The Man in The Street

Traveller day tomorrow.
And every British subject can obey Lord Nelson's injunction to the extent of helping along the Red Cross work, at least.
Did you notice that President Wilson voted for woman suffrage yesterday? Of course, the fact that he is a fencer may not have anything to do with it, but still.
Encouraging Matrimony
Cupid must be a hitherto unrecognized ally of the empire or else he has a special post at the War Office. First they provided separation allowances for soldiers' wives, and now they are talking of a mild form of conscription under which the bachelors will be taken first.
A Zepplin was wrecked in France yesterday through colliding with a chimney, which again shows the everlasting folly of hitting the high spots.
The occupants probably learned also what the lamented J. J. Lee felt like when he first struck the "Big Smoke."
Where's the Inspector?
Some people who thought butter in packets during the last few days, learned that the difference between a one pound print and one pound was about six ounces.
And, of course, purchasing in quantities of five or ten pounds, the householder is paying a little more than war prices for the table necessity.
As a caption, we asked as to the whereabouts of an inspector for the purpose of enforcing honest weight in stamped packages, but we're not sure that there is such a being.
The Turkish fleet no longer exists, says headline. Well, most people thought that both ships had been demolished long ago.
A New Classification
It may be possible for some people to tell any other kind of a Canadian from a Nova Scotian, and the latter from a Scandinavian, but some others cannot. A dispatch from Quebec to the local press yesterday told of the finding of the body of an unidentified sailor on the Gaspe coast. Because of his being fair-haired, it said, he was taken for "either a Nova Scotian or a Swede."

BEGIN WINTER'S WORK
Gymnasium and Social Hall of Fairville Baptist Church Opened
Last evening the Camelot gymnasium and social hall, in connection with the Fairville Baptist church, was formally reopened for the winter season. There was a large attendance of young people as well as adults from the congregation.
Last winter the gymnasium only was available, but this year a social room has been fixed up, the walls sheathed, pictures hung and here games will be played during the long winter evenings.
Mr. Bond, of the Y. M. C. A., was in charge of the gymnastic exercises last evening, and interesting games of basketball were put on by two teams of girls against two teams of boys. Drills and physical exercises were also on the programme.
Rev. P. R. Hayward announced that the Canadian standard efficiency tests had been adopted for the boys and modified form would be applied to the girls in training. He also outlined the winter's work.
Harry Keane, of the Y. M. C. A., who will supervise physical instruction on Tuesday evening, also spoke and Geo. White, principal of Tower school, who has promised his assistance to the boys on Monday evenings and girls on Tuesday nights, in the gym. Carey Black referred to the excellent results such efforts were bound to achieve among the young people. The meeting was most enthusiastic.

SEA CASE IN POLICE COURT

Captain A. Hansen, of the three-masted schooner Valkyrie, appeared in the police court this morning to answer a charge of assaulting a young member of his crew named Karl Andersen. The complainant said that on September 19 he was sent to repair a sail, and while doing so a piece of rope fell down on top of the captain's cabin. The captain, he said, became angry and struck him in the face with his fist and then took a piece of rope and beat him over the neck and back.
Captain Hansen said he had to tell the sailor several times to place rope on the ship and not fling it down. He denied having struck him, although he acknowledged that he had attempted to do so. In answer to Magistrate Ritchie, the captain said he sailed on his last trip from Ribe, Denmark.
As considerable business was pending in the police court, the case was set aside until Friday morning. D. King Hansen, Danish vice-consul, appeared on behalf of Captain Hansen.
One man arrested on a drunkenness charge was fined $8 or two months in jail.
The case against the Chinese was continued. Sam Ham was on the stand during the major portion of the hearing. It will be continued this afternoon.

CALLS ON BOYS IN FAIRVILLE TO LEND A HAND

Sapper Leo Quigg, From Firing Line, Sends Summons For Volunteers
WRITES OF COMRADES
More Nerve, He Says, Required For Enlisting Than to Carry Out Any Work Since Given Them to Do
In a letter received by one of his friends in Fairville, Sapper Leo Quigg, of the First Canadian Contingent, has a word to say to the young men of his own community and their duty in this great war. It ought to leave an impression, coming as it does from the very heart of the danger zone. Part of the letter follows:—
"Received your letter of September 9 and was very pleased to get it as any word from our own home town does us a world of good. I am in the best of health and the same can be said of Dennis Hanlon, Frank Kelly, George Craft and John O'Keefe, although I can not see these fellows (except Craft), very often but I always meet somebody who can tell me about them. Charlie Humphries is also in excellent condition and wishes to be remembered to friends.
"I would like to write and tell the boys of Fairville some idea of what it is like out here and that it is not as bad as some people claim it is, and also emphasize the point that we cannot get too many men. Not one of our bunch regrets the day, over a month ago, when we took the oath to do or die for the old flag, and I really think it took more nerve to do that than to carry through any job we have been permitted to undertake out here.
"The boys of the first Canadian division have done a good deal since coming to France last February and what is left of them are still anxious to do more and want to be here to the finish. Every man you meet here says that he would like to be great when he gets them on the run, we won't mind if we get no sleep for weeks as long as we are advancing. Take a football team that has the ball on the move toward the goal, how hard the men work to keep it on the jump, and their feelings when they do it, you know it is harder to get a thing started than it is to keep it moving after you get it started and the boom of cannon, the newspaper reports will state that there was a quiet day at the front.
"The front line of trenches is called the firing line and the second line the supports. In the latter a great many shelters are built as a shelter from shrapnel fire when bombardment is on, and if it is too hot for the men at the front they fall back sixty yards to the supports and when the artillery has ceased a bit they return to the front line to ward off German infantry attacks.
"The German trenches run about the same as ours and between our and their distances vary, perhaps 100 yards being the average though there are spots not more than half that distance. Sometimes remains are passed between the men as most of the Germans speak good English and often refer to hotels they have worked in both in Canada and United States, familiar to us.
"The most trying and dangerous job on the nerves is what is called the listening patrol which consists of a small party of men who go out between the front lines at night to watch and listen for an enemy's attack and warn our line by telephone. If they are seen or heard by the front line it means a machine gun opened on them, or perhaps a shell. The work is extremely hazardous and different men are chosen each night. Volunteers are called to go back to the lines for rations or any other risky job, and the call never has to be repeated as every man is ready to volunteer, knowing it to be his duty.
"I have heard that the Fairville boys are afraid to enlist but I do not believe that. What they want to do is to impress on the boys that it is their duty to do or die for the great cause, so tell them from me to come out and help us."
