

I join Hands where I think what you say is just and reasonable. I agree with you intirely in your judgment of a place Bill, which would, I believe, be more effectual, if not made too violent in its first operation like an Oliverian self-denying Ordinance. Your judgment on Mediators is surely just and sensible; and we may believe the Ministry think so, who have not employed any Mediation, though they have offered Terms to their Enemy.

I might now ask yours and the public Indulgence for any Mistakes. I have not willingly perverted or misrepresented any thing. I do not pretend to the Credit of a Writer, but I have endeavoured to understand the Question I write upon, as I think every Man is bound to do who troubles the Public with his Opinions. If I am mistaken in what I advance, it does not much signify who the Author of wrong Notions may be. If my Opinions are well grounded, and my Remarks just, my Country may receive some Benefit from them; and if she receives a Benefit, it is of little Concern what Hand administers it.

I am, SIR,

Yours, &c. &c.
