

Summary

- Reduce the public sector by cutting back on public services
- Privatize public services
- Increase the role of the private sector in the economy
- Maintain the status quo in the public sector

As a result, the public sector will continue to grow, but at a slower rate than in the past. The government will also be forced to increase its spending on public services, but not as much as in the past. The government will also be forced to increase its spending on public services, but not as much as in the past.

Inside the Fortress: What's Going on at the FTAA Negotiations

The legacy of SAPs in Latin America is that having secured a legal right to export goods and services, the countries have been unable to diversify their economies. The FTAA negotiations were officially launched in 1994, but the process was delayed for several years. It was not until the dust settled that the FTAA negotiations were officially launched in 1994.

The second round of negotiations was held in 1998, but the process was delayed for several years. It was not until the dust settled that the FTAA negotiations were officially launched in 1994.

Marc Lee
Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives—BC Office
March 2001

The Strategic Context of the Americas
 The FTAA negotiations are being held in a context of rapid economic change. The FTAA negotiations are being held in a context of rapid economic change. The FTAA negotiations are being held in a context of rapid economic change.