As was well known, Mrs. St. Germain had enjoyed remarkably good health all her long life, never having been ill for a single day. About two weeks ago, however, acute peritonitis set in, and she failed to rally from its effects. The deceased lady, who was in her 70th year, had lived in Toronto since her marriage in 1853. She was born at Castle Comer, Kilkenny, Ireland, and was the daughter of Thomas Costen, who, when she was only 4 years of age, emigrated to Canada and afterwards became deputy warden of the penitentiary at King-ston. Her brother is Thomas Costen, of the firm of Thomas Costen & Co., Montreal. She married Mr. St. Germain over 45 years ago, and her children, a son and a daughter, passed away before her. During her long residence in the city and in North Toronto, Mrs. St. Germain became very generally known and loved for her many estimable qualities.'

"THE GIRL FROM PARIS." Of all the English musical novelties which have been seen here since "The Gaiety Girl," none have caught the attention of pleasure-seekers as fixedly as "The Girl From Paris." Probably this is because the catchy music and the bright book are interpreted by one of the cleverest companies of American actors ever gotten together for a play of the sort. There is only one fault which the critic can find, and that is that the performance is too laughable. A pain in the side is sure to be the reward of the most staid or blaise theater-goer who sits out its two extremely funny acts. No fits of the blues, however deep-dyed, could outlast the first act. The formation of a cadet corps at the place in the near future. The quesconsidered by No. 1 committee of the board of education last night. Mr. Merchant said that if a success, the corps would be a very good thing. But they were not always a success. The government grant of $50 on the corps passing inspection should go to the drill instructor, and the cadets should furnish their own uniforms. All this was agreed to, and the committee decided unanimously to recommend to the board the formation of a corps. No action was taken upon the communication of the Port Hope Collegiate Institute board, complaining that the last senior leaving examination had been too severe in marking. Principal Merchant did not believe there was any fault to find with the papers. The reason so many failed was that the marks required had been raised to 50 per cent. He believed this was as it should be: it was the highest examination for teachers' certificates.

When Miss Northcott's name was added to the substitute staff, the commen't of the inspector was: "You will soon have as large a substitute as you have a permanent staff." Progress will be reported upon Mr.

GOOD WORK

Being Accomplished by the Convalescent Home.

The President Reads a Most Gratifying Report-Re-election of Officers.

The Convalescent Home's annual meeting was held yesterday, the proceedings being opened by Rev. Canon Richardson. The speaker commented forcibly on the good work of the home, and expressed a hope that it would always be as successful in caring for the helpless as it was at the present

There was a large turnout of members. The president and other officers were re-elected; also the same advisory board and board of management, with the addition of the names of Mrs. Malcolm Kent and Mrs. McWhinney,

The president presented her annual report as follows:

"The close of this, the tenth year since the Convalescent Home was established, finds no falling off in the good work it has been able to accom-plish. The total cases admitted have been 36, including the four remaining in residence over the end of our last year, nearly all of whom have, on leaving, been so strengthened and recovered as to be well enough to resume their occupation, or to enter upon such work Collegiate Institute will probably take as the friends of the institution have been able to procure for them. Of the above 36 (6 more than the previous vear), 7 were Canadians, 16 English, Irish, 5 Scotch, 2 Swiss, and 2 from the United States. In religion, 32 were Protestants. 4 Roman Catholics. Thirty-one were wholly gratis, the remaining five paying only a comparatively small sum. All of the patients admitted this year were from the city of London-many from the city hospital. "Although it has been sometimes very doubtful whether the month's receipts would cover even the very carefully adjusted expenditure of that month, yet we can again most thankfully record that no patient has been refused admission because he or she could pay no fee. Our treasurer states our expenditure to have been $569 31, as against receipts, $610 14; so we have a balance of just $40 83 Wherewith to begin our autumn and winter. We have simply 'no expectations,' except that He will not fail us who, for the ten years of our work on behalf of His sick and needy ones, has never let us want, and has never given us over to despair. "Whilst deeply grateful to those who have helped us hitherto, we would ask all who may read our report if they cannot do something for us this year. We trust that they will not forget the Convalescent Home because we have not sent the collector to their doors; this, for ten years, we have refrained from doing, lest we should do injury to the claims of other charitable homes. and we still venture to hope that friends may be raised up for us who will send us their offerings freely and ungrudgingly, thus enabling us to continue to work on lines which God has curely blessed. This is the first year that we have been unable to make any payment upon the purchase of the building, but our interest has been met and our winter's fuel provided, leaving us with a very small balance on hand.

"We desire to return special thanks as follows: For donations from the Dalton trust, to Mr. Kent for his most acceptable gift of $100, to the Ministering Children's Leagues of the Memorial and All Saints' Church; and to several other friends for gifts of various kinds, which have been acknowledged monthly by the kind consideration of our ever helpful daily papers, The Advertiser and the Free Press. for visits of sympathy from friends, for gratis professional services from medical men, and for rellgious services from several of the Christian societies and associations of the city, one of whom sent us a beautiful little organ. Words of hearty gratitude are also due to the purchasing committee and gentlemen of the advisory board, and words also of continued appreciation of the very faithful services of our matron and her sister. All of which is respectfully H. A. BOOMER, "President." submitted.
