Musical comedy melodies that are thousand years old are being sung in certain productions now runating in New York, according to the delightful young woman who is the beginning Monday, says she can prove her contention.

"I hardly suppose anyone would believe such a statement," Miss wright said in a recent interview. However, I know that the melodies that were played in the anticipation of the Viennese operetta, ing heard on Broadway, and the peometric production of the Viennese operetta, who comes to the Grand Opera House music.
