from the firm
that grows it

LIPTON'S

It stands to reason that a firm that owns its own plantations and grows, blends, packs and sells its own Tea can guarantee its quality better than a firm that does not have these advantages.

For this reason, therefore, if you wish to get perfect quality Tea, buy Lipton's, because it is the only guaranteed quality Tea obtainable in Canada.

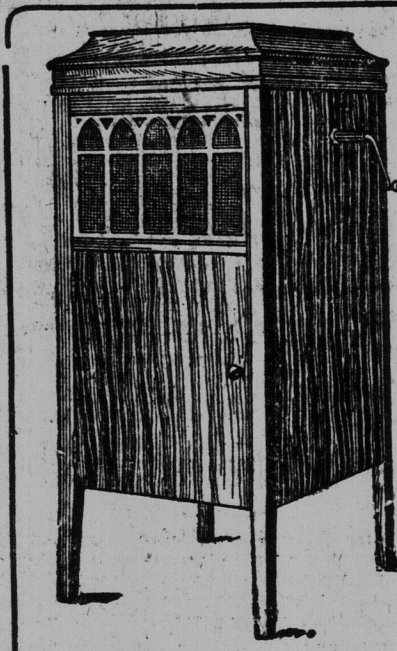

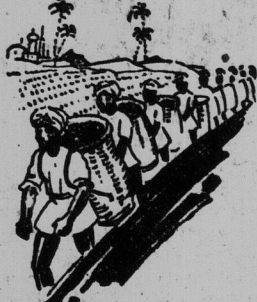

The very fact that "Lipton's" is synonymous with "Tea" is because we have made Lipton's worthy of this association of ideas.

FIVE ACTS AND NOTABLE PICTURE IN NEW GEM BILL

Striking Specialty Has Everyone
Guessing — Sprightly Dancing Act Also and Dustin Farnum in
"The Scarlet Pimpernel"

Gem patrons were entertained in fine fashion last night with two vaudeville acts of outstanding interest and a superb motion picture of five reels from the Fox studio.

Those who saw Dustin Farnum in William Fox's photoplay "The Scarlet Pimpernel" last night were delighted with the picture. Scarcely it is perhaps one of the best shown here in some time and through it run a thrilling romance and some mystery.

The story has to do with the reign of terror that swept France at the end of the eighteenth century. In England are a band of patriots headed by the Scarlet Pimpernel (so called from a little wayward flower he uses). This band of rescuers are condemned to death. So successful is the work of the band that the Republicans send agents to England to discover the identity of the Scarlet Pimpernel. The leader of these agents, Chauvelin (William Burress) by a threat against her brother, compels the wife of Sir Percy Blakeney (Dustin Farnum) to help him. After she has informed Chauvelin that the Scarlet Pimpernel is on his way to France she discovers that the Scarlet Pimpernel is her husband, who because of her activities in behalf of the Republicans had become cold toward her. She rushes to his aid and helps him thwart Chauvelin and his followers and they all escape in the nick of time in Sir Percy's yacht. Knowing his wife has been aided by her former foe, he is

The first of the vaudeville teams to appear made a decided hit with an unique spectacular act. The team is composed of Seda and Moot, man and woman. When the curtain rises a groto is disclosed and the effect is weird under a bright green light. The man appears in the form of a dragon from whose mouth flames spray while he writes about the stage. He is a clever contortionist. Strange sounds that he makes in harmony with weird music that accompanies the act, make a very striking impression. After the first few minutes the team changes and a young woman, Rose and Flynn provide the concluding act, a sprightly young man, with a dainty miss who wears a variety of very becoming costumes. They carry on a bit of pleasing chatter and sing one or two songs very well, but the part of their act is their dancing. He is an extremely clever eccentric dancer and both together are the acme of grace

CO-OPERATIVE DELIVERIES

A co-operative delivery which has proved a great saving in many American and some upper Canadian cities may be inaugurated in St. John. J. A. O'Donnell of Cleveland, Ohio, and reported on several hundred such systems in the United States for the American government, is now in St. John and will bring the suggestion before the Retail Merchants' Association at the board of trade rooms tonight.

In speaking to The Times, Mr. O'Donnell said that the American government had taken a considerable interest in the system throughout the union on account of its commercial economy in the saving of men and equipment for other departments of the nation's service and recommended that the system be adopted in towns of from two to fifty thousand people. The system has proved a great source of relief from worry on the part of the merchants as well as the housewives who know exactly when to expect delivery each day.

As an example of the saving in man and motor power, Mr. O'Donnell said that in one city in Iowa where it had been under a private enterprise, fifteen men, seventeen horses, fourteen wagons and one motor truck were now doing the work which had previously been done by sixty-four men, fifty-six teams and nine automobiles. In central Illinois the equipment of one department store consisting of eight Ford trucks was taken over under the co-operative system and is now doing the work for thirty-seven stores and one five-and-ten-cent store. As a money saving proposition for the merchant, one grocer reduced his delivery expenses from $1,038 to $806 a year, and another from $675 to $224 monthly. In another town the stock in a delivery system which had originally sold for $250 is today worth more than $1,000.

Mr. O'Donnell said that his government is not in favor of doing away with deliveries, for he said it had been proved that "a" burden bearing community is not a prosperous community," but he believes that a great saving could be made in having a general delivery system in St. John similar to that in several Ontario cities. The housewife, he said, would have to be educated to ordering her supplies once a day but she would soon find this the most systematic and economical method.
