MODERATION is the silken string, running through the pearl chain of all the virtues.

THE Democrat's creed for the glory of his native land is surely a logical and true one. It is only by the destruction of its aristocracy that a country can become peerless.

THE Dean of Bristol is named Elliott, while the Bishop of the diocese is called Ellicott. When the latter was appointed, someone congratulated the Dean, but he sadly replied: "I am afraid there is a little mistake. I am Ellicott without the 'e' (ee).

THE way to become perfect is to follow the advice you give to others.

"A MAN may be a profit in his own country," observed a Jamaica gentleman, when he sold a nigger for thrice his original price.

MASTER (to servant whose feet are badly swollen): "Have you ever been treated for those corns, Mike?"

MIKE: "Niver, sor, but Oi wouldn't mind takin' a drink wid yer honour."
