Toronto this winter, and if only for the sake of novelty it is said that To-ronto men who have regard to style and comfort will don furs this winter.
