The entire four movements of the Symphony were played, the first, Adagio and Allegro Non Troppo in B minor with the two haunting themes announced repeated over and over again, now in one section, now in another, now closely related, again moving independently, dying away with a murmur of resignation of trombones and tuba. After the infinite sadness of the first movement, shot through with rays of hope a movement of dignity and grandeur, the second appears as a relaxation from tension, a lighter and more graceful mood. Yet pervading this effort to achieve a higher spiritual altitude is the persistent undertone of melancholy. The third movement, Allegro molto vivace presents a mood of exultation, of triumph, of barbaric abandon, the spirit of the conqueror who sweeps all before him. After the climax of exaltation comes the reaction of universalle wee of

WAITED FOR LAUNDRY BEFORE SURRENDERING

With the American Army in France Friday, Dec. 14.—A story of how German officers are surrendering is told by an American officer just returned from the British front, where he had been undergoing an examination. One night recently a German officer crawled across No Man's Land to the Brith wire, raised his hands and cried 'Comrade!" British soldiers covered nim with rifles, whereupon the German said: "Excuse me if I lower my hands. I've got a package here." The surprised Britishers granted the request, and the German dropped into the trench. In his hands he had a package of laundry. He said he had decided to surrender a week before, but had waited until his laundry came back.

Christmas Sale of

Presenting Silks for every purpose, featuring patterns for gifts and to make gifts. The opportunities presented in this sale are manifold. Not alone are there great quantities of silks for the present needs in prevailing style and splendid qualities, but there are numberless silks suitable for making gifts. It is particularly appropriate that this stock is so complete and meets the demand when so many are seeking practical gifts-and so many have evening dresses to provide.

Silks today have become a staple fabric, being utilized for almost all kinds of wearing apparel in both outer garments and for underwear. Then, too, the popular prices which this store is able to sell silks for, and also the scarcity of most other fabrics have greatly helped to further increase the demand. Below are some extra values priced much below today's values:
