THE SET OF THE SAILS.

It is true that fate, or God, destines every one of us to cross life's ocean, but how one shall cross it, whether successfully, or unworthily, or unhappily, is left very much to herself.

The fact is that no one has a right to be resigned to any unfavorable thing or circumstance that she can, by forethought, by will, by endeavor and industry, change. So-called resignation is often an excuse for a flabby will or lazy habits of mind and body, or both.

We shall have a most effective factor in remaking the world for good, for happiness, for wholeness, when every one as soon as she is old enough to think seriously shall set her face and bend her efforts toward something that will not only give her a living, but a life—strong, pulsing, stimulating, adequate life, in which every woman purposes in her heart what she will be and do, and, in spite of all that others may say and urge, casts off every detaining cord and sets and keeps her course towards the chosen port where she shall successfully do what she feels she can do well, and will be happy, and therefore strong and successful, in doing.

The Turkish Bath.

This is the time of the year when everyone feels the need of some invigorating, rejuvenating process, whereby to repair the ravages of the winter's dissipation on one's impaired constitution.

About a dozen women were "gathered together" yesterday morning in a well-known establishment for Turkish baths, and most interesting was the assemblage. Fat and thin, short and tall, old and young, silent and talkative, all very representative of the city, all, evidently, enamored of the bath.

The scribbler person, who reveals equally in the luxury of the hot room, the steam-room, the rub-down, the needle-bath and the plunge, was fortunate enough to have a long talk with the lady who presides over the bath, and with true reportorial inquisitiveness, she asked: "Tell me wherein, do you consider, lies the real merit of the Turkish bath?"

And the presiding "genius of the bath" smiled, as she answered: "Personally, I think I'm a walking advertisement of its merits. I'm 65 years old. I've brought up a large family, and for 40 years I've superintended this business. I'm active, bright, hale, and, as you see, not a wrinkle in my face. I attribute it to the baths.

"Men understand the importance of keeping young and well-groomed much better than women, although I think women in Toronto are becoming much more modernized in this respect.

"At the first place, every human body absorbs impurities in blood and system.

"There is only one way of throwing off these impurities, and this is by excessive perspiration. There is only one way of securing this perspiration in a harmless way, and that is by Turkish baths.

"So many thin women appear to think that a Turkish bath is a waste of time, and that there are violent extreme changes from hot to cold, from cold to hot again, which shock the system.

"But, you know, this is not so. You scarcely perceive the difference in temperature, and in the needle bath the change from hot to cold is gradual, so that the result is invigorating not enervating.

ervating, and the cold bath is the one thing required to tone up your system. The massage, too, is most beneficial, and one is astounded at the dirt which is rubbed out of the extended pores.

"No amount of hot baths or soap can take this out at home, and I am perfectly sure that the woman who once experiences the benefits of a Turkish bath will never allow herself to forego its advantages again.

"For rheumatism, nerve troubles or spring tired feeling, the Turkish bath is equally good, and I am sure that there would be less sickness in the world if people would only appreciate the importance of the Turkish bath."

LADY SOMERSET'S FAREWELL.

LONDON, May 3.—Lady Henry Somerset, who is retiring from public life in order to devote herself to private charities, made her final appearance as a public speaker this afternoon before a fashionable audience in the picture gallery of the Earl of Ellesmere's residence, Bridgewater House, giving an interesting lecture on Joan of Arc.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. J. J. Keiso and children returned yesterday from a visit to relatives in Tennessee, accompanied by Miss Hattie Madden Hopkins, niece of Mrs. Keiso.

The monthly meeting of the Agincourt branch of E.Y.W.I. will be held on Tuesday, May 7, at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. R. Forster, Elmwood. All are cordially invited. The program committee will meet at 2 o'clock sharp. A full attendance is requested.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel May and Mrs. H. S. May, 80 Wellesley-street, have returned from Atlantic City and New York.

A Toronto girl has been showing to her friends a dainty souvenir which will probably be imitated by a number of her girl friends. It is a little volume bound in white satin, and with a spray of violets decorating the words, "Reveries of a Bachelor." Inside is found nothing but a collection of the portraits of John Drew in the characters of the plays in which he has impersonated an unmarried man. The attractiveness of the volume has been commented upon by all who have seen it.

Miss Brenda Smellie, who has returned from her visit to London, has joined her family at the hotel.

The closing exercises of the senior and junior physical culture classes of the Anglican Young Women's Club will be held at the West End Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on Tuesday evening. There will be marches, fancy steps, drills, games and an exhibition of basketball. In addition, Charles Leslie, Gertrude Langton and Kittie Frett will contribute a program.

PEEVISH AND CROSS.

Peevish, cross babies are sick babies—the well baby is always happy. Perhaps there may be nothing to indicate just what is the matter, but you may depend upon it there is something troubling the little one or he would not be cross. A few doses of Baby's Own Tablets will cure the cause and make baby happy. They are a certain cure for the minor ills of babyhood. Thousands of mothers keep them constantly in the house to guard against the sudden illness of baby. A Tablet now and again will keep the little one well. Mrs. James Jewers, Beaver Harbor, N.S., says: "I have given Baby's Own Tablets to my baby as occasion required since she was a day old. They have always helped her, and now at a year and a half she is a fine, healthy child. The Tablets, I think, are indispensable to mothers of young children." Sold by druggists, or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Brookville, Ont.

1866—GIRLS' JUMPER DRESS. With a Separate Gimp, Paris Pattern No. 1866. All Seams Allowed.

This little dress would be an excellent model for any of the summer styles, and admits a variation in treatment; as, for instance, with a little striped silk from the hertie might be of a plain color matching one of the stripes. In that case a fold of the same color might be used as a trimming around the bottom of the skirt, and also on the belt.

The pattern is in 4 sizes—6 to 12 years. For a girl of 10 years, the dress requires 5.54 yards of material 20 inches wide, or 3.34 yards 36 inches wide, or 2.78 yards 42 inches wide; 6.34 yards of insertion to trim. The gimp needs 2.54 yards, 20 inches wide, or 1.53 yards 36 inches wide. As illustrated, 5.8 yards of all-over embroidery, 18 inches wide, is needed for collar, wristbands and upper part of gimp.

Price of Pattern, 10 cents.

traying—and afterwards walked in the garden.

Down below the roses, in the walled enclosure of old times, the blue eyes of the man, not too feverishly, with a watering-pot, and Johnnie, smiling his amiable smile, were looking down at the vantage of an overturned barrow.

"Hello!" said Faring. "Who are those two? New gardeners?"

"One of them is," said the woman, "the one who has been here. The other is a poor old tramp, who is ill and worn out and can't work much. He was sent to me by—She started and looked at the man with a look of surprise. "By some people up in that Connecticut village where I live," she said. "He has had a very sad time of it," she said, "and I want to make him comfortable for a while. You must let me, Harry. You mustn't stop me. It's a whim of mine."

Faring laughed gently. "You shall have all the whims you like," he said, "and you shall follow them all out. The poor old beggar looks as if he needed a comfortable place. Jove, that's a nasty cough! Are you putting him up in one of the huts? Right?"

He halted near the man with the watering-pot, and looked at him attentively with a little frown, as if he were trying to remember something.

"I've seen you somewhere before, my man," he said, at last.

The man said "Yes, sir," civilly, and as Faring did not immediately go on he continued:

"It might be almost anywhere, sir. I've been about a good bit."

"Yes," said Faring, frowning a little, "should like to know where. It's rather odd."

Suddenly Beatrix saw something come into the man's blue eyes. They seemed to widen a bit. Then for an instant they dropped, and the man put up one hand over his mouth. She smiled at him, and a triumphant smile, very awful.

"I think I know where it was, sir," said the man, looking up again.

"Yes," said Faring. "Where, then?"

The man looked towards Beatrix, and she drew a quick breath.

"I think it must have been in Cape Town, sir, three years ago," said the man. "I was down from Mafeking just about then."

"It may be," said Faring, slowly. "It may be. I was there at that time. I think I have seen you since then, tho. It doesn't matter, of course."

"Yes, sir," said the man, looking still at Beatrix Faring.

She pulled at her husband's arm. "Come, Harry," she said. "We're missing the sun. Go on. And then turned away. But Faring paused for an instant more beside the bent little gray man who sat smiling on the overturned barrow.

"Mrs. Faring tells me you have been ill," he said. "I'm glad she has taken you in hand. We shall have you right again soon, doubtless. But if I were you I'd keep in out of the night air. It isn't too good for coughs."

Herbert Buchanan made a sort of bobbing curtsy.

"Thankee, sir," he said. "The beautiful lady has been very good to me. Sir, I feel fine, being fed so proper and so often and having a real bed to sleep in. I'm very nicely, sir, thankee."

Faring looked cheerfully at the man, and he turned away towards the foot of the garden where the path began to mount to Phryne's little hill of vantage.

As they turned, Beatrix stumbled, and would have fallen if Faring had not caught her in his arms. She gave a small cry.

"It's nothing," she said. "I caught my foot. Come, we'll go on." She leaned a bit heavily upon her husband as they walked, and drew his arm close about her shoulders. Faring thought it was one of her many little expressions of tenderness, and when they had gone out of sight of the two men he stooped and kissed her lips. As a matter of fact, she had come very near to fainting. She had not realized, until it was over, how terrible a strain she suffered when Harry Faring stood face to face with what remained of Herbert Buchanan and spoke with him. She had brought the meeting about rather deliberately because it had to occur. But when it was over, when Faring turned away with careless nod, the world went suddenly black before her eyes, and she cried out, and would have fallen but for her husband's arm.

Sitting up in the little open pavilion with his wife's head in the hollow of his shoulder, Faring looked out to the golden west, and the frowning effort at recollection again pulled at his brows.

ESTATES OF THE DEAD.

Several Wills Probated, Involving Up to $9300.

Several wills were filed for probate in the surrogate court yesterday, the value of the estates involved ranging from $3000 to $9300.

Evidence in the case of the will of the late Miss H. O. Dunn, who died Sept. 27th last, showed that the total value of her estate was $85732. The legatees are two brothers, Robert Henry, who receives $1000, and James Joseph, who gets the balance of the estate.

The whole of the estate of the late Joseph Parrott goes to his widow, Mrs. Jane Parrott of 180 Ossington-avenue. The amount involved is $6550.48, chiefly in real estate, and other stocks.

The estate of the late Mrs. E. Blackhall is appraised at $7000, which has been divided among seven children. It is to be distributed as follows: Legacies of $500 each to her daughters, Margaret J. Bantley and Mary L. Chalmers; $1000 each to her daughter, Elizabeth Blackhall and son Bertram, and $500 each to her sons Fred and Edward.

The late H. P. Somers, formerly of The Mail and Empire staff, left $5000 insurance. He made no will, and Robert Inglis has applied for permission to administer it on behalf of the deceased's father, Rev. H. R. Somers of Breconshire, Wales.

The whole of the estate of the late Mary Green of this city, who died at Pacific Grove, California, last March, goes to her daughter, Edith. Its declared value is $1200.

TWO FAMILIES ASPHYXIATED.

NEW YORK, May 3.—William Cross, 38 years old, his wife and their two sons, were found dead from inhaling illuminating gas in their home in Jersey City.

John McCracken, aged 72 years, and his son, William, 36 years old, were found dead in their apartment in West Forty-Eighth-street. Gas was escaping from a stove in their room.

KILLED THREE FOR $16.

MIDDLETOWN, N.Y., May 3.—Charles H. Rogers, who is charged with the murder of the two Olney brothers, and Alice Ingerick, who lived on the Olney farm, was brought here to-day. Rogers was captured in Los Angeles after a chase which continued more than a year. He secured $16 from his victims. Rogers was in an exceptionally good spirits upon his arrival here to-day.

PACKERS GIVE INCREASE.

SOUTH OMAHA, Neb., May 3.—The entire working force of all the packing houses in South Omaha, comprising about 8000 men, were to-day notified that an advance in wages of from 5 per cent. to 15 per cent. had been granted them.

Two hundred men, who were out on strike from Amour's and Cudahy's plants, returned to work immediately.

Brotherhood Day.

A unique feature of the services in Cooke's Church to-morrow will be a presentation of the Grand Old Brotherhood Day, which has been in training for some time past. The occasion is "Brotherhood Day," and is the annual celebration of the birth of the first chapter of the organization, known as the Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip. The organization has seen nineteen years in the United States, and has now over nine hundred chapters, representing twenty-four denominations and enrolling 40,000 men. The first chapter was organized in Cooke's Church five years ago, and the work has steadily increased, until at the present time there are twenty-one chapters in Ontario, enrolling 1000 members.

In about nine churches in Toronto, "Brotherhood Day" is being observed by special services.

$50 For the Firemen.

A letter has been received by the chief of the fire department from the Smart Bag Company, Limited, saying: "We wish to thank you and your brigade for the good work you did at the fire in the building of the Ontario Storage Company. Thru the energetic efforts of your department, we suffered no interruption in the operation of our factory."

"Will you kindly accept the enclosed cheque for $50, the same to be devoted to whatever benevolent object you may have in connection with your department?"

Trout Fishing.

Many places reached by the Grand Trunk Railway afford excellent locations for trout fishing—one of the grandest sports known to the lover of the rod. Secure copy of "Haunts of Fish and Game," giving full particulars for tickets and further particulars call at Grand Trunk City office, northwest corner King and Yonge-streets.

The company secured for the present year's performance is said to be one of the best that have ever appeared in the play. A magnificent new scenic equipment has been prepared and an unusually large contingent of little darkey boys will add novelty to the presentation. "In Old Kentucky" has been played every year for fourteen years. This is a record that is hard to equal in the annals of the American stage.

The engagement opens with a matinee on Monday and during the week a matinee will be given every day.

At Shea's Theatre next week Manager Shea has secured as the headline attraction, the "Stunning Grenadiers," the biggest act on the vaudeville stage this season. The Grenadiers include the famous prima donna Meredith Melrose and Miss Flor Allen, the Parisian chanteuse. The girls in the act are nearly all from London and Paris and were not alone chosen for their tall and prepossessing appearance, but they are trained singers of a high order. The production is presented in three elaborate scenes, with five changes of the richest and most gorgeous costumes. As a special extra attraction Tom Nawn & Co. will be the welcome addition, in that delightful Irish comedy, "Pat and the Genie." Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Barry will furnish another feature for the week in their comedy, "The Village Cup." Mr. and Mrs. Barry are favorites and never fail to be more than pleasing. Julia Agnes O'Connor will sing every performance during the week. She possesses a well-trained, marvellously pure and beautiful soprano voice. The Nichols Sisters black their faces and call themselves "The Kentucky Belles."

22 PUBLIC 22 AMUSEMENTS

Charles Frohman will present John Drew in Piner's four-act play, "His House in Order" at the Princess Theatre for three nights and Wednesday matinee, beginning next Monday.

The play is generally conceded to be Piner's greatest success. It has now enjoyed over a year's run in London.

Mr. Drew's company comes from the Empire Theatre, New York, where it has been playing to crowded houses for over four months. Mr. Drew has one of the middle-aged, polished peace-maker parts, which fit him so well.

Over all the four acts of the play hovers the spirit of a dead first wife, whose saintliness is shown in the face of her successor until that headless girl rebels. She discovers letters blackening the reputation of the dead woman. It is then that Hilary Jesson, her brother-in-law (Mr. Drew) steps in to straighten things out.

Scarcely less important than his part in that of the young wife, assigned to Miss Mabel Rebeck. In "His House in Order," Piner, who is at his best in drawing intricate feminine types, has concentrated his efforts in picturing a woman misunderstood and out of tune with her surroundings, but, at heart, essentially good. She passes thru severe trials; at times she is almost swamped by the intolerable circumstances in which she lives, but in the end she triumphs over them and puts her tormentors to rout. The role gives Mr. Drew full scope for his polished comedy powers, while at the same time enabling him to show his dramatic qualities in two or three of the best dramatic scenes that have ever been allotted to him.

An engagement of great interest will be the appearance at the Princess on Monday evening, May 13, of the most famous play of the century, "The Lion and the Mouse," by Charles Klein. The engagement is for one week. The original New York cast and production will be seen here, including Grace Elliston and Oliver Doud Byron.

"That refreshing drama of the bluegrass state, "In Old Kentucky," is to be presented at the Grand Old Theatre. The play, which is now in the fourth season of its successful career, shows no sign of waning popularity. The picturesque scene is always new and always enjoyable. Their whirlwind of fun and frolic, of music and mirth, is contagious and they have a Subscription lists for all three nights, May 30, 31 and June 1 are in the hands of the Press Club members in the various newspaper offices.

"The Great Wall Street Mystery," or "The King of Wire Tappers," an entirely new melodramatic production, will be presented for the first time in this city, the Majestic, for the next week. The play is divided into four big acts, with eight scenes. A grand salon of an ocean steamer, a facsimile of one of New York's famous court rooms and the office of the wire tappers are three of the most important scenes. The play tells of what a woman will do for the man she loves—arguing her case before judge and jury and winning against the most brilliant lawyers.
