Thus, seventeen missionaries received part of their support from this Society.

Aid was given to Truro only for a limited period, in consequence of an engagement entered into by the late Rev. T. C. Leaver, under which he paid the Society £40 per annum.

The Committee cannot but regret that there is at present no missionary at Westport, to which place £50 per annum has been paid for some years past, and they earnestly hope that before long another laborer may be found for this important though arduous mission.
