Sense of Humor Always Admitted But Is Found Different In Everyone

Comical Situations Never Cause Exactly the Same Reaction On Different Individuals.

A sense of humor is like a can of nitro-glycerine, harmless most of the time but far reaching in effect when active. A laugh at the right time goes a long way, but even an insignificant chuckle at the wrong moment sends the mislaid to the divorce courts and the business to the receiver.

There have been men, who have confessed to sundry crimes of the calendar, who have been men who have admitted robbing hen roosts, the poor box, stealing pennies from the blind man's cup, fleeing the widows and orphans, even murdering the aged for their lifetime meager savings, but there is not yet recorded a man who would admit that he lacked a sense of humor. Everybody is firmly convinced that he has a sense of humor and the subject is an essential characteristic looks out between the bars of the psychiatric ward to watch the aimless manderings of a demented world. Were it not for the saving sense of humor the road to the insane asylum would be lined with caving bottles.

HITS 'EM DIFFERENTLY. "Granted then that everyone has a sense of humor, a little observation will convince you that few people laugh at the same things. The amazing thing is that, although there is always something in common in the incidents at which you laugh are on the whole peculiar to yourself alone. As you watch the rambling antics of the film comedian as the entire police force pursue him through several film yards of impossible situations, perhaps you laugh uproaringly, until the tears of mirth run down your face and then again perhaps you don't. If you notice that bald-headed neighbor sitting in a staid silence, while chuckles of mirth wrack your frame an immediate indictment results. "The darn stiff hasn't got a sense of humor. Why don't he laugh?"

Perhaps a little later in the development of the alleged comic creation, friend neighbor roars with approval, while you sit in a glum silence waiting for something to happen. This time you stand indicted. And who can say which is right. It is something which defies the intellect of even the very clever.

CONVENTIONAL CUSTOMS. As a matter of fact 90 per cent. of our humor is the result of education. When an unfortunate citizen sees a particularly discarded banana skin on the populace at large bursts forth into guffaws not because they think it is particularly humorous, but because it is the conventional thing to do. The mere fact that a fellow slips on a banana skin is not remarkable at all. Any high school physics will explain the essential characteristic looks out between the bars of the psychiatric ward to watch the aimless manderings of a demented world. Were it not for the saving sense of humor the road to the insane asylum would be lined with caving bottles.

Somewhat tells a story and one man laughs from amusement and the rest of the bunch guffaw just to show they have a sense of humor. Were it not for the inordinate fear of being labelled as a man devoid of humor, most of the humorous matters of the day would never get across. We may lack an aesthetic taste, our musical faculties may be feeble, our morals entirely absent, but where is the man who will admit the absence of a sense of humor.

MOVING DAY IN MANY CENTERS

Custom Still Observed In Montreal and England.

LITTLE SIGNIFICANCE HERE May Day Is Also Associated With Employees' Strikes.

The symbolic Maypole which comes with the first day of May, is almost as old as civilization itself and betokens the spring which comes with the first of spring. While still observed to a great extent in the United Kingdom, its significance is being down somewhat in the New World.

May Day in England, and in at least one city in Canada—Montreal—has now become a day of riotousness on which the tenants' lease on rented property expires. It is quite naturally a day of great activity on the part of the movers, who commence early after midnight to vacate their premises and move to new quarters.

In Montreal moving starts about 3 a. m. and the highways and byways are monopolized by moving vans, trucks and ancient and modern vehicles, which are pressed into use before the day has well begun.

Very little is known of the origin of the day and little mention of it is made in encyclopedias. Together with the day is celebrated in some quarters of the globe as a moving day. It is also the day on which tradesmen have new agreements drawn up, objections to which usually result in a suspension of work.

The majority of the greatest strikes in history have occurred on May 1. One of the greatest outbreaks in the States, which occurred on this day a few years ago, tied up practically every railroad in the Union, with the exception of short branch lines, where the men were working under individual rule and management.

A dispatch from New York to-day stated that the day was being observed by the suspension of work by the iron workers, affecting some 3,000, who quit their jobs when they were informed that their wages were to be increased from $10.00 to $12.00 for an eight-hour day. Other centers in the States and Canada were also quiet, the unions having drawn up new wage agreements at the beginning of the year.

ENGINEER VISITS CITY—C. S. Coyne, Toronto, assistant regional engineer of the Canadian National Railways, visited London to-day. He was former engineer of the London division.

DEDUCTIONS CUT CUSTOM RETURNS

Decrease of $101,000 Due To Changed Methods.

HAVE TO PAY BACK MONEY Revision In Sales Tax Lowers All Receipts.

Despite a decrease of $101,591.22 in receipts at customs headquarters here for the month of April, which to the average citizen would make it appear that a period of financial depression exists, customs officers, who are fully conversant with the situation, state that the significance of the figures does not lie necessarily in that quarter and they see no reason for undue pessimism.

The large decrease is accounted for mainly in the change in the method of sales tax collection inaugurated at the beginning of the present year, when the succession tax was altered to one of a stated amount to be collected from one source. The deductions allowed manufacturers by the Government on sales tax paid on raw material on hand at the end of last year are mainly responsible, it is stated, in more simple terms, the Government is merely paying back in its chosen form money accepted before 1923 ended, on material which would be again taxable if no deductions were allowed. Decreases of varying amounts may be anticipated until June, it is explained, by which time most of the deductions will have been collected off the slate. Following that, it is believed that the figures will take a decided jump.

In every line, except the receipts for excise duties, collection went down during the month of April, the figures show. Import duties declined $38,939, sales tax on imports decreased $18,095, sales tax collections were lowered by $56,365, as against which excise duties were boosted by $7,394. In view of the alterations now in course of promulgation, however, the figures are not taken as indicative of the financial trend of the times.

EXPECT 500 AT PICNIC TO-NIGHT

Flock of Surprises Included In Event At "Y."

FOR A. Y. P. A.'S OF CITY Many Novel Games Will Be Run Off During Evening.

A flock of surprises is included in the three hours' entertainment being provided for the 500 persons who will attend the spring picnic of the Anglican Young People's Association at the Y. M. C. A. to-night. Many novel games are scheduled to be run off between 7.30 and 10 o'clock, and the evening will end with presentation of prizes by the honorary chairman, Rt. Rev. David Williams, lord bishop of Huron.

Organizations who are taking part in the unique event are the A. Y. P. A. of the following churches: Crown Memorial, All Saints', St. David's, St. Paul's, St. Mark's, St. James', St. George's and St. Luke's; the Elmar Club, of St. Paul's and the members of Huron College. These societies have a membership of several hundred, and each is sending almost a perfect representation.

Every person will be given a name card, so that formal introductions will not be necessary, while a hand-shaking program will be given as a preliminary to break down any reserve. Prizes will be awarded in this contest to the 25th person to shake hands with any of three persons selected beforehand.

WILL DIRECT SPORTS. George Sinclair, popular physical director, will have charge of the sports program and he promises a real thrill for the participants and high amusement for the spectators. Tams have been selected for straddle boy relay, from the different churches, and keen competition is assured. Girls only will take part in the hustle ball walk, while the mixed relay affords opportunity for competitive skill between the men and women. Men will also try their hand at a hat-trimming contest.

One of the events most looked forward to is the contest for ministers, presidents and secretaries of the A. Y. P. A.'s represented. This will be a special treat for the onlookers.

Other features on the well-planned program include a basket ball game between A. Y. P. A. stars and Huron College, in fancy costumes, an exhibition of electric torch swinging by senior leaders, a sing-song and light refreshments.

F. J. Jenkins, general secretary of the "Y," will welcome the guests.

W. O. REGIMENT WILL NOT PARADE TO-MORROW NIGHT

Owing to an error in the announced date of the Boys' Hobby Fair, the Western Ontario Regiment will not parade, as announced, to-morrow evening. The regular weekly parade will be held on Monday night, May 4.

James Dean Completes 27 Years' Service As Weigh Scales Clerk

Popular Official Weighs Over 20,000 Loads a Year, But Never Fails To Be Courteous Or Obliging To Anyone Who Visits Him.

Just 27 years ago to-day, James Dean, city scales clerk, weighed his first load of produce on the city scales. Since then over 20,000 loads a year have passed over the scales and under his vigilant eye, with a percentage error standing at the zero mark.

Everyone who ever visited the market place knows Jim Dean. From early morning till late at night he is busy, but never too busy to do a favor for his friends. Twenty-seven years of all sorts of commissions find his disposition still as even and tranquil as when he totted up his first load.

Accuracy and speed are demanded more than any thing else in his business. The produce is weighed on the scales with a fair degree of swiftness or else a lineup of growing customers waits. Let familiarity with the scales so practiced his eye that Mr. Dean can judge within a few pounds of a load, by it could be said that Jim Dean's attitude has characterized his term of office with the city. If your calculations don't tally with the scale check, ask him up again. You're probably wrong.

Few people are aware of the enormous number of favours "asked in the midst" of such a bodiam. And yet Jim remembers to tell John Jones and probably a score more like him, that Smith was looking for him, the vendor gets his paper or box, an itinerate teamster has his scale check thoroughly explained, he looks back over his books to find the weight of someone's wagon. It's all in a day's work.

A keen student of market conditions, a keen student of market conditions, a keen student of market conditions.

LARGE NUMBER CLAIM REFUND

Western Ontario Manufacturers Ask Sale Tax Reductions.

TO BE SETTLED BY JUNE Readjustment Necessary Through Tax Revision.

Between 500 and 600 claims for deductions in sales tax, involving sums aggregating well over $1,000,000, probably nearer twice that amount, have been prepared by manufacturers in various cities throughout Western Ontario and are now in course of settlement by Government officers in the cities affected.

The deductions arise out of the revised form of sales tax collection, whereby manufacturers since the beginning of the present year, are called upon to pay the whole amount, instead of a succession of payments, up to January 1, simultaneously with the change the Government announced that manufacturers would be reimbursed for sales tax payments made on raw material on hand at the end of last year. This raw material would otherwise be again taxable when made up into the finished product.

Of the approximate total of 500 deduction claims, in the network of 180 have been made by manufacturers here. The remainder are distributed over St. Thomas, Chatham, Windsor, Sarnia and other places. London manufacturers' claims average more than $1,000 each, but it is noted that in the case of outside concerns, especially those of border cities, there are claims entered for amounts greatly exceeding that figure.

It is expected that the larger claims will be wiped off the books by the end of June, but those involving the smaller amounts will require time. The reason for this is attributed to the larger manufacturers' superior yearly turnover.

The sums involved are not paid in cash, though on the surface they seem to be actual refunds. The method pursued is to deduct each month the amount owing in sales tax until the claimant's debt is defrayed. In other words, manufacturers with claims are not paying sales tax in cash and the amount set against their accounts is deducted from their claims.
