

The prospects before this country are dazzlingly bright. There never was a time when Canadians had more reason for confidence in their country and her future. Canadians are not a mercurial people. At their best they are steady, stable and self-reliant. The Canadian economy has its problems, but it is sound and strong. Canada remains the best investment in the world.

s/c