

General News.

The export business in apples from New York continues unusually extensive. It is estimated that 100,000 barrels leave that port for Liverpool alone during the current month, beside which a great many are shipped from the Northern part of the State via Montreal, and a great many more are going via Boston. An extraordinary fact is that apples are being shipped to the West Indies and South America.

The Supreme Court of Fredericton gave judgment Friday in the Tower case. All the judges except the Chief Justice in dissenting. The conviction of the Captain ordered to be quashed on two points concerning the cross-examination of Judge Palmer as to contents of papers not in evidence. Mr. Thompson, on behalf of the prosecution, gave notice of an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada. There is to be another argument before the Court before the case goes to Ottawa. The court set for the prosecution say that the end is not yet come.

The Hyde Estate.—A New York paper publishes the report of the annual meeting for the election of the trustees of the Hyde Association, held in that city on the 6th inst., when a Board was chosen as follows: N. D. Morgan, George Montague, J. H. Bury, H. C. Paine, H. Pomeroy, R. N. Lyon, Joel W. Hyde, C. S. Quimby and James H. Hyde. Two lawyers, representing the branches of the Hyde family in the United States, are now in London. The work of collecting evidence is being pushed forward rapidly, as the legal time for presenting the claim expires December 31, 1880.

W. M. C., of Bloomfield, Kings County, N. B., writes to the Sun:—I think that I can give the readers of your paper a lesson on what growing, match for any paper, and an still of the opinion that broad casting wheat is not right, so I thought that outside of my broadcast I would try a small quantity of drill. I ploughed and furrowed out a small piece, the same as I would for potatoes, only about 18 or 20 inches, put in the manure the same, then sowed the seed, and covered it lightly. I sowed two quarts on 12 square rods, and from that I raised two-and-a-half bushels of good wheat, which I think is forty bushels to one bushel, or thirty-two and a half to the acre. Beat that if you can. If anyone does I will try it again.

YARMOUTH.—The growth of wheat in Yarmouth County the past year has been something almost marvellous, if we take into account the unusually neglected production of that cereal. We are informed, on reliable authority, that the yield of wheat in Yarmouth County during the season cannot fall short of 12,000 bushels, and this means 2,400 barrels of flour, which again means a cash value of nearly $15,000. The growth of land, and the fact that the soil is so fertile, has been such an extent that the expectation is that these grains will show a very large yield. The quality of the wheat is also of a high order, and it is expected that the yield of this season has already been pronounced upon, and compares favorably with that of any country. The facilities for threshing, cleaning and elevating the grain have been greatly increased by the erection of a first-class mill in the centre of the town, where it is run by steam power, and has been in operation for some time, for the last six weeks. It is estimated that this mill, alone, will thresh and prepare for bread, at least 15,000 bushels of grain.

The Fictus Standard devotes a portion of its space to reporting the "Fruits of the season." Following are a few instances:—William McDonald, Brookfield, West River, planted last spring one and one-quarter bushels Lost Nation wheat. The yield was 25 bushels. Allan A. Ferguson sowed 1/2 bushels Red Fennel wheat last spring, and had a yield of 68 bushels. Donald King, Hardwood Hill, sowed eleven grains of oats four years ago, of a new and unknown variety, picked up at the Provincial Exhibition. That harvest he saved the grain, planting it the following spring. This he continued doing, and his result this fall was 42 stocks. The oats weighed 46 lbs. to the bushel—the common weight from 28 to 34—were cut as early as August 14, were perfect in shape and color, and yielded 20 bushels for each bushel sown. We do not deem it necessary to enlarge on these facts. They speak for themselves. What folly it is, in the presence of such, for people to be forever running down the agricultural capabilities of Nova Scotia—for our young farmers to be constantly seeking for new Canans in the West.

Speaking of the 20,000 emigrants to Western Kansas who are suffering famine on account of the repeated loss of their crops in that rainless, drought-stricken territory, the New York Herald remarks:—When will railway companies and land swindling real estate agents cease sending farmers to Western Kansas and other parts of the Far West, where no man can raise crops enough to keep himself from starvation? A large portion of the western country between the ninety-ninth and one hundredth meridian and the Rocky Mountain is rainless; scientists have said so for years, and so have weather reports and Government documents (and the sad experience of farmers). Crops cannot be raised without irrigation, either natural or artificial, and yet thousands of families have been persuaded to risk their life upon these arid plains, and thousands more will go there every year if glib-tongued persuasion can get them there. If any man or company were to make a business of persuading people to jump into the river or blow their brains out there would be a speedy increase of our jail population; why should it be permissible to coax men to locate on lands where death from famine can only be averted by public charity?

Ireland is a country full of strange contradictions. Notwithstanding the privation of last year—the period of so much want and suffering—the total addition to the Irish Savings Banks deposits in 1879 amounted to $7,086,945. This is the largest increase in any year on record. Only two counties show a decrease, and these are not in the distressed districts. But where the distress was said to be the greatest, there the deposits in the bank were the largest. During the period of the greatest privation, the former half of last year, the deposits were of larger amount than when the suffering was less. One-third of the addition came from the distressed districts, and the most oppressive torments, have thus been enabled to save up treasures in the Post-office Savings Bank. Now that better times are looming we fear that privation and hunger will not prove so remunerative to those who have hitherto thrived on organized benevolence.—S. American Journal.

A Fatal Railroad Accident.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 9.—Midnight.—A terrible accident occurred here to-night on the Pennsylvania Railroad. Wall's accommodation train, which left from Greensburg at 23rd street, where the riots occurred four years ago. Both trains were filled with passengers, and crowded. The train was derailed by the engine, which was derailed by the engine, which was derailed by the engine.

Mining Calamity.

In the Albion Mines Stellarton, N.S., on the 12th inst., the water was discovered trickling from the side of one of the workings near the face, and was supposed to be coming through a crevice. The work was abandoned about twelve years ago, and precautions supposed to be sufficient to guard against danger. The plans showed the old pit to be twenty yards distant. Two holes, thirty feet long, were kept closed straight, and blank hole to the rise. Mr. Hudson, the Manager, was sent for when the water was discovered coming in, and started to go down. James William Fraser, the underground manager, was at the spot, and was last seen with his hands on the boring rod, helping to drive the bore deeper. He drove wedges into the crevice from which the water was issuing, and began to put up supports as usual, but with no thought, it appears, of there being any real danger. Angus McKay left the scene five minutes before the catastrophe, and reports that nothing serious was apprehended. At this time there were about three hundred men in the mine one thousand feet below the surface. The side burst in where Fraser and his men were at work, and the water rushed in like a torrent expelling from a mountain spring. The men were swept from their feet, dashed against the walls, tossed about and carried onward by the restless waves, which swept away timbers, tore up tracks, and created havoc generally. Mr. Hudson, who was on his way to the scene, was started by the roar of the water and almost immediately encountered the advance guard of the invading. He was nearly swept off his feet and struggled back to the shaft with difficulty. The alarm quickly spread, and the men rushed from all parts of the mine to the shaft, and were taken to the surface as quickly as possible. Volunteers were called for, and descended in search of the missing, and after the first shock was over, plenty were ready to go. Mr. John Greener, Manager of the Vale Colliery, organized a gang and went down the main shaft, and James Watson took a gang down the Fan pit. The rush of water had slackened, and about three feet deep in the slant. The relief parties made their way with great difficulty against the current. Among the delicate bodies that were entangled with timbers and sleepers, Mr. Hudson soon joined the searchers, and was accompanied by Mr. Robert Simpson, Manager of the Drummond Mine. The pit's mouth was surrounded by a great crowd of men, women and children, all this afternoon, including the whole population of Stellarton, and the surrounding town. The wives and children of the missing were weeping, their friends were trying to comfort them and intense excitement prevailed. When bodies were brought up they were surrounded by a dense mass of curious and sympathizing people. Painful scenes were witnessed as the dead, bruised, bleeding, mangled were restored to their relatives.
